THE NEW YORK SUN.

A modest five-story brick building fronts on Printing House square and Frankfort street, New York. Its windows overlook City Hall Park and its public buildings. The view on the west reaches almost to the North River. From the eastern windows, looking south, the Brooklyn Bridge and masts of vessels in the East River are distinctly seen. This is THE SUN Building. Although surrounded by lofty and pretentious edifices, none has the historical interest of THE SUN Building. Its walls have resounded with the eloquence of George Clinton, Elbridge Gerry, Andrew Jackson, Daniel D. Tompkins, De Witt Clinton, Martin Van Buren, Silas Wright, Thomas H. Benton, James Buchanan, Stephen A. Douglas, and scores of other great statesmen dead and gone. Jefferson Davis and Robert Toombs made their last speeches on Northern soil from its balcony. Andrew Jackson planted a hickory tree in its yard more than half a century ago. For over fifty years the building was known as Tammany Hall. It was on its first floor that Billy Wilson's famous Zouaves brandished their bowie knives and on their bended knees swore an oath to go through Baltimore or die.

In outward appearance the building shows little change. The iron balcony has been removed. The old sign, "Tammany Hall," gave place to an unpretentious sign, whose gilt letters and sun-burst are dimmed by the storms of eighteen years. The words, stretch across the front of the building beneath the windows of the editorial rooms. Similar modest signs appear over the entrances to the publication office in Frankfort street and on Printing House square. It is in this building that the reports and most of the editorials of THE SUN are written. It is here that the type is set, the forms stereotyped, and the paper itself printed and mailed. A flag staff projects from the roof, and on occasions of public rejoicing or of sorrow the stars and stripes are always flying to the breeze.

The Sun

The editorial rooms occupy the third floor. The visitor first enters the room allotted to the City Department. Here are desks for fifty-five reporters. It looks like the recitation room of an academy. The city editor occupies the northwest corner, and the managing editor the northeast corner. The ceiling is supported by iron girders and iron pillars. Electric bulbs are shaded above each desk. On the right, as you enter the door, there is a boarded enclosure containing a telephone. By its use news can be obtained almost instantaneously from every part of the city. Towns and cities twenty-five and even fifty miles away are within speaking distance. On the left of the entrance a large brass tube curves from a desk to the wall and into an adjoining room, and runs to the ground. It is the pneumatic tube connecting the editorial rooms with the Western Union Building at Broadway and Dey street and with the telegraph office near Broadway and Twenty-third street. Associated Press and special dispatches are sent to THE SUN office through this tube from the Western Union Building in two seconds. Reports from the center of the city placed in the tube at Twenty-third street reach the office in the same time. The dispatches and reports are placed in round leather boxes, resembling old-fashioned dice boxes, and are shot through the tube by air pressure. A long wooden desk, covered with files of the New York daily newspapers, stretches across the west end of the room. The desks of the reporters are littered with ink bottles, paste pots, pens and paper, ever at the service of their occupants. Pamphlets and books of city reference occupy odd nooks. Each reporter has a wardrobe at the back of the room, where he may deposit his hat and coat when he enters the office before beginning work. The walls are draped with maps of New York and its vicinity, which are found very valuable for reporters sent to gather news from distant points at short notice. The workroom is protected from intrusion by a railing near the door. Strangers are requested to take their seats without this railing while their cards are sent to those they desire to see.

Passing from the room of the City Department toward the east the visitor enters the library. Here are a thousand books of reference—literary, political, agricultural, biographical, historical, scientific and others. The most abstruse authority on a given subject can be ascertained in a very few minutes.

From the library the visitor enters Mr. Dana's sanctum. It is plainly furnished. The note of the canary is not heard there, nor are there any flowers or palm trees to be seen as in sanctums in Philadelphia and in other cities. Everything here indicates business. The floor is uncarpeted, and no easy ottomans are ranged against the walls. This room, like all the others, is heated by steam. It is in the northeast corner of the building, with windows opening on City Hall Park and Frankfort street. The wall is painted light gray. The room measures twenty by fifteen feet. It contains a plain lounge, three chairs and three tables. The main desk is covered with green baize and occupies the center of the room. A large sheet of yellow blotting paper is tacked to its surface. A revolving pedestal filled with books of reference stands on this desk, to the right of Mr. Dana's chair. A gray owl is perched on the top of this pedestal. It is the work of a taxidermist. An owl has occupied this perch for the last fifteen years. It was the gift of the Hon. Thomas C. Acton, a warm admirer of Mr. Dana, who supplies a new owl whenever the old one begins to lose its feathers. Back of the desk stands a round table, filling the corner of the room. A pile of books three feet high, piled against the wall, rises from this round table. A portrait of Marshall O. Roberts hangs above it. This table juts on a Printing House Square window. It is Mr. Dana's favorite working place. About midday he can be seen from the City Hall Park, dictating or writing articles at this table. In the opposite corner is another table, containing files of THE SUN, and usually burdened with books sent to him by publishers or authors. These books accumulate until the table and deep-set window shelf overflows, when they are thrown into large bags and sent to a Chambers street bookseller. The latest and best Atlases and charts are always found in the drawer of this table. Steel engravings of the Appleton and Harper Bros. cover the wall above it.

A veined white marble mantel, yellow with age, is one of the features of the sanctum. It is loaded with bric-a-brac. A medallion of Benjamin F. Butler, photographs of the Count Joannes and President Arthur, and chromos of Bismarck and the Emperor William are partially hidden by the bric-a-brac. There is a calendar in a tin case and a relic of the old Dutch Church in Nassau street, erected in 1720 and formerly used as the Post Office. The bric-a-brac includes china candelabra, portraying two frogs upholding a lily. There is also a larger candlestick, in which a turtle takes the place of the frogs. A folded bronze fez appears among the curiosities, and likewise a china statuette of a SUN newsboy. There is also a piece of coral from the South Pacific. A life-size engraving of Abraham Lincoln fills the place above the mantel. A fine photograph of Judge Samuel Blatchford hangs above the lounge, facing Mr. Dana when at work. On the left, as you enter the room, you see a photograph of Dr. Horace Greeley, sitting at a desk, with a soft hat thrown carelessly on the table in front of him. His coat collar is turned under, and he is pictured as intently reading a copy of the Tribune. Imagine an umbrella rack near the window, waste-paper baskets beneath the tables and a ponderous cushioned editorial chair, its leather covering fastened with brass nails, standing upon a faded, dusty and worn rug, not swinging on a pivot, but moving on creaking castors, and you have the furniture of the room complete.

Mr. Dana usually enters his office about 11 o'clock A. M. He first looks at a card sent up from the counting room, giving the circulation of the paper as compared with the circulation of the previous day. He then opens his personal letters and glances through the standing proof sheets, killing such articles as meet with his disapproval, and making many emendations and alterations. He usually reads the New York daily newspapers before reaching the office. After sifting his proofs he picks up the leading newspapers of the country and carefully scans them. Most of the newspaper extracts printed in THE SUN are culled by Mr. Dana. He seems at times to draw inspiration from the reading of leading newspapers East, West and South, for, after their perusal, he summons his stenographer, and dictates many of the editorial articles and pithy paragraphs that attract so much attention. Nothing seems to escape his notice. The Tariff, the Fraudulent President, the Credit Mobilier, THE SUN'S Cat, the Parnell Movement, Addition, Division and Silence, Local Politics, the Weather, our Harbor Defenses, and everything that is uppermost in the public mind, receives its due attention.

The editor enjoys his work and is ever in good humor. How he does the work that he performs, with visitors pouring in upon him one after another and breaking off his train of thought, is a problem. He has an almost endless stream of visitors—ex-Presidents, Governors, Senators, Cabinet Officers, Congressmen, Members of the Legislature, editors of all shades of face and politics, breeders of horses, pugilists, actors, members of labor unions, beggars, and cranks. All are treated with uniform kindness and consideration. His callers are of all nationalities. Mr. Dana is a remarkable linguist, and at one time he was overheard conversing in Spanish, French, German and Italian with visitors of those nationalities who had dropped into the sanctum. Despite his editorial duties, Mr. Dana frequently finds time, while in the office, to peruse books in English, French, German, Spanish and other languages. At times he amuses himself by making difficult translations for the columns of THE SUN. Again, with hands in his pockets, he walks out into the adjoining rooms and indulges in badinage with his associates.

Between four and five in the afternoon Mr. Dana cleans up his desks and goes home. He is scrupulously neat about his work. The ink, the pens, the blotting pads, the books of reference, the spectacles, and everything in use is put in its proper place before he leaves the sanctum.

The room adjoining the sanctum is occupied by associate editors. It contains four desks, an engraving of Washington, maps of the United States, a drawing of the Greeley family, a shelf laden with huge dictionaries, an assortment of army, naval and other registers, and a big Marvin safe.

Passing through the library toward the back of the building, we enter another room containing files of THE SUN since 1833, and the Congressional Record from the time of its first publication. This room is occupied by the exchange reader, Mr. Dana's private stenographer, THE SUN'S humorist, and others.

On leaving the editorial rooms and passing to the next story, the visitor enters first the stereotyping room. THE SUN is never printed from naked type. It would be impossible, even with the great improvements in printing made in the last few years, to print a paper of such enormous circulation from the type. THE SUN has eight presses, one of which prints eight copies at each revolution of its cylinder. To supply these presses, each page is stereotyped, and plates enough are made to keep the eight machines in motion. The operation of stereotyping is very interesting. Each page, as it is set up, is locked in a bed the same as a page of an old-fashioned country newspaper. The side-sticks, however, are steel, and the page is locked with screws and not with quoins, as in old times. The page is then sent down to the stereotyping-room by an elevator. Sheets of prepared and dampened paper are placed over each page. This prepared paper is carefully hammered on the face of the type with immense brushes until a perfect indentation of each type and each line of a cut shows through the dampened paper. The page with the paper still remaining on it is then covered with woolen blankets and shoved upon a steam chest. Here it is placed in a press resembling a copying press, the plate of which is screwed down upon the blankets pressing them upon the prepared paper covering the type, where it is kept until the heat has dried the paper, or "matrix," as it is called. Then the page is taken from the press, and the matrix is carefully removed. It is so prepared that it does not stick to the type. It is about as thick as a sheet of blotting paper. The matrix is next sprinkled with powdered plaster-of-Paris, and placed in a mould curved the same as the cylinder of the press. These moulds stand near a furnace in the center of the stereotyping-room. This furnace heats a caldron of melted lead and antimony. The molten metal is poured into the moulds and the impression made on the matrix by the type is thus transferred to the leaden plate curved to fit the cylinder of the press. Seventy-two of these pages are cast each morning. The time used to stereotype a plate is about eight minutes. The forms are made up about 2 o'clock A. M., and by 3 A. M. all the plates have been transferred to the cylinders and all the presses are in motion. At about half-past four or a quarter to five an edition of 150,000 copies has been printed and placed in the hands of the newsdealers.

THE SUN'S stereotyping-room possesses unusual attractions for visitors. The heat is, of course, intense in the summer time, and the stereotypers handle their plates and fly around naked to the waist, perspiring like firemen in the hold of a steamship. The noise is indescribable. The hissing of the molten metal, the buzz of the circular saws used in trimming the plates, and the clanging of bells from the press and composing-rooms make conversation almost impossible.

The visitor goes from the stereotyping-room into the mailing department of the paper. Fourteen men are here employed. The name of each subscriber is cut by machinery upon little blocks of wood. These blocks are arranged in trays and placed in little cabinets. There is one cabinet for each State in the Union. The names of the post offices in each State are also cut in blocks and similarly arranged. The wrappers are printed from a little press which handles the blocks in alphabetical order. These wrappers are afterward filled with newspapers and sent to subscribers in the early morning mail.

From the mailing room the visitor ascends another flight of stairs to the composing room. Here fifty compositors and six proofreaders are busy every night. The manuscript comes from the editorial and city departments, and the advertisements from the publishing department, in tin boxes through shafts connecting with the different rooms. Each compositor has a number. These numbers are stereotyped and are called "slugs." The slugs are kept on a bank where each typesetter dumps his part of each article as fast as he puts it in type. The foreman has charge of all the manuscript. He cuts it into sections or "takes," as typesetters term them. These "takes" are numbered with some letter which is used until all the takes in each article are in hand. For instance, the first take of a Washington dispatch might be marked "1 W," the second, "2 W," the third "3 W," and so on until the last "take" in the dispatch is numbered. If the compositor having the take "5 W" is first to complete his task he goes to the bank, and dumps his type upon a brass galley. These galleys resemble a thin board with cleets at one end and along the sides. The compositor having the take "5 W," places his type about midway on the galley, so as to give the men having the four previous "takes" an opportunity to empty their matter above his. He places his slug at the head of the type which he dumps, marks the number of his "take" on a little piece of white paper, and lays this piece of paper at the side of the type. This mark prevents confusion. The "galley slave," or the man who pulls the proof sheet, by looking at the numbers on the pieces of white paper, can tell at a glance whether any "take" is missing. When the last typesetter dumps the last of the "W" matter, the proof-puller locks up the galley, places it upon a little press, and pulls the first proof sheet. This is always taken on yellow paper. It is the proof-sheet used to measure the quantity of type that has been set. The second proof-sheet is taken on white paper and sent to the proof-room. After it is read it is returned to the composing-room. This sheet shows the number of the slug of each compositor, and if there are mistakes in any "take" the galley is passed to the compositor who has made such mistakes, for the purpose of correction. The yellow proofs are cut up each morning by the assistant foreman and are distributed among the compositors, according to the numbers on the slugs. The compositors paste them together at the end of the week, when they are measured and the workmen receive their pay for the number of ems shown on the pasted sheets.

THE SUN pays its compositors 46 cents per thousand ems. It employs members of the Typographical Union to the exclusion of all other printers. There are 27 ems in each line of the type usually used for news in THE SUN, and 37 lines make 1,000 ems. A fast compositor will put in type from 1,800 to 2,000 ems an hour.

From the composing-room the visitor descends to the publication office. It has a high counter with glass partitions and openings at the cashier's desk and elsewhere for the reception of money, of advertisements, of subscriptions and for the transaction of other business. The publisher has a comfortable office in the southeast corner of the building. He has eleven assistants. Every advertisement is accurately scheduled and every subscriber promptly enrolled. The publisher has charge of all matters connected with the publication of the paper. He makes contracts for ink and paper, and for advertising, and is able at a moment's notice to tell the exact financial standing of the concern. He pays all bills contracted by the other departments, and has supervision of every thing about the establishment except the editorial department.

From the publication office the visitor goes down to the press-room. It is like descending into a cave. Here electric lights are always burning. Great rolls of paper, seventy-two inches wide, and as big around as the columns of the Custom House, are piled near by for use in the morning. These immense rolls of paper come direct from THE SUN'S paper mill, upon great axles. It would be impossible to print from the dry paper wound on the axle. So the axles are placed in brackets and the paper is unwound and re-wound on a second axle, while a fine spray of water plays upon it from above, and dampens it so that it will easily take the ink impression from the plate on the cylinder of the press. Each roll contains a sheet of paper about a mile long and weighs from three hundred and fifty to a thousand pounds. The largest press takes a thousand pound roll, turning out eight papers at each revolution of the cylinder. The smallest press uses a three hundred and fifty pound roll, turning out two papers at each revolution of the cylinder. The axles of these rolls are placed in sockets above the press and a connection made with the machinery. Steam power is then applied and the cylinder begins its work of unwinding the roll, the press printing papers at each revolution. Improved machinery cuts the sheets as soon as they receive the impression and throws them on beds at the feet of the pressmen.

The presses do their own counting, showing at each revolution on an indicator at the end of each press, the number of papers printed. All these indicators connect with an indicator in the publisher's office, which shows every second, the number of papers printed by all the presses. The publisher's indicator is under lock and key and is attached to his desk. The largest press prints forty thousand newspapers an hour.

From the press-room the printed papers are taken to an apartment above, where they are delivered to those who have checks for them. These checks are bought by newsdealers between 2 and 3 A. M., in the publication office. They are metallic, and indicate the number of papers to which each purchaser is entitled. The dealer descends to the room below and presents his check. As an indication of the business done every morning it is only necessary to say that seven men are employed in counting the papers and in delivering them to the check-holders. All this work is done outside of the mailing department of the daily SUN.

To mail the papers they must be folded before being placed in wrappers. This folding is done by machines. The papers are fed to the machines one by one by fly boys. The machine nips the sheet with iron fingers, passes it through its stomach, and shoves it out into a wooden tray, folded ready for mailing. Nine men are employed in mailing the daily SUN between 3 and 4 o'clock every morning. There are twenty-seven pressmen and ten fly-boys. In addition to these THE SUN employs a chief engineer, two assistants and a watchman. It pays out for labor over a million dollars a year.

A DAY'S WORK IN THE SUN OFFICE.

It is 5 o'clock in the morning. THE SUN building is deserted by all but its watchman. Printing House square, however, is still aglow with the glare of electric lights. The tinkle of the bells on the horses attached to the Third and Fourth avenue horse cars is heard, and the street is filled with market and truck wagons. Day is dawning, and business is just beginning. A squad of scrubbing women enter THE SUN building. The stairways, the floors of the publication and editorial offices, and the other rooms, are thoroughly cleaned. The women are hardly through with their work, and the floors are scarcely dry, before the clerks in the counting-room appear and take their places at their desks. Anon, four bright boys climb the stairs of the editorial room and begin their duties. Pens, ink and paper are arranged on the desks of the reporters and editors. Files of all the morning newspapers are procured and laid upon the desks of the city and managing editors and the editor-in-chief. Similar files are also laid away for use hereafter. THE SUN itself is filed repeatedly and a copy carefully folded is laid upon the desk of each reporter and editor.

By 9 o'clock the city editor enters. He carefully reads the morning newspapers and observes what is of public interest. He opens a large book and makes therein assignments of duty for the reporters. The reporters stroll in one by one, receive their assignments and depart upon their various errands. There are always, however, half a dozen others kept in the office awaiting special work, for no man in a newspaper office can foresee what is to happen. Some of the best men are usually reserved for unforeseen events.

About 11 o'clock the editorial writers appear, and soon, if not before, Charles A. Dana, the Editor-in-Chief, marches to his room. He has no editorial councils—he has no need for them. He tells each editor in clear, concise terms exactly what he wants. Beyond this he gives them free scope. When suggestions are made his decisions are prompt and to the point. With his appearance the bells begin to ring and the office boys are kept running. Some go to the Post Office; others look up proof sheets. He makes inquiries concerning missing articles and gives suggestions to the reportorial department. Newspapers are called for. The telephone is brought into use, and his private stenographer is frequently summoned.

By 1 o'clock all the editors are at their desks and every man is busy. One is opening letters, a very few of which are selected for publication. Others are reading manuscript articles and deciding upon their merits. Some are looking up books of reference for the use of the chief. Cards of visitors are carried into the sanctum and public men are ushered in. One by one they pay their respects and depart. In some cases Mr. Dana goes to the door to meet them, and accompanies them to the private door on their way out. The publisher appears and confers with the chief. The financial editor dilates on the situation. The foreman of the composing-room inquires concerning a double-sheet paper for the following day, and every man and boy about the office is kept on his mettle.

Advertisements begin to pour into the publication office. Hundreds of letters containing subscriptions for THE WEEKLY SUN are opened. From one end of the building to the other, except in the press and stereotyping-rooms, there is bustle and active labor.

By 3 o'clock the managing editor arrives and begins to answer dispatches from correspondents out of town. He orders so much from this city and so much from that concerning events which have happened while the world was asleep. Long before this the compositors have filled their cases with letter, and are busy putting in type articles that Mr. Dana wishes to see before he goes home. His work done, he chats with his son Paul and other editors, draws on his overcoat, and stalks out of the office with his hands in his pockets. The building is soon flooded with electric light. The telephone is brought into play to ascertain what has occurred at Police Headquarters, for the SUN has rooms near that office, and has reporters detailed to attend especially to that department from 8 o'clock in the morning to 5 o'clock the next morning. At 7 o'clock the city editor goes home and his assistant takes his place. Before departing, the city editor receives reports from all men assigned to the various departments of the City Government, and from what are known as routine reporters, including Wall street, the City Hall, the Civil and Criminal Courts, and from all the regular sources of local news. The evening papers, too, have all been carefully scanned and sifted. The managing editor about this time goes out to lunch. While he is gone the Associated Press dispatches are arranged and placed on the desks of the telegraph editors, and other duties are performed.

On the return of the managing editor the active work of the evening begins. THE SUN gives the news of the day in a nutshell. Half a dozen editors are employed in cutting down reports and dispatches, in throwing out what is not news, and preserving what is sparkling and bright. The back of THE SUN'S Cat is arched and ready for its prey. Woe betide any long-winded speeches barren of ideas! Woe betide the reporter who comments on facts in his report! The news is boiled down and granulated. Gradually the desks fill up. Messenger boys rush in. There are alarms at the telephone. The pump and whirr of the pneumatic tube is heard every minute and the desks are filled with men scratching away as though dear life depended upon it.

As the hour of midnight approaches, anxious eyes are cast toward the clock. The late reporters have got in with their budgets of news. They are running a race with time so as to get their information into the paper. Men are writing reports dictated by telephone. The assistant editor goes to the composing-room and begins to oversee the make-up of the paper. The head of every compositor is bobbing beneath an electric light, and the manuscript on the foreman's desk melts away like snow. The roll of the proof-press is heard continually, and careless compositors are startled by cries of "Proof for No. —!"

The stereotypers have started their fires in the furnace below. The plates of the day before are disappearing and melting in the caldron above it. The wetters-of-paper in the press-room have finished their job, and the pressmen are dropping in one by one to perform their morning's labor.

About 1 o'clock the office sees its busiest moment. The reporters hear above them the thunder of the trucks in the composing room, and the jig-jig of the machinery in the stereotyping-room. The building seems to shake with the intensity of business. Bells are clanging on every floor, and men are dashing from story to story. All is bustle and excitement. The interest, however, is centred in the last but first page, now being made up in the composing-room. With all the condensation the page is choked. Galleys of type are there struggling for admission. Shouts of compositors are heard asking for words as they try to make even lines of their "takes." Their fingers move faster under the spur of the man who knows that the United States mail waits for no belated newspaper.

When the last line of type has been squeezed into the page, and the form is locked, there is a sigh of relief. A new SUN is about to be born, and every mechanical physician is now on the qui vive. An expectant public is below in the shape of a horde of impatient newsdealers. The counting-room is thronged with sturdy-looking men, and active news boys, struggling for place in line, that they may secure their checks. As fast as they receive the metallic pieces they dash to the room below and fight for the sheets as they come hot from the press. A score of wagons is backed against the curb in front of the office awaiting their loads. These wagons are to catch the early northern, southern and eastern trains in time to forward their freight of SUNS. The sharp click of the folding machine in the basement is drowned in the deep roar of the presses. A dozen perspiring men wearing jumpers are busy with brush and paste pot, mailing the papers.

One by one the presses cease work. Gradually the army of newsdealers disappears. The cry of "Morning SUN" from the throat of the newsboy has been heard on the street for more than an hour. The pressman throws the canvass over his wonderful machine and goes home. The reporters drift to the Press Club Rooms or elsewhere for lunch and refreshments. A solitary light in the editorial room indicates that one editor remains at his desk. He is awaiting the possibility of the assassination of a President or of some other great event that may startle the world. A few compositors and stereotypers are left over to answer any call that he may make. By dawn, however, or a little before dawn, even these men turn out their lights and wend their way homewards. Within two hours a hundred thousand SUNS are distributed throughout the city and country.

THE SAVANNAH (GA.) MORNING NEWS.

Savannah has had a newspaper since 1763. In April of that year the Georgia Gazette was established, and it lived through the days of the colonial government and those of the revolutionary period down to the closing years of the last century. From that time to the present there have been more than a score of newspapers published in that city. The most prominent of these defunct papers were the Republican, the Georgian, the Courier, the Mirror, the Journal, and the Advertiser. The MORNING NEWS made its first appearance in January, 1850, and was a contemporary of all those mentioned, and is the only survivor of the newspaper of ante-bellum days. The Republican, which was established in 1804, survived until 1874, when it was consolidated with a younger rival, the Advertiser, under the name of the Advertiser-Republican. The new venture was not a success, and the rights and franchises of the concern were transferred to the MORNING NEWS.

The MORNING NEWS has been a vigorous and prosperous newspaper from its foundation, because it has always maintained the standard of honest Democracy, has been honest in its purpose, free from the dictation of politicians, fearless in the expression of its opinions, and untiring in the gathering of news. It passed through the great struggle of the war between the States, and like other Southern newspapers, came out in a rather delapidated condition. It soon regained its prosperity, however, and quickly re-established its reputation as a live, progressive and vigorous newspaper. At the close of the war no Southern newspaper appreciated fully the importance of getting the cream of the news, and getting it fresh. The MORNING NEWS was the first Southern newspaper that employed special correspondents, and for years was the only Southern paper which maintained regular correspondents at important news centres.

The MORNING NEWS also kept pace with all the improvements in the publishing and mechanical departments of the newspaper business. Changes were made from time to time in its printing machinery, and in January, 1885, in order to meet the requirements of its increasing circulation, it added to its press-room a Hoe web-perfecting press, built expressly for the paper by Messrs. R. Hoe & Co. This was the first perfecting press of the kind printing from stereotype plates introduced into the South. This event marked a new era in newspaper publishing in Savannah. It made the use of a full telegraphic service possible, and secured to the paper the advantages accruing from the fast mail service. These improvements were, however, only in keeping with the material progress of its section, and were none too early to meet the demands of the readers of the MORNING NEWS.

The MORNING NEWS has for its immediate field the enterprising city of Savannah, with its population of 40,000, and the country adjacent. It also has an almost exclusive monopoly of one-half of the States of Georgia and Florida, and a fair circulation in South Carolina. The people of this vast section of country look to the MORNING NEWS for the news of the day, and as many of its readers are planters or merchants interested in their crops, its daily market reports are almost a necessity to these classes.

The MORNING NEWS contains eight pages, fifty-six columns, and the WEEKLY NEWS twelve pages, eighty-four columns. The daily is the only morning paper published in Savannah, and the only newspaper within the radius of 115 miles publishing full associated press and special dispatches and complete commercial reports.

Savannah is the principal seaport and commercial city on South Atlantic Coast, and has a large foreign and domestic trade. It is also the source of supplies, embracing everything needed in the stores and workshops, or on the farms or in the households of the people of an immense territory. The following summary of the trade of Savannah in Southern products alone, gives some idea of the business of the city in which the MORNING NEWS is published. The statement is for the commercial year ending Sept. 1, 1885:

Cotton—730,000 bales; value, $37,500,000.

Naval Stores—Rosin, 458,225 barrels, and Spirits Turpentine 111,447 casks; value, $3,000,000.

Rice—77,343 casks; value, $1,200,000.

Lumber and Timber—Lumber, 66,979,014 feet. Timber, 288,088 feet; value, $1,750,000.

Fruits and Vegetables—731,961 Melons and 741,107 packages Fruits and Vegetables; value, $1,400,000.

Making a grand total valuation in the foregoing articles alone of $45,100,000. The entire business of the city for the year was estimated at $90,000,000.

THE ALBANY EVENING JOURNAL

A GREAT REPUBLICAN NEWSPAPER.

STORY OF THE PAPER FOUNDED BY THURLOW WEED.

"The object of its establishment is to aid in the great work of civil and political reformation which the people have taken in hand." Thus wrote the late Thurlow Weed, the Warwick of American journalists, in the leading editorial of the first issue of the ALBANY EVENING JOURNAL on the 22d of March, 1830. The new paper, which was launched at the capital of the Empire State with but 170 daily and less than 300 semi-weekly subscribers, and which was one of the five daily newspapers then issued in New York outside of the metropolis, was an outgrowth of the celebrated Morgan Masonic sensation, and was intended to be the recognized organ of the rapidly-developing anti-Masonic party. Within a month the EVENING JOURNAL not only had the largest circulation of any political paper in the State, but through the sagacity, editorial vigor and boldness of Mr. Weed, it wielded a political influence recognized throughout the nation. For thirty years it was the organ in turn of the anti-Masonic, Whig, and Republican parties, while its editor was the power behind the throne, who made and unmade public men. Although the marvellous growth of the country, the changes in the methods of transportation and the extraordinary advances in the means of transmitting news since the close of the civil war, have made it impossible for any paper to maintain the unique position the EVENING JOURNAL held prior to Mr. Weed's retirement from it in January, 1863, his successors in the editorial chair—George Dawson, Charles Emory Smith, John A. Sleicher, and others—have steadily kept it in the high place he won for it, as the leading Republican paper at the capital of New York—the greatest political centre in the country next to Washington—and as a recognized authority everywhere on New York politics. While it has preserved its political influence unimpeached, the EVENING JOURNAL has in the same time kept pace with the giant strides made by American journalism in the past twenty-five years. How remarkable has been the progress since Mr. Weed's first efforts in Albany. "In those days," he writes in his autobiography, "there was no editorial staff. I not only edited the paper without assistance, but for several years reported the Assembly proceedings, and personally collected all news articles and local items, read all proof, and occasionally made up the forms." To-day a regular staff of twenty skilled newspaper men and one hundred correspondents, besides a large typographical and clerical force, are required properly to present the day's news and cover the extensive field which the nine railroads running into Albany have brought directly in the EVENING JOURNAL'S province, a district stretching seventy-five miles in every direction, and containing a population of nearly a million persons. From 1830 down to March 17, 1884 the EVENING JOURNAL remained in the control of Mr. Weed's associates and lieutenants. Then it passed into the hands of a company of which W. J. Arkell is President. He has infused new life into it, made it a first-class newspaper in every respect, and wonderfully increased its value, both to readers and advertisers, by a liberal expenditure of money for news, and by adding everything required by the demands of first-class journalism.

The weekly and semi-weekly issues partake of the same general character as the daily, and are the cheapest Republican papers issued, for the price, in the State. No weekly newspaper in the land has a wider or more varied clientele both in the subscription and advertising departments than the ALBANY WEEKLY JOURNAL. Both the daily and weekly issues have for many years been conceded to be among the best advertising mediums in the country. THE ALBANY WEEKLY JOURNAL has the largest circulation of any weekly newspaper in the State outside of New York City.

THE HISTORY OF THE WORLD.

THE WORLD comes of Democratic lineage. The National Advocate, established in 1813, and edited by Henry Wheaton, gave a sturdy support to Democratic principles during that exciting era, and this was the source and starting-point of the broad Democratic stream which flows through the columns of THE WORLD of 1886. The National Advocate in 1826 passed under the control of Major M. M. Noah, who changed its name to the Enquirer. In 1829 that paper was consolidated with the Morning Courier, which had been established two years before as a Jacksonian newspaper. For more than thirty years the New York Courier and Enquirer, under the management of Gen. James Watson Webb, was an influential commercial and political journal. In July, 1861, it was absorbed, with its Associated Press franchise, by the new metropolitan venture, THE WORLD.

The first issue of THE NEW YORK WORLD appeared on the morning of June 14th, 1860. Its projectors were gentlemen of large means and evangelical affiliations, who believed that there was room in New York for a religious daily newspaper. In this it seems they were mistaken, for after a fortune had been spent in trying to make it a success, the paper was sold in 1862 to a coterie of wealthy Democrats, headed by August Belmont and S. L. M. Barlow. Mr. Manton Marble was made editor-in-chief, and under his management THE WORLD assumed the position which it continues to hold—that of the principal Democratic newspaper in the country. On Dec. 29, 1869, Mr. Marble, who had gradually acquired three-fourths of THE WORLD newspaper property, purchased the remaining interest for $100,000. The paper remained under his control until May 1, 1876, when the property was sold to a syndicate of capitalists, represented by Mr. William H. Hurlbert, who organized the Press Publishing Co. Though backed by the richest men in America, with an editorial staff embracing the ablest men of letters and the brightest minds in journalism, THE WORLD, under this management, steadily declined in influence and circulation, not only failing to pay expenses, but entailing a loss of between $89,000 and $100,000 annually. It did not serve the people, and neither ability nor money could save it.

On the 10th of May, 1883, Mr. Joseph Pulitzer purchased all the stock of the Press Publishing Co., publishers of THE WORLD, and thus became its owner and proprietor. At that time THE WORLD had an average circulation of about 15,000 and very little advertising. It was decidedly English in tone, had few friends, and very little influence. Notwithstanding the discouraging prospect, however, the new proprietor had faith in his ability to turn defeat into victory and make the paper a success. What was planned and what was promised is best told in the editorial announcement published on May 11, 1883, which was the first issue under the new management. It reads as follows :

The entire WORLD newspaper property has been purchased by the undersigned, and will, from this day on, be under different management—different in men, measures and methods—different in purposes, policy and principle—different in objects and interest—different in sympathies and convictions—different in head and heart.

Performance is better than promise. Exuberant assurances are cheap; I make none, I simply refer the public to the new WORLD itself, which henceforth shall be the daily evidence of its own growing improvement with forty-eight daily witnesses in its forty-eight columns.

There is room in this great and growing city for a journal that is not only cheap but bright, not only bright but large, not only large but truly Democratic—dedicated to the cause of the people rather than that of purse potentates—devoted more to the news of the New than the Old World—that will expose all fraud and sham, fight all public evils and abuses—that will serve and battle for the people with earnest sincerity. In that cause and for that end solely, the new WORLD is hereby enlisted and committed to the attention of the intelligent public.

JOSEPH PULITZER.

How well those promises have been kept, need not be pointed out. The paper itself is its own best witness. Within the short time of two and a half years the paper has again and again enlarged, and its forty-eight columns have increased to seventy on week-days and 168 on Sundays; its circulation has grown from 15,000 to an average of 150,000 on week-days and over 200,000 on Sundays; its advertising has increased in like proportion, and THE WORLD stands to-day at the head of American newspapers, without a rival in all this broad land in circulation, in advertising, in everything which goes to make a successful newspaper.

THE WORLD'S CIRCULATION.

THE WORLD makes no secret of its circulation. It believes that is a matter in which the public has a legitimate interest, and that the advertiser has the same right to know the exact quality of his purchase when buying newspaper advertising, as when buying any other commodity. For these reasons THE WORLD opens its books freely. It knows that the public has little faith in "high water mark" circulations. Their purpose generally is to mislead. Therefore THE WORLD publishes sworn statements of its circulation from day to day and from month to month. Moreover, all advertisers, advertising agents, editors, publishers, and others interested are cordially invited to visit its press room and examine its circulation books at any time.

On the following pages are presented tabulated statements under oath, showing THE WORLD'S average daily circulation in each month from May 10, 1883, to December, 1885, inclusive; the circulation for every Sunday from May 20, 1883, to February 7, 1886, inclusive; the daily, weekly and semi-weekly circulation for the months of November and December, 1885, and January, 1886, as compared with the same months of the preceding year; and also the circulation for every day in 1885. The total circulation for the past year was 51,241,367 copies. An inspection of these tables will show that the growth of THE WORLD, while unequalled in the annals of journalism, has been in no sense spasmodic. It has been singularly independent of special events, sensation, or political excitements. The increase in circulation during the comparatively quiet months of 1885 was even more remarkable than during the presidential campaign of 1884. The figures have advanced from 15,000 to over 150,000 daily, and over 200,000 on Sunday, with almost clock-like regularity, and the end is not yet.

To prove the steady advance of THE WORLD'S circulation during the present year, the following table is published. It shows the actual number of WORLD'S printed and sold each day from January 1, 1885, to January 1, 1886. Such figures speak for themselves and need no comment. Advertisers will do well to study them. To the shrewd advertiser, the careful man of business, they speak volumes, and prove that THE WORLD has not only the largest circulation of any newspaper in the United States, but that it is also the best advertising medium:

The following table gives the actual, bona fide, sworn to circulation of "The World" day by day since Jan. 1, 1885. Its steady, clock-like march upward is most forcibly demonstrated by the actual figures of the circulation:

THE WORLD'S ADVERTISING.

THE WORLD has not only secured the largest newspaper circulation, but has become at the same time the leading advertising medium in the country. Months ago it passed its only competitor in this respect, the New York Herald, and since then it has been steadily widening the gap until it now sometimes publishes twice as many columns of advertisements as appear in that paper.

The following figures will show how THE WORLD'S advertising patronage has grown:

On Easter Sunday, 1883, THE WORLD published 14½ columns of advertisements and no "wants" to speak of.

On Easter Sunday, 1884, THE WORLD published 42½ columns of advertisements.

On Easter Sunday, 1885, THE WORLD published 106 columns, including 66 columns of "wants." These 66 columns included 4,136 separate advertisements, an increase of 3,059 over the corresponding Sunday of 1884.

In April, 1883, THE WORLD printed 7,467 advertisements.

In April, 1884, THE WORLD printed 18,525 advertisements.

In April, 1885, THE WORLD printed 46,806 advertisements.

During April, 1884, THE WORLD printed 673¼ columns of advertisements and the Herald 1,295 columns.

During February, 1885, the Herald printed 719½ columns of advertisements and THE WORLD 805 columns.

During March, 1885, the Herald printed 1,015 columns of advertisements and THE WORLD 1,009½ columns.

During April, 1885, the Herald printed 1,117 columns of advertisements and THE WORLD 1,127¼ columns.

During August, 1885, the Herald printed 588½ columns of advertisements and THE WORLD 831 columns.

During September, 1885, the Herald printed 850 columns of advertisements and THE WORLD 1,091¼ columns.

During October, 1885, the Herald printed 927 columns of advertisements and THE WORLD 1,196½ columns.

During November, 1885, the Herald printed 847¼ columns of advertisements and THE WORLD 1,133¼ columns.

During December, 1885, the Herald printed 658¼ columns of advertisements and THE WORLD 1,065.

During January, 1886, the Herald printed 675½ columns of advertisements and THE WORLD 968¼ columns.

Such figures are significant. They prove that THE WORLD is appreciated by judicious advertisers and careful business men.

As showing the relative value of the two papers, THE WORLD and the Herald, as advertising mediums, the following facts are not without interest. Until February, 1885, the dry-goods firm of Ehrich Brothers, on the corner of Eighth avenue and Twenty-fourth street, had been advertising entirely in the Herald. On Sunday, the 21st of that month, to test the merits of the two papers, and to settle a wager made by a member of the firm, Ehrich Brothers put a two-column advertisement of shoes in each paper. The advertisement was identically the same in both. In the Herald it was published on the first page, usually considered the best page of the paper, while THE WORLD advertisement was printed on the seventh, or supplement page. At the same time the firm instructed all its clerks in the shoe department to ask every customer to say where he or she had seen the advertisement. As a result of this advertisement 4,500 pairs of shoes were sold during the three following days, and the clerk's records showed that THE WORLD led the Herald by almost exactly 50 per cent. In other words, while the firm gained 2,700 customers through THE WORLD, it gained only 1,800 through the Herald, thus proving the superiority of THE WORLD as an advertising medium.

In no department has this increase of THE WORLD's advertising been more marked than in the number of small "wants." In May, 1883, it published less than a column of such advertisements. Now it publishes more "want" advertisements than any other paper in the world—from 10 to 12 columns on week days and from 48 to 56 columns on Sundays. During 1885 it published 12,143 columns of such advertisements. It is a journalistic maxim that advertising of this class is the surest test of a newspaper's popularity and success. During the year THE WORLD published the enormous number of 448,793 advertisements.

The following table shows the number of letters in response to small want advertisements received at THE WORLD office each month of 1885. It is a fact that in all the United States barely forty post-offices handle as many letters daily as frequently come to THE WORLD's letter box:

January.....	43,459	July.....	36,093
February.....	48,057	August.....	47,578
March.....	59,610	September.....	82,979
April.....	54,841	October.....	96,909
May.....	48,228	November.....	96,363
June.....	48,231	December.....	82,236

In THE WORLD office, as in none other, advertisements as well as matters of news are received by telegraph, and fresh from the operator's pen are placed in the hands of the compositors. This recent innovation has proved to be exceedingly convenient to advertisers in the upper part of the city, who are thereby saved a journey down town, no expense to advertisers attending the transmission by wire.

The system of classification in use in THE WORLD's advertising columns is different, and, if the statement of the fact may be pardoned, much more complete and convenient than that in vogue in any other office in the country. All help wanted or offered, for instance, is arranged in classes, the chambermaids are congregated, the capabilities of the salesmen are displayed together, and the cooks and porters and hostlers and gardeners and all manner of artisans vie with their peers in the same columns. If one desires apartments in a particular section of the city, all that is offered in that locality will be found grouped together, according to the number of the street and the number of the house. The same thoroughness of system prevails in relation to all classes of advertisements.

Probably in no line of large expenditure does the average business man make his purchase so blindly and with so little regard to the ordinary precautions of a buyer as in the case of newspaper advertising. Very few seem to realize that the purchase of advertising can be bought approximately within the same line of business principles as is the case with other purchases. Other considerations being equal, advertising in a paper having two thousand circulation is worth just double what it is in another having one thousand circulation.

This suggests the fixing of some kind of standard of cost by which to determine whether any given advertising is cheap or dear. By such a standard THE WORLD wishes to be judged, and it stands ready at all times to furnish the information necessary to arrive at correct conclusions. It claims that, considering circulation, it is the cheapest and best advertising medium in the world, and it challenges comparison on that point.

 All advertisements in the SUNDAY WORLD are inserted upon the distinct GUARANTEE that the regular bona fide paid circulation of the SUNDAY WORLD is GREATER THAN THAT OF ANY OTHER PAPER PUBLISHED ON SUNDAY IN THIS CITY OR THE UNITED STATES—WITHOUT ANY EXCEPTION. All moneys for advertisements in the SUNDAY WORLD will be refunded if, upon fair test and comparison with other journals, this GUARANTEE is not verified.

THE MASTODON OF JOURNALISM.

The greatest edition of a daily paper ever published was that of the Sunday WORLD of Sunday, December 13, 1885. It consisted of 225,180 copies of a 32-page paper, equal to 900,720 8-page papers, or 1,801,440 copies of the regular edition of the Sun. The type-setting alone on this edition cost $920, and the amount of white paper used was 97,687 pounds, or nearly 48 tons. The advertising filled 173 columns, representing in quantity three complete 8-page papers of THE WORLD size and a fraction over, or 29 columns more than the total space of the Herald of that day. The white paper consumed, if laid in a continuous strip, would reach a distance of 1,250 miles, or from New York to the town of Union, Nebraska, as the crow flies. The edition as it came folded from the presses—each page folded once—would make a pile 3,375 feet high. Some idea of the amazing magnitude of this mountain of paper may be gathered from the statement that it would overtop the Bartholdi Statue of Liberty, the Washington Monument, the Cologne Cathedral, the Pyramid of Cheops, St. Peter's in Rome, St. Paul's in London, Notre Dame in Paris, Bunker Hill Monument and the old Trinity in New York, all piled one on top of another. This, of course, was a special edition but it showed what THE WORLD can do when it tries.

HOW THE WORLD IS MADE.

The main offices of THE WORLD occupy the 5-story brick and iron building at Nos. 31 and 32 Park Row. There are also branch offices up town and in Brooklyn, Jersey City and Washington. In May, 1883, THE WORLD'S establishment was but meagrely equipped in all its departments. It now has the best machines and appliances of all descriptions that money can procure or ingenuity devise. As regards present capacity to do a phenomenal amount of work promptly, accurately and admirably, it can confidently challenge comparison with any newspaper that civilization has known. Regardless of expense or exertion, every modern improvement, every practical contrivance that tends to promote its efficiency in the service of the public, has been adopted. Its composing-room is equal to all emergencies, its stereotyping department has availed itself of the latest developments in that art, and in its press-room are planted machines of the latest pattern that can produce 120,000 8-page papers every sixty minutes. THE WORLD has endeavored to meet the public want, convenience and approval at all points, not only in the freshness and reliability of its news and in the vigor and candor of its editorials, but also in everything appertaining to its manufacture, in the receipt and classification of its advertisements, and in its efforts to promptly place its pages before all readers far and near.

THE MAIN COMPOSING ROOM.

Every night in the year the topmost story of THE WORLD Building is ablaze with hundreds of incandescent electric lights. Here are the eyries of the editors and reporters, the compositors and proof-readers of a metropolitan newspaper that never sleeps. To the desks in these elevated quarters, by cable and wire and mail and messenger, comes the news of the day and night, gathered by innumerable agents in every land with untiring enterprise, thoroughness and fidelity. It has been said of the London newspapers that they give the news of every city in the world except London. It is the policy of the NEW YORK WORLD to give liberal space to the happenings of New York. Every possible source of local news is watched by its vigilant reporters at all hours, and in addition to the regularly assigned men there is a small army of reporters on duty at the office, ready at any moment to go wherever sent by the city editor. For Brooklyn and Jersey City a distinct staff is provided, and in every other city, town and hamlet around New York are stationed THE WORLD'S alert representatives.

In the matter of telegraphic news and mail correspondence the same thoroughness of system prevails. Washington has its special bureau with a private wire direct to the office in Park Row. An experienced member of the regular staff watches the proceedings at Albany. The news-gathering of the Associated Press, with its vast army of agents throughout the United States and its many and ramified arrangements with Reuter's and other European news agencies, is supplemented by the work of a thoroughly organized corps of special correspondents. There are at present nearly 500 such correspondents on THE WORLD's list, and they are for the most part picked men of exceptional experience and ability, acting under explicit instructions from the managing editor in New York, with whom they are in constant consultation by mail or telegraph. As a matter of course, this system costs a great deal of money. The monthly bills for correspondence, telegraph and cable tolls amount to a comfortable little fortune. But whatever the attendant expense, THE WORLD aims to present the best news in its best form at the earliest possible moment.

THE MAKE-UP AND COMPOSING ROOM.

The phenomenal growth of THE WORLD has necessitated repeated enlargements in every department. The composing-room, now extended into the adjoining building, employs over one hundred regular compositors and fifty or sixty substitutes, whereas formerly but thirty-eight regular compositors and some twenty substitutes were required. In an emergency, this large force, by judicious sub-division of the work, can convert the columns of manuscript into columns of lead in a very few minutes. The amount of type formerly in the cases of THE WORLD composing-room was about three tons. Now it is necessary to have over seven and a half tons on hand. Roughly estimated, this comprises nearly 14,000,000 pieces of metal. In the proof room, which is a branch of the composing-room, 13 men are employed. The pay-roll of the department, which sometimes comprises 170 names, amounts to $3,100 or $3,200 per week.

Among the features which have marked the radical journalistic revolution inaugurated by THE WORLD, and still in progress, is the utilization of the artist's pencil in the daily delineation of men and events. Formerly the weather charts and an occasional mysterious war map were the only illustrations which the reading public had come to expect in the columns of the recognized leaders of the metropolitan press. THE WORLD was the first to demonstrate the feasibility and adaptation of the photo-engraving process to the requirements of morning journalism in New York. It developed the art and gave the public a decided novelty. For a time all of the other papers held out against the innovation, but latterly most of them have to a greater or less extent followed the example of THE WORLD. But no other morning paper in existence maintains under its own roof, as does THE WORLD, a distinctive art department, comprising an artist's studio, a photographer's gallery and a complete photo-engraving department equipped with every known appliance to facilitate and improve the work. In addition to its own competent corps of artists, photographers and engravers, THE WORLD frequently calls to its assistance some of the best-known artists of the city. A few years since, four or five days were required to prepare a cut for the press. With its present facilities, THE WORLD is enabled to accomplish this work within two hours. A great conflagration, a terrible accident, or other event, occurring late in the evening, can be fully and faithfully illustrated in the next morning's paper. That the process is constantly undergoing improvements, the illustrations in THE WORLD from week to week abundantly evince. Considering the unavoidable limitations, the hurried execution, the rapid presses and the paper used, the results which have been attained by THE WORLD in this direction are certainly remarkable.

The motive power of THE WORLD'S establishment is at present furnished by three large engines. The presses are run by two seventy-five horse-power Corliss engine, located in the rear of the press-room. In the sub-cellar a sixty horse-power automatic engine of the New York Safety Steam Power Company's make supplies the power for the stereotyping department, the dynamo and the wetting machines. The arrangement of the three engines with connecting shafts is such that should an accident occur to either of them, the others could do its work. The Edison electric light is supplied by the dynamo throughout the entire building, about four hundred and fifty lamps being used. The advantages of electricity as an illuminator in a newspaper office are very great. It is steadier, softer, and more agreeable than gas to the eyes of the compositors, and does not so heat and vitiate the atmosphere.

When the "forms" or pages of THE WORLD, having been finally corrected, are made up in the composing-room, they are sent down to the stereotyping department in the basement. THE WORLD'S stereotyping-room is thoroughly equipped with the most modern appliances known to the art, and is one of the most efficient departments of the kind on either side of the Atlantic. Its record, as will be appreciated by all practical stereotypers, is in various respects unequalled. By means of steam presses an impression of the type is first taken upon a prepared paper called the "matrix." The "forms" are then sent up-stairs, no printing whatever being done from the type. The matrix is placed in the casting-box, which is semi-circular, and the hot metal poured in. The semi-cylindrical plate is then cooled, trimmed, and made ready for the press. THE WORLD averages about 150 plates per night, but on Saturday nights requires 262 plates. A year ago not more than a third of this number were made. If necessary, ten plates can be turned out from one mold in seventeen minutes. The fastest record yet made by THE WORLD in this particular is thirteen minutes for six plates. This time has not been surpassed anywhere. But it is not an exceptional achievement in THE WORLD'S basement, having been accomplished a number of times. About 89,000 pounds of stereotyping metal are handled every week. The new process of stereotyping, called the sand or cold process, by which method the matrix can be dried without heating the type, is also being given a practical trial. By this process the type will last three times as long as under the old system, and, besides, there is a saving of some three minutes on each "form."

In the subterranean part of THE WORLD Building, beneath the press and stereotyping cellar, is the paper warehouse, filled throughout its long recesses with spools of paper. These spools are such as only giants could play with, their weight varying from 700 to 1,800 pounds. The supply for only a few issues can be kept on hand, and each day great lumbering trucks wheel up to the cellar, ways and deposit from thirty to forty spools. Ordinarily some twenty single rolls and six long rolls are used each night. For a Sunday edition about 114 rolls are required. Before the paper is ready for use, it must pass through the wetting-machines and be rewound upon the press-spools. In this work a special force of men is constantly employed.

When late at night the pavements of Park Row begin to tremble perceptibly, and there is a sense of conscious vibration in all parts of THE WORLD Building, it may be known that the steel monsters of the press-room are at work. As the hour for going to press draws near, the plates are sent out from the stereotyping-room and fitted to the cylinders, eight to the single presses and sixteen to the double presses. The ink-rollers have been prepared, and the great spools of paper hoisted into place. The leather belting begins to move. The shafting revolves. The lever is applied. The thrill of motion is felt throughout the wonderful mechanism. The web of paper is unrolled. Its edge is caught by the slowly-revolving cylinders. It passes in and out, above one cylinder and under another, at times in sight and then lost to view, and afterward reappears as one continuous strip of paper with eight pages printed on each side. By the cutting cylinders this is separated into four-page sheets, which are seen rushing in disjointed sections. The accelerating tapes give the increased speed necessary for the collection of these parts, which comprise the eight-page paper, and by a peculiar device, which operates almost as if possessed of intelligence, the inside and outside sheets are brought together in proper relative form. Then they are promptly caught by the folder, passed through the myriad fingers of this ingenious contrivance, until, having been cut and folded and registered, the paper is laid lightly down, a finished product. A few turns of the cylinders and the steady momentum of the press increases until, whirling faster and faster, the rollers spin round with wonderful velocity. The white ribbon of paper reels from the spool like a log-line, and the printed sheets drop out almost as softly and numerous as the grains of sand in a minute-glass. As the night draws on, the other presses are also supplied with plates, and finally throughout the entire press-room there is one unceasing, deafening whirl and rumble of machinery. What would seem to be confusion is but clock-like precision and order. Each man has his station and special duty; and the work goes on apace as if the entire press room and all its workmen were but parts of one great mechanism. Down the long lanes of groaning machines come the men with trucks and stacks of paper, a procession that never stops until the last copies are dropped from the folders. And so the work proceeds, the presses stopping only here and there for a fresh supply of paper or a change of plates, and in an incredibly short time the registering figures on the dials show that the required edition has been printed.

Two years since, THE WORLD'S press equipment consisted of two presses, with a total capacity of 20,000 per hour. Neither of these now remains, but in their stead are five single Hoe presses and one single Bullock press, each with a capacity of 12,000 per hour, and two double Hoe perfecting presses, the only ones ever constructed, equivalent to four single presses, with a capacity of 48,000 per hour. The equipment of presses at present, therefore, is practically ten machines, with a capacity of 120,000 eight-page papers per hour, or 2,880,000 eight-page papers in twenty-four hours. Five more Perfecting Presses have been ordered and are now in course of construction, making FIFTEEN presses, double the number contained in any other newspaper press-room in America. All of these machines are of the latest and most efficient pattern. One of the double Hoe perfecting presses, lately introduced, required four months to construct. It weighs 51,000 pounds, and is composed of 5,957 pieces of metal. The total cost of the machinery introduced to date by the present management of THE WORLD is about $247,134. From Jan. 1, 1885, to Jan. 1, 1886, over 130,000 pounds of ink were used on the presses.

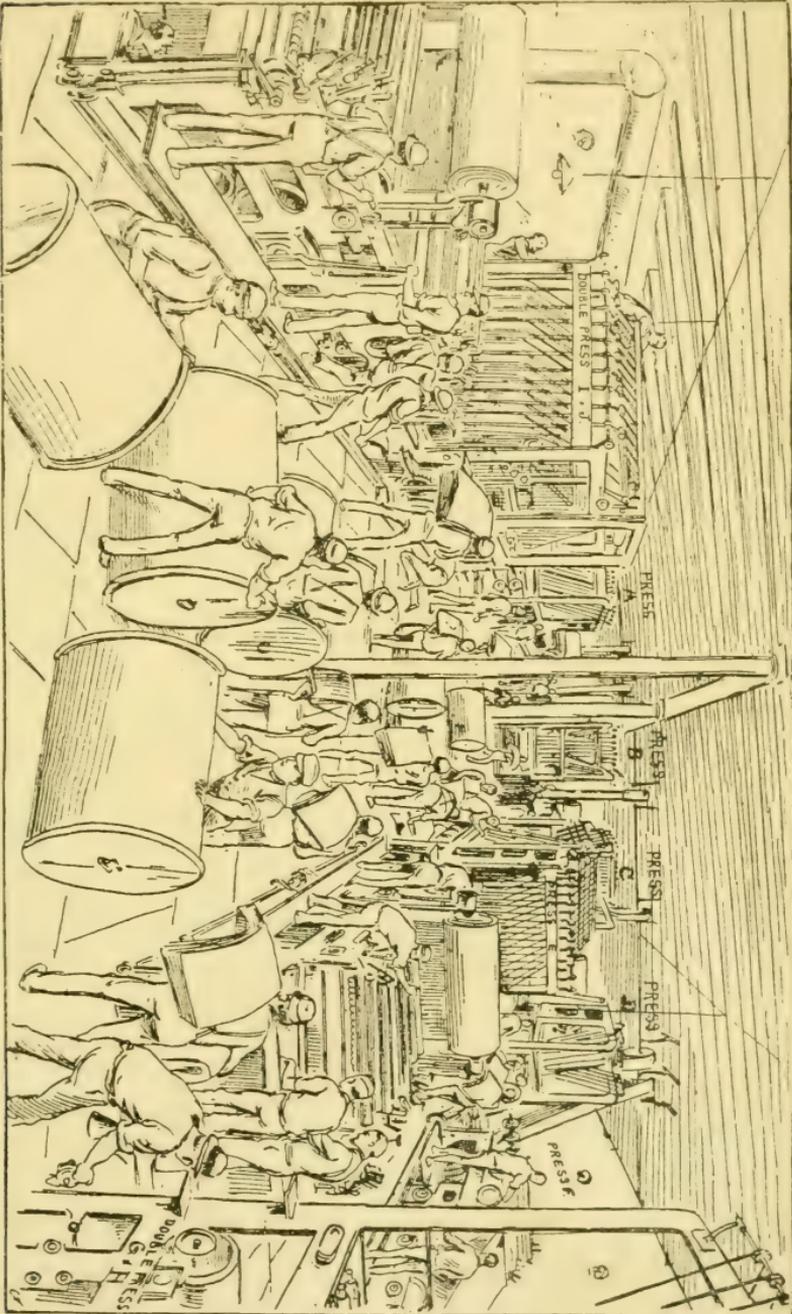

THE WETTING MACHINE.

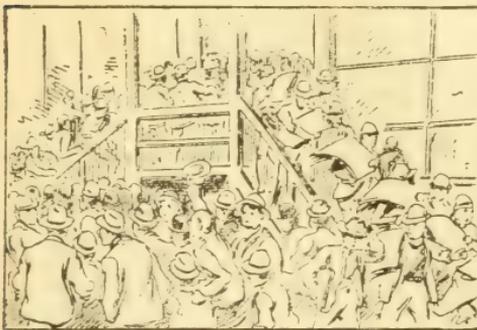

As the iron hands of the great presses pass out the papers, folded and counted, they are taken by three elevators to the mail and delivery-room. Formerly one old-fashioned elevator was sufficient for this work. Then a second was added. But it soon became apparent that they were unequal to the growing task. Some absolutely continuous motion was necessary to prevent the press-room from being choked with its own products. So the "trick" elevator, unlike any contrivance in use for this purpose elsewhere, was devised in THE WORLD office. By means of this arrangement the papers are taken to the delivery department rapidly and steadily, and are carried by a broad leather belt some twenty-five feet to the assorters and mailers. A force of twenty-four men and boys is at present employed in handling the editions in this department. The promptness and accuracy of the mailing and delivery of the vast editions of THE WORLD are due to a system thoroughly perfected in all its ramifications and details. Within a few hours the papers, still damp from the presses, not only find their way into every street, square and alley of this great city and its environs, but are traveling by fast mails in ten thousand directions to every section of this country and to the remotest points of the antipodes. The department has a composing-room of its own, where three compositors are regularly employed in printing the labels for the subscription lists of the daily, semi-weekly and weekly editions. These lists are corrected once a week, as new subscriptions come in and old subscriptions expire or are renewed. Proofs of the lists are always kept in the safety deposit vaults, in case the galleys should be destroyed by fire or otherwise. On each label is the name and address of the subscriber and the date of the expiration of the subscription. In addition, THE WORLD has a very extensive list of outside labels, as all papers going to any particular town or city in any part of the country are inclosed in a package with the appropriate directions thereon. By an ingenious contrivance, the labels may be pasted upon the papers by one man at the rate of 7,000 per hour. All these wrappers and labels are of course prepared in advance. The early mails leave New York from 3 A. M. until 5 A. M., and great dispatch is often necessary in order to make the connections. To avoid delay that would occur in the Post Office Department, THE WORLD makes up its own mail bags. Three wagons are required to transport these bags to the Post Office, though only a few rods away. They are not opened by the authorities, but after being weighed are sent immediately to the different stations. The larger part of the New York, Brooklyn and New Jersey editions of THE WORLD, however, is delivered from four separate delivery departments to the local news companies and newsboys. By midnight on Saturdays the enterprising little venders of the newspapers begin to gather in Theatre alley from all sections of the three cities. They crowd about the doorways and staircases, curl up in the passages or huddle together on the pavements, made warm by the furnaces underneath, and patiently await the hour of delivery. When the papers are ready there is an excited and tumultuous scramble for the delivery-window. Here the papers are passed out as fast as possible, being paid for by checks previously purchased at the office counter. The news companies and dealers from all parts of the city are also on hand with numerous great trucks and wagons, and into them as many papers are deposited as the horses can draw. Considering the number and bulk of the papers handled, nearly three-quarters of a million eight-page sheets, the mailing, distribution and delivery to innumerable destinations occupy but a short time.

A few hours later the denizen of New York or the suburbs comes leisurely down to his Sunday breakfast table and finds lying by his plate the Sunday morning WORLD, usually an immense sheet of twenty-four pages—a triumph of mechanical ingenuity, an epitome of civilization.

The fast Sunday trains deserve to be mentioned among THE WORLD'S notably successful enterprises. The first of these, known as the Boston train, was sent out at 2:37 on the morning of July 5, 1885, and ran through to Boston in the unprecedented time of 5 hours and 7 minutes, arriving there at 7:44 A. M., in time to enable the people of the Hub to enjoy the Sunday WORLD before the church bells ring. The distance to Boston is 229 miles, and the run was made in 307 minutes, including seven full stops and three slow downs. The time lost by stops and slow downs was 20 minutes, making the actual running time 278 minutes, or nearly 50 miles an hour. The train ran over the New York & New Haven and New York & New England roads, and consisted only of an engine and one car, which was loaded with papers. No passengers were carried, the only persons aboard being the train men and clerks sent out by THE WORLD to deliver the papers along the route. The time was afterward cut down to five hours. This train was discontinued September 13, 1885, because the business of THE WORLD at that time had outgrown its mechanical capacity, the new double perfecting press since brought into use not being then available.

WASHINGTON EXPRESS.

The success of the Boston train opened a new era of newspaper enterprise. What had been done for Boston could be done for other cities, and so THE WORLD's special Washington express was established. Its record of fast time surpasses even that of the Boston train, and has very rarely been equaled in railroad annals. On each successive Sunday President Cleveland and his Cabinet, and other residents of the Capital, now find the Sunday WORLD beside their plates when they come down to breakfast, while at the same time the people of Philadelphia, Chester, Wilmington, Baltimore and other cities along the line and on connecting roads are also served.

A NIGHT SCENE IN THE DELIVERY ROOM.

How this is accomplished may be briefly told. The regular Washington express on the Pennsylvania road pulls out from the depot in Jersey City at 12:15 on Sunday morning. The distance is 228 miles, and the train is due in Washington at 8 A. M. Attached to the train is an empty car, to be loaded with WORLDS later on. While this train is pulling out, the 120 compositors and printers on the top floor of THE WORLD office are still busy setting type and making up the last pages of the paper. An hour later the forms are sent down stairs, and in an incredibly short space of time the necessary stereotyping has been done, the plates are on the presses, and the thunder of the great machines begins. WORLDS, printed, cut and folded, pour in a stream from the presses. An army of men and boys gather them up, tie them into bundles of 500 each, and load them into wagons standing ready at the door. The heavily loaded teams dash through the street on a gallop to the ferry-boat. In the Pennsylvania depot the fastest engine on the road is ready, with a car attached, and with no loss of time the great bundles of paper are transferred to the car. It is now 2:26 A. M. "Catch the Washington Express," rings out the order to the engineer, and THE WORLD'S special Sunday train dashes away. What time it makes! Fifty, sixty, seventy miles an hour! The telegraph poles look like the teeth of a comb as the engine fairly flies over the track. In the car the clerks are busy, and as the train dashes past each city and town great bales of WORLDS are thrown out. The dealers stand ready to receive them, and soon the boys are on the street selling the Sunday WORLD. The Washington express is usually overtaken at Philadelphia, and in the depot there the papers are transferred to the empty car already mentioned, and are soon on their way to Washington,

HOW THE WORLD RAISED $100,000.

The raising of $100,000 by THE WORLD for the completion of the pedestal of the Bartholdi Statue of Liberty has been recognized as one of the great achievements of modern journalism. Directly after the change of proprietorship in May, 1883, THE WORLD called attention to the shameful spectacle presented by the people of the United States in their neglect of the gift of France, and made an appeal for funds for the work on the pedestal. But the response was feeble, less than $100 being received. The effort was for the time abandoned. THE WORLD was not then what it has since become. During the next two years the American Committee exhausted every endeavor to raise the necessary funds. They finally appealed to Congress, and on patriotic grounds asked for an appropriation of $100,000. It was confidently believed that their prayer would be granted, but at the last moment the item was struck from the appropriation bill, and Congress adjourned on March 4, 1885, leaving the committee without a dollar. Meanwhile, word had come from France that it was intended to send the Statue of Liberty to America during the Summer of 1885. Hon. William M. Evarts, Chairman of the Committee, issued an address to the public, in which he was obliged to make the humiliating confession that unless funds were at once supplied for the resumption of the work on the pedestal, the Statue would have to be returned. It was at this desperate juncture that THE WORLD determined to make one last and earnest effort to save the nation's honor by making good, through popular subscription, the $100,000 Congress had failed to appropriate. On Monday, March 16, there appeared on the first page an article giving all the facts as to the condition and needs of the pedestal. On the editorial page was an appeal to the public. This call for $100,000 was made under many unfavorable circumstances. The repeated failures of the Committee to raise the funds, and the unwillingness of Congress to come to its relief, had created a feeling of positive aversion and indifference. Business was dull, and there was universal complaint of hard times. Hence it was that THE WORLD'S appeal was received with an incredulous smile. There were probably not ten people in America who believed that the $100,000 asked for could be obtained. THE WORLD had at that time a daily circulation of 100,000. This meant that it was read by 500,000 people every day. It had led the movement that had put a Democratic President into the White House. It had the prestige of success, the confidence of the people, and an ever-widening influence. Hence when it made an appeal for the Statue of Liberty, there was at least respectful heed given by thousands and thousands of its half million readers. Responses began to come in at once, and how the fund grew from day to day is well known to the public. The first call was published on March 16, and the completion of the fund was announced on the 11th of the following August. There have been larger sums raised by general subscription in the United States, but never before has a single agency, newspaper or anything else, raised so large a sum from so many people in so short a time. It was the design of THE WORLD to make the subscription a thoroughly popular one. Anything from a penny up was received, and when the fund was completed, 120,000 persons had the honor of being contributors. Fully $80,000 of the entire amount was made up by persons who gave less than one dollar each.

THE WORLD'S PLAY-GROUND.

THE WORLD'S play-ground was another enterprise that met with much popular favor and success. For two years the working-boys of New York had been appealing to the public for a play-ground, where they might play ball on Sunday, their only day of leisure, without the interference of the police. THE WORLD believed that their appeal was a just and reasonable one, that a day spent in healthful and innocent games in the country was better in all respects than a day in the city streets. It therefore undertook to supply the demand. A large field was secured at Shady Side, New Jersey, opposite Ninety-third street, and 25 diamonds laid out upon it. Arrangements were made with the Fort Lee Steamboat Co. to transport the boys to and from the play-ground for ten cents. On the opening day, Sunday, May 31, 1885, some 800 happy youngsters were on the grounds. On the second Sunday 1,200 boys made their appearance, and another field had to be opened. The attendance on the Fourth of July was 2,400, and three fields and nearly 50 diamonds were in use. Bats and balls by the score were presented to the boys, and medals offered for competition. During the greater part of the summer, sixteen uniformed clubs were to be seen every Sunday upon the grounds. During the season there were thousands of spectators, including Gov. Leon Abbett and other distinguished gentlemen. So successful was the enterprise in all respects, that THE WORLD has determined to give the boys another chance next summer, and will open the Play-ground earlier in the season.

Still another of THE WORLD enterprises, and one that promises to be very successful, is THE WORLD Literary Union, an organization of subscribers to THE WORLD which enables its members to purchase any books they may desire at publishers' wholesale prices. THE WORLD maintains the organization, and transacts its business, free of all expense to the members, whose only qualification is that they must be subscribers to THE WORLD, registered on the mailing books in the New York office. The Union was started and is maintained solely for the benefit of THE WORLD'S subscribers. Every member of the Union becomes at once, by virtue of his membership, a wholesale dealer in books, entitled to wholesale prices, trade discounts, and all the other privileges of his class. The advantages of this arrangement will not be lost on THE WORLD'S multitude of readers.

THE WEEKLY WORLD.

The weekly edition of THE WORLD contains the cream of the daily and much interesting and valuable matter besides. The salient events of the week are fully presented, so arranged that the reader is afforded a comprehensive view of all important news at home and abroad. No space is wasted upon the dry bones and dust of news, but every line is of interest. The best of THE WORLD'S cablegrams and dispatches are carefully selected for the columns of the weekly. Special attention is given to the news of New York State and the happenings of general interest in the metropolis. The proceedings of the Legislature at Albany and of the houses of Congress at Washington are presented in a condensed summary as a matter of record, supplemented by more detailed accounts of political events of special prominence. Space is also reserved for the most attractive of the descriptive and illustrated articles, which have become so popular a feature of the daily. The editorial page of the weekly is made up of the best leaders and editorial paragraphs of the preceding seven days.

Special effort is made that THE WEEKLY WORLD shall be peculiarly adapted to the interests of the family and the farm, and to this end numerous departments, touching agriculture, veterinary matters, housekeeping, fruit culture, bee culture, etc., etc., are introduced. The agricultural department numbers among its contributors very many of the leading investigators of agricultural problems. It has a correspondent at each of the State experimental farms, and the latest developments and discoveries are promptly described. The veterinary department is under the charge of a competent veterinary surgeon, and every subscriber is entitled free of charge to advice as to the treatment of all animals, from canary birds to whales. The housekeepers' department is a thoroughly practical one, being largely a record of experience, as contributed by hundreds of correspondents. The Young Folks have a special corner for riddles, charades, and fairy stories of the old-fashioned kind, while the Old Folks have a corner where chess and checker problems are solved, and all sorts of arithmetical nuts are cracked. Another popular feature is the correspondents' columns, where requests for information are answered. The fiction page of the weekly is devoted to bright, fresh and unobjectionable stories, frequently illustrated, supplemented by collections of current anecdotes, wise and witty sayings, and the gems of contemporary poetry. In addition to these departments, numerous other interesting features are introduced from time to time.

The subscription price of THE WEEKLY WORLD is one dollar per year. An agent is desired in every township of the country, and exceptionally liberal commissions are offered. Subscribers are entitled to various privileges and advantages of far more value in themselves than the price of the subscription. Among these is membership in THE WORLD'S Literary Union, the conditions of which are set forth on another page. The list of premiums presented by THE WEEKLY WORLD, and published in its columns, will well repay perusal.

The circulation of this edition of THE WORLD is steadily and rapidly increasing. Its subscribers may be found all over the globe where the English language is spoken. It is read on Alaska's shore and in far Cathay, in the South Seas, in Borneo, in Kaffirland and many other remote countries. Its circulation in many States and Territories of the Union exceeds that of the local papers.

As this little book shows, the success of THE WORLD is proved by the logic of figures. THE WORLD is proud of that success. Within two years and seven months its circulation has grown from 15,000 to over 150,000 on week-days and over 200,000 on Sundays, and its advertising has kept step in the onward march. This remarkable progress has been made in the face of serious obstacles. Mechanical difficulties stood in the way of the rapidity of growth. The press facilities were inadequate to meet the steadily growing demand for the paper. The press-room required enlargement before new presses and new engines could be set to work. The new proprietor and editor, almost a stranger in New York, unfamiliar with the local interests of the city, had to cope with the oldest, the most experienced and the ablest journalists of the metropolis. He had to encounter the determined opposition of long-established newspapers which cut down their prices in the hope of thereby checking the new WORLD's rapid and remarkable advance.

Yet despite these drawbacks and contentions, THE WORLD has risen from the smallest circulation of any morning daily in the city to the largest now or ever enjoyed by any American daily journal.

To what is this great success due? To the fact that THE WORLD is a cheap paper? No; for older journals were as cheap, or made themselves as cheap, and some are even cheaper, without reaching the same results. To the fact that it publishes all the news? No; for other journals publish as much or nearly as much news as THE WORLD, and yet are left behind in the race.

It is because it can reproduce the promises made to the public two years and a half ago, with the proud consciousness that it has fully and faithfully lived up to their spirit and their letter.

It is because for two years and a half it has given the people a journal "not only cheap but bright, not only bright but large, not only large but truly Democratic—dedicated to the cause of the people rather than that of purse-potentes—devoted more to the news of the New than of the Old World—a journal that has exposed all fraud and sham, fought all public evils and abuses, and served and battled for the people with earnest sincerity."

New York, Feb. 27, 1886. }

To the New York World:

GENTLEMEN—Observing some statements about your circulation in which we are immediately interested, we take the liberty of volunteering the following letter, which we trust you may publish:

The following is a statement, taken from the books of this firm, of the amount of white paper supplied to THE N. Y. WORLD in the months of January, 1885 and 1886. Under our arrangement it is impossible for us to have our regular monthly settlement for the white paper used by THE WORLD without knowing exactly every sheet of paper printed in your office. In fact, we are paid by the number of sheets used rather than the weight of the paper. Thus we must have full access, day and night, to your press-room and all your books relating to paper and circulation. As a matter of fact, we keep some of our employees, paid by us, permanently in your press-room.

THE BUFFALO COMMERCIAL ADVERTISER.

The infancy of the little weekly from which THE BUFFALO COMMERCIAL ADVERTISER has developed, received a baptism of fire. In 1812, gallant Amos Hall, after a vain attempt to resist the British officer Riall, with his whites and Indians, was compelled to withdraw from Black Rock (now a part of Buffalo) and leave the village of Buffalo to almost total destruction from the torch of the invader. At about that date a modest little weekly made its appearance and joined the legion of struggling, but ambitious and determined newspaper ventures. One house only was left standing after the burning of Buffalo. Around that one house has grown one of the largest cities in the United States. On the site marked by the blackened ruins in 1812, and in place of the smoking homes of the then prostrated village there stands a city of nearly 250,000 inhabitants; a city with 350 miles of streets; with a beautiful and expensive park system; with spacious warehouses, prosperous manufactories, palatial residences and valuable public libraries; a city that is one of the most famous depots in the world for the reception and storing of grain; a city the scene of a coal-receiving and coal-handling industry equal in importance to any in the country; a city that is the converging point for nearly a dozen railways, comprising the greatest trunk lines in the marvelous American railway system.

Keeping pace with the growth and prosperity of the city of its birth, THE COMMERCIAL has grown from the diminutive weekly publication to be the largest evening newspaper in the United States. When Buffalo entered upon its new career THE COMMERCIAL counted its readers by the hundred; it has now a daily circulation of over 11,000. THE COMMERCIAL could hardly find shelter for its type and room for its press in the trying and perilous days of 1812; it is now published in the handsomest and best-arranged fire-proof building, used exclusively for the business of a single newspaper, to be found between New York and Chicago. Seventy-five years ago the little old-fashioned hand-press was adequate for the demand made upon it by the Weekly's limited circulation; THE COMMERCIAL, with its three regular editions, is now issued from one of R. Hoe & Co.'s latest improved web-perfecting presses, with a capacity for printing—direct from the type—and folding 12,000 sheets to the hour.

With its iron tentacles Buffalo draws to its centre the trade from the rich and thriving counties of Western New York and Western Pennsylvania. THE COMMERCIAL ADVERTISER has the largest honest circulation of any newspaper in that section of the country. It has a larger circulation than any two of the morning dailies of Buffalo combined. It lets its advertisers know what they are paying for, by publishing every month a detailed statement of every day's circulation. THE COMMERCIAL is widely circulated in the splendid farming country of the "Southern Tier," throughout the flourishing agricultural communities on the shores of Lake Erie and of Lake Ontario, and in the great oil-producing regions of the Keystone State. There is no better advertising medium in this vast prosperous and thickly-populated territory.

It is no extravagant prediction that Buffalo is destined to add yearly to her prestige and influence as one of the largest and most important commercial points on the chain of the great lakes; and with the future, as with the past, growth, enterprise and prosperity of this great city THE BUFFALO COMMERCIAL ADVERTISER is honorably and inseparably identified.

DEMOREST'S MONTHLY MAGAZINE.

It is not uncommon, with our ever-changing and rapid additions to population, that new and enterprising tradesmen are asking for information respecting many of our well-known and popular publications. To satisfy this reasonable demand is both a pleasure and a duty, and publishers are affording every facility to the public to acquaint itself fully with the merits of their respective publications.

DEMOREST'S ILLUSTRATED MONTHLY was started twenty-one years ago, and has enjoyed an unexampled career of prosperity. No household periodical has ever been received with such favor by the public as this publication, and few have succeeded in retaining it so long. To-day it stands at the very head of all similar periodicals—a truly model magazine—unsurpassed in its literary, artistic and household attractions. In its typographical execution it is excelled by none, and the printing establishment of this publication—J. J. Little & Co., owned jointly by Mr. Demorest and Mr. Little—has recently produced the mammoth edition of the “Memoirs of General Grant.”

Under the auspices of W. Jennings Demorest, Mme. Demorest and “Jennie June” (Mrs. Croly), and an able corps of assistants, DEMOREST'S MONTHLY has attained its present popularity. Pre-eminently a household magazine, its literature is of the most pure and elevating character. It makes the household its special object, and all its efforts tend to beautify, ennoble and elevate the homes of America. The best literary and artistic talent is employed to aid in the successful development of this object.

The Literary Department is filled by the most popular European and American writers. Special articles on Household Decorations, Art Needlework and Drawing and Painting, are contributed by well-known writers on these subjects. The department known as “Current Notes” is conducted by an able journalist, and greatly enhances the value of the magazine.

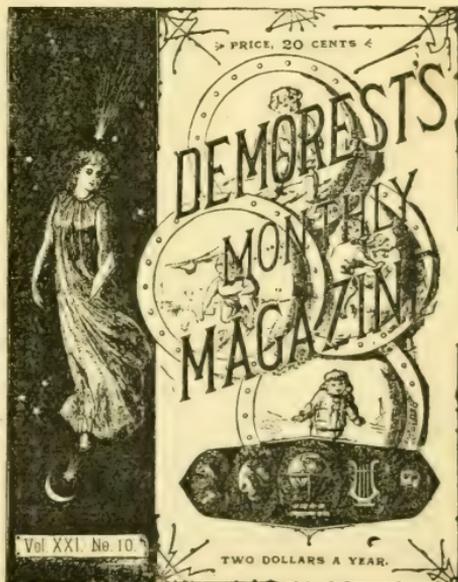

The Prohibition Movement also claims attention as one of the most important and live moral issues of the day.

The illustrations are numerous, and the very best that can be procured. Fine steel engravings, etchings, photo-gravures and oil pictures, reproduced from the noted works of ancient and modern masters, are given in every number, and form quite a valuable art gallery.

The Fashion Department is unrivaled, the house having long been an authority on all matters that pertain to dress. Valuable information is given in every number on the prevailing modes, and various suggestions of great utility.

The wonderful success of DEMOREST'S MAGAZINE proves that it fills a want. It is the most complete publication of the kind in the country, embracing every department likely to interest the home circle. Its circulation is over fifty thousand, and in its limited space for advertisements, none but the best are admitted. No medical, blind, or fraudulent dealers can have a place. The utility in the household of this magazine is unquestioned; and its ever-increasing prosperity is a most gratifying evidence of its entire adaptation to the homes of America. The price, $2.00 a year, places it within the reach of many whose limited means do not afford a higher-priced publication; and a goodly number of our wealthy citizens, too, find in its pages both pleasure and profit.

The publisher, W. Jennings Demorest, has issued a handsome forty-two page circular, entitled “All the Points; Information for Advertisers,” which can be had on application to him or to the publishers of the American Newspaper Directory.

TEXAS SIFTINGS.

One of the most striking and interesting features in the records of American journalism is the remarkable and almost phenomenal success of TEXAS SIFTINGS. Beginning its career in Austin, Texas, May 9th, 1881, it attained a circulation exceeding five thousand during the first month of its existence, and its popularity with the American people was fully attested from its inception, the first year showing a rapid and unprecedented advance in its sales and subscriptions, at the close of which a circulation of over twenty thousand was reached. The fallacy of the old belief that no Southern or Western paper or magazine could reach Eastern readers or attain a national circulation is fully demonstrated in the history of TEXAS SIFTINGS. Its circulation was more than doubled during the second year, at the close of which 44,000 was recorded. The third year showed an addition of twenty thousand, the circulation then being in excess of 60,000, and now at the close of its fifth year the Hundred Thousand mark has been reached, and the sixth volume is begun with its circulation in six figures. The steady growth and progress of the paper is made manifest by the following statement of its circulation taken from the books of the company for the year ending Dec. 26, 1885, showing

Total.....4,550,655

The total number of copies printed in the entire year, when divided by 52, the number of issues, shows the weekly average to have been 87,512 copies.

The statement from the company's books on March 13, 1886, shows an average increase in circulation of nearly seven hundred copies per week for the eleven weeks from December 26, 1885, to March 13, 1886. The circulation at that time being 101,273 Copies. It may be interesting to note some of the prominent features of TEXAS SIFTINGS, which contributed in placing it on such a firm footing before the people of this country.

Its proprietors being convinced, from the experience of others, that the public soon become tired of one style of humor, and that one man cannot continue to be humorously interesting forever, have introduced new departments and new features into the paper from week to week, until the public realized the fact that there was always something new, bright and entertaining to be found in the columns of TEXAS SIFTINGS. Many humorous papers have lived and died, or drifted into obscurity since SIFTINGS made its debut. Many of them started out under flattering auspices, but declined and were lost as they failed to retain their hold upon the public. The public did not tire of the papers. They were not tired of the Grandbury News, but of the work of its editor, which filled its columns. They did not become weary of the Bowlington Eagle-eye—they were surfeited with the one-string tune—and so with others. They were one man papers. The editor and his paper were so closely identified that they were inseparable. TEXAS SIFTINGS is not a one-man paper. It plays more than one tune. It is an instrument of many strings—only a portion of its space is devoted to humorous matter, and the remainder is filled with the best literary material that the brightest, ablest and best writers America can produce. It has a large staff of writers, and is in the market for the best humorous and literary production of the times.

What is TEXAS SIFTINGS ?

TEXAS SIFTINGS is an apostle of progress.

TEXAS SIFTINGS is a moral force in the land.

TEXAS SIFTINGS is always on the side of law and order. The editorials in TEXAS SIFTINGS are strong and forcible.

TEXAS SIFTINGS advocates the merits of no party in politics, but fearlessly criticises the acts of public men ; denouncing what it believes to be wrong, and commending what is for the public good. Its cleanness of language and purity of tone and the value of its literary matter has made TEXAS SIFTINGS a household favorite. TEXAS SIFTINGS is probably the best-known paper in the United States. It is certainly the most popular, humorous and literary paper in the world, and its witty paragraphs and humorous sketches are more widely quoted by the press of the country than those of any other paper. In the matter of its original humor it has the reputation of being the leading paper in the United States. Its literary excellence is acknowledged by all. It contains during the year not less than 1,000 original illustrations, consisting of political cartoons, comic sketches, etc., designed especially for SIFTINGS by some of the best caricature artists in America.

WHO READS TEXAS SIFTINGS ?

Business men read SIFTINGS because it is an earnest and progressive paper that uses few words to say a great deal.

Professional men read SIFTINGS because in it they find valuable information relating to their specialties.

Politicians read SIFTINGS because it uses the scalpel of its wit to lay bare the follies and frauds of all parties.

Women read SIFTINGS because it devotes six columns of its space to matters that peculiarly interest them—Fashions, Cooking, Painting, Household, Medicines, etc, etc.

Boys and girls read SIFTINGS because it not only instructs but amuses.

All classes read SIFTINGS because besides being pure in tone and clean in language, it is the most original and unique paper in America.

Its advertising department is in charge of Mr. W. T. Hardenbrook, a capable manager and one of large experience in publication and management of leading journals.

The advertising rates of SIFTINGS are as low, circulation considered, as those of any other first-class journal, and money invested in its advertising columns always yields good returns, and is a profitable investment. The circulation of TEXAS SIFTINGS is always accurately stated, and the figures given are absolutely correct, and all advertising contracts may be based on them. TEXAS SIFTINGS has the largest circulation of any paper of its class in the United States. By circulation we mean actual bona-fide paid-up circulation. We do not include any specimen copies or spasmodic free distribution of a hundred thousand copies at intervals, but a circulation that is genuine. TEXAS SIFTINGS' circulation is composed of those who subscribe and pay for the paper, and when the time for which they have subscribed has expired, their names are stricken from the lists. Its circulation is not of that half-and-half sort, where the paper is continued forever, and is not stopped at the end of the time paid for. Should such a policy be adopted, TEXAS SIFTINGS' circulation would soon run into the millions. Advertisers who desire to reach an intelligent class of readers who have means to buy what they want, should use the advertising columns of TEXAS SIFTINGS.

THE OMAHA BEE.

THE OMAHA BEE, established in 1871, by Edward Rosewater, is acknowledged to be the leading newspaper in the vast stretch of country between Chicago and San Francisco. It is an independent anti-monopoly Republican paper, and from the day of its birth it has been the consistent foe of aggressive monopoly, and the steadfast friend and advocate of the farmer, the shipper, the wage-worker, and the oppressed of every class. Its growth has been steady and substantial, until now it is metropolitan in every respect. The BEE is an eight-page paper, seven columns to the page. Two editions, morning and evening, are published every day except Sunday. In addition to the regular associated press-report, the BEE receives more special dispatches than all the other papers in Nebraska combined. It maintains special correspondents in Washington, New York, Chicago, and Des Moines, and other important news centres, and branch offices at Council Bluffs, Iowa, and Lincoln, the capital of Nebraska. In these two last-named cities the BEE has a large circulation, delivered by carriers. In every important town and village of Nebraska and Western Iowa special correspondents are employed. No paper in the United States covers its tributary territory more thoroughly than THE OMAHA BEE. No expense is spared to make it a newspaper in every sense of the word. Its editorial staff consists of thirteen trained newspaper men, the editor-in-chief being Edward Rosewater, who is also president of THE BEE PUBLISHING COMPANY.

THE BEE has recently been supplied with an entirely new equipment at an expense of nearly $25,000, while improvements in the building have been made to the extent of $10,000 more. The new press is a Scott web-perfecting machine, with a capacity of 15,000 complete eight-page papers per hour, or 30,000 four-page supplements per hour. A double cylinder Hoe press is kept on hand in case of accident. All the forms are stereotyped. The BEE is the only paper in Nebraska that has a perfecting press and uses the stereotyping process. The new dress of the paper consists of brevier, minion, nonpareil, and agate type.

The BEE building, Nos. 914 and 916 Farnam street, is a handsome and substantial four-story brick structure, with a front of Colorado red stone, St. Louis pressed brick and plate-glass. The press-room is located in the basement, and is fire-proof, the first floor, overhead, being constructed of iron beams and brick arches, overlaid with cement and marble tiling. The counting-room, occupying the front half of the first floor, is handsomely and conveniently arranged. The rear half of this floor is used as a mailing-room, in which the papers are wrapped and addressed with a patent mailing-machine. The composing-room is in the second story, as is also the stereotyping-rooms. The editorial-rooms occupy the third story, and are attractively equipped and supplied with all modern conveniences—telephones, electric enunciators, electric lights, telegraph office, and so on. With but very few exceptions, no more convenient editorial-rooms can be found anywhere in the United States. The fourth story is used for a general storage-room.

The city circulation and subscription department occupies a separate building adjoining on the east, in which are also located fire-proof vaults for the storage of the files of the paper and valuable documents. The basement of this building is used as a store-room for the "continuous roll" paper, used upon the perfecting press. The boiler-room is located in the rear of this last-mentioned building.

THE BEE PUBLISHING COMPANY confines itself strictly to the newspaper publishing business, and has no job office attachment or other side issue to distract its attention. The DAILY BEE has a circulation of very nearly 11,000. The sworn average circulation of the Daily during the month of December, 1885, was 10,449, which is larger than that of all other daily newspapers in Nebraska combined. The average circulation of the WEEKLY BEE for the six months ending December 31, 1885, was 27,932. Taking it all in all, the BEE has without doubt the best equipped newspaper office in the country between the Mississippi River and the Pacific Coast. The rapidly-increasing circulation of the BEE has necessitated the improvements described above. It is safe to say that no city of 65,000 people can boast of such a newspaper as THE OMAHA BEE.

THE TOLEDO BLADE.

SOME LITTLE ACCOUNT OF THE FOUNDER OF THE TOLEDO WEEKLY BLADE, WITH A HISTORY OF ITS RISE AND PROGRESS.

David Ross Locke was born in Vestal, Broome Co., New York, September 20, 1833. His father, Nathaniel Reede Locke, was a soldier in the war of 1812, and is now living near Toledo, Ohio, aged 92. The son came by his political and other notions honestly, as the father was a staunch anti-slavery man as far back as 1830, long before there was any organized opposition to the great curse. He was one of the very first in the organization of the Liberty party, and was among the first to join the Republican party when it was organized in 1853. He is a man of decided character, and even now, at the advanced age of 92, never misses an election or a prayer-meeting. He has been a zealous and consistent Methodist since his fifteenth year, and is probably the oldest member of that denomination living. It is needless to add that he has been all his life an ardent temperance man.

The son entered the printing office of the Democrat, at Cortland, New York, in his eleventh year, and did what very few boys are doing now, learned a trade thoroughly.

Then followed the regular period of "tramping," and in his wanderings he visited all the cities of the country, either as a journeyman printer, or reporter and writer upon newspapers. His experiences during this period of his life were like that of all others of the craft. He saved no money, indeed saving money was not his object. He was finishing his education. He saw men and mixed with them, and widened and broadened himself, that he might be fit for the work that was to follow. Traveling through the Southern States confirmed him in his anti-slavery sentiments, and a trip through what was then the West, determined him upon finally settling in that portion of the country. It must be remembered that Ohio in those days was a long way west.

In 1852 he left the Pittsburgh (Pa.) Chronicle, on which he had been employed, and went with Mr. James G. Robinson to Plymouth, Ohio, where the two, without capital or anything else but capacity for work, started the Plymouth Advertiser, a paper which is still in existence. This was about as desperate an enterprise as two young men could possibly have engaged in, but both wanted a start in life, and were prepared to do any amount of labor and take any and all chances. There had been a half dozen attempts to publish a paper in the brisk little village, but all had failed, the projectors invariably leaving in debt. The young men had $42 in cash between them, but it proved enough. They bought a second-hand outfit, did their own work, edited the paper, set the type, did the press-work, and everything else, and they soon got the confidence of the people. After two years of hard work, averaging sixteen hours a day, they sold out, with the magnificent sum of $1,000 between them. It was very little money, but it was everything to them. They had capital, and what was better than capital, credit. They made friends, and found no difficulty thereafter when they made a change, in bettering their condition.

Subsequently Mr. Locke became interested in the Mansfield Herald, the Bucyrus Journal, the Bellefontaine Republican, and the Findlay Jeffersonian, all of which he made successful.

It was in Findlay, Ohio, that he commenced the "Nasby" letters, which have since become known wherever the English language is spoken. The first was a satire upon the secession of South Carolina, and as a matter of curiosity we re-produce it. Wingert's Corners was a small hamlet in Crawford County, Ohio, which was intensely disloyal. The citizens of the little village and the county about were, almost to a man, secessionists, which made the dating at that point of the first letters of the long series, very proper.

WINGERT'S CORNERS SECEDES.

WINGERT'S CORNERS, March the 21st, 1861.

SOUTH CARLYN and several other uv the trooly Dimecratic States hev secesht—gone orf, I may say, onto a journey after ther rites.

Wingert's Corners, ez trooly Dimecratic ez any uv em, hez follered soot.

A meetin wuz held last nite, uv wich I wuz chairman, to take the matter uv our grievances in2 consideration, and it wuz finally resolved that nothin short uv seceshn wood remedy our woes. Therefore the follerin address, wich I rit, wuz adoptid and ordered to be publisht :

TO THE WORLD.

In takin a step wich may, possibly, involve the State uv wich we hev bin heretofore a part into blood and convulshuns, a decent respect for the good opinion uv the world requires us to give our reasons for takin that step.

Wingert's Corners hez too long submitted to the imperious dictates uv a tyrantik government. Our whole histry hez bin wun uv aggresshn on the part uv the State, and uv meek and pashent endoorence on ours.

It refoosed to locate the State Capitol at the Corners, to the great detriment uv our patriotic owners uv reel estate.

It refoosed to gravel the streets uv the Corners, or even re-lay the blank-road.

It refoosed to locate the Penitentiary at the Corners, notwithstanding we do more towards fillin it than any town in the State.

It refoosed to locate the State Fair at the Corners, blastin the hopes uv our patriotic groserys.

It located the canal 100 miles from the Corners.

We hev never hed a Guvner, notwithstanding the President uv this meetin hez lived here for yeers, a waitin to be urged to accept it.

It hez compelled us, yeer after yeer, to pay our share uv the taxes.

It hez never appinted any citizen uv the place to any offis wher theft wuz possible, thus wilfully keepin capital away from us.

It refoosed to either pay our rale-rode subscripshun or slackwater our river.

Therefore, not bein in humor to longer endoor such outrajes, we declare ourselves Free and Independent uv the State, and will maintain our position with arms, if need be.

There wuz a lively time next day. A company uv minit men wuz raised, and wun uv 2 minit men. The seceshn flag, muskrat rampant, weasel couchant, on a field d'egg-shell, waves from both groserys. Our merchant feels hopeful. Cut orf from the State, direct trade with the Black Swamp follers; releest from his indebtedness to Cinsinati, he will agin lift his head. Our representative hez agreed to resine—when his term expires.

We are in earnest. Armed with justice and shot-guns, we bid the tyrants defiance.

P. S.—The feelin is intense—the children hev imbibed it. A lad jest past, displayin the seceshn flag. It waved from behind. Disdainin concealment, the lion-hearted boy wore a roundabout. We are firm.

N. B.—We are still firm.

N. B., 2d.—We are firm, unyeeldin, calm, and resoolot.

PETROLEUM V. NASBY.

The second was written under these circumstances:

In 1861 the Democracy of Ohio were, or pretended to be, terribly exercised over the negro question. They asserted in the same breath:

1. That the negroes liberated by the armies of the Republic would come North in great masses and, as they would not labor when free, would be a tax upon the people as paupers.

2. That as the negroes would work cheaper than the whites, it would throw all the honest white laborers out of employment.

Therefore they petitioned the Legislature to pass laws preventing negroes from coming into the State, and also to provide for the removal of those already there.

And to make the matter entirely absurd, they employed to circulate this petition one Levi G. Flenner, a hanger-on of the Democratic party of the county, a man who never did a stroke of work in his life. The following is the letter bearing upon this curiously absurd action of a curiously absurd party. It required no especial talent to satirize such a movement. The names in the latter part of the letter, were those of colored men of property and standing, residents of Findlay, Ohio. Their financial and business standing in the community, was so immensely superior to that of the majority of the rabid secessionists who proposed to drive them out, that the satire did not need to be explained in that locality. One of them remarked to Flenner, the man who circulated the petition asking for their removal: "Look heah, Levi, ef yoah don't stop bodderin us niggahs, we'll make up a puss and buy out de Dimocrisy ob dis county and hab a little peece."

NEGRO EMIGRATION.

WINGERT'S CORNERS, April the 2d, 1862.

There is now 15 niggers, men, wimin, and childern, or rather, mail, femail, and jung, in Wingert's Corners, and yisterday another arrove. I am becomin alarmed, for, ef they inkreese at this rate, in suthin over sixty years they'll hev a majority in the town, and may, ef they git mean enuff, tyrannize over us, even ez we air tyrannizin over them. The danger is imminent! Alreddy our poor white inhabitants is out uv employment to make room for that nigger; even now our shops and factories is full uv that nigger, to the grate detriment uv a white inhabitant who hez a family 2 support, and our poor hows and jail is full uv him.

I imploar the peeple to wake up. Let us hold a mass meetin to take this subgik in2 considerashen, and, that biznis may be expeditid, I perpose the adopsen uv a series uv preamble and resolooshens, suthin like the follerin—to wit:

WAREAS, We vew with alarm the ackshun uv the Presydent uv the U. S., in recommendin the immejit emansipashun uv the slaves uv our misgidd Suthern brethrin, and his evident intenshun uv kolonizin on em in the north, and the heft on em in Wingert's Corners; and

WAREAS, In the event uv this imigrashun, our fellow-townsmen, Abstum Kitt, and others, whose familis depend upon their labor for support, wood be throte out of employment; and

WAREAS, When yoo giv a man a hoss, yoo air obleeged to also make him a present uv a silver-platid harnis and a $350 buggy, so ef we let the nigger live here, we are in dooty bound to let him vote, and to marry him off-hand; and

WAREAS, When this stait uv affares arrives our kentry will be no fit place 4 men uv educashen and refinement; and

PETROLEUM V. NASBY.

These letters sprang at once into an immediate popularity. They were read and commented upon from one end of the country to the other. Stump-speakers used them, newspaper editors and everybody else who had anything to do with politics, drew inspiration from them, and they became at once a part of the political literature of the day. Abraham Lincoln was so fond of reading them that he kept a pamphlet edition of them in his table drawer. George S. Boutwell, Secretary of the Treasury under Lincoln, said in a speech at Cooper Union, New York, at the close of the war, that the crushing of the Rebellion could be credited to three forces, the Army, Navy, and the Nasby Letters, and Charles Sumner thought so much of them that he asked the privilege of writing an introduction to a compilation of the series in a large volume. Mr. Blaine always quoted from them regularly, as did every man of note or no note in the Republican party.

They are quite as eagerly sought after now as ever. Though they have been written regularly for twenty-five years, they are not one whit less popular to-day than at the beginning.

The question is asked of the BLADE a thousand times a year as to the origin of the Nasby letters. It is a question very difficult to answer. Like Topsy, they "were never borned—they grew." They were based upon the natural condition of things at the time. There never was an actual living model for Nasby, nor any of the other characters surrounding him. Nasby was the representative of the whiskey-drinking, corner-grocery statesmen who have always infested the country, and who, doubtless, always will, till the millenium comes.

There never was any exaggeration in these portraitures. It is true that during the war wagon-loads of women made parts of processions at Democratic meetings with banners over them inscribed, "White husbands or none!" as though no matter whether the "nigger" was freed or kept in slavery, they had no option as to whether they would marry white or black men. It is true that the stock argument against the war was "nigger" supremacy, as though three millions of negroes could possibly have gained supremacy over forty-five millions of whites. The dread of the "nigger" was what maintained the Democratic party during the war and five years after, and Mr. Nasby and his confederates were simply the besotted Cross-Roads politicians who took advantage of the feeling to advance their own interests.

The character was based upon no especial man. Nasby represented an idea, a sort of madness that took possession of a part of the people during a very important period in the history of the country.

The series has been continued since, and probably will be for many years to come. It has grown to be the regular looked-for chronicle of political events, and has been found to be too convenient a vehicle for conveying political truths, backwards, to remain unused. So long as Mr. Locke lives Nasby will exist, and the WEEKLY BLADE will be his organ.

In October, 1865, Mr. Locke removed to Toledo, Ohio, and assumed charge of the TOLEDO BLADE, first on a salary, then as part, and finally as sole proprietor.

He is still at the head of the establishment he created, and labors just as many hours as he did at the beginning.

He has done an immense amount of literary work besides editing his paper, having written several successful plays, a score or more of books and pamphlets, and beside other matter, all of which has found readers.

In addition to all this labor he found time for fifteen years to lecture every winter, beside transacting a vast amount of other business. He has been for some years the most extensive builder in the city of his adoption, and, as a rule, has been successful in his ventures. He has a remarkably strong constitution, and is capable, even now, of an immense amount of labor.

THE BLADE.

Mr. Locke took editorial charge of the BLADE, October 15, 1865, the establishment being then the property of Mr. A. D. Pelton. The DAILY BLADE was a fairly prosperous paper at the time, but the Weekly, as it is now, had no existence. There was a weekly issued from the office of the daily, which had a small circulation in the county of Lucas, in which the city of Toledo is situated, of perhaps a thousand. It was published more for the county advertisements than anything else, and was a mere appendage to the Daily.

Mr. Locke went into the establishment for the purpose of establishing a weekly paper of a National circulation, an idea which he had always had from the beginning of his newspaper career. He had published a number of county papers previous to his advent into the BLADE, and thought he knew what the better class of farmers and mechanics, outside of the great cities, the class to whom a weekly paper is a necessity, needed, and it had been the dream of his life to establish such an one.

His idea of a weekly paper was one which should contain, each week, matter of interest to every member of the average family. It should contain a news department so all-embracing and perfect that when the reader was through with it he or she would have a perfect knowledge of what the world had done during the week, this accompanied with editorial comments making clear to the mind of the reader the philosophy of the events, a department for women and girls especially, which would not only be entertaining but instructive, the best literature for the entertainment and elevation of the taste of the people, regular articles on agricultural and mechanical industries, the markets, the politics, and the social movements of the day, and opinion, forcibly put, on all topics of interest, and above all the advocacy of everything calculated to make men and women better.

It was this sort of a paper which he desired to print, and which he has striven ever since to make of the BLADE. How well he has succeeded the patrons of the BLADE may judge. The fact that it has outstripped all its competitors, that it has now the largest circulation of any weekly family newspaper in the United States, is proof positive that there must have been something in his idea of what a newspaper should be.

Mr. Locke selected Toledo, Ohio, as the place in which to carry out the idea of his life, because of its peculiar location. As far back as 1865, it was an important railroad centre, and he foresaw that what it was was only a beginning of what it must be. It was then the centre of the great Lake Shore and New York Central system, together with the Wabash, the Dayton & Michigan, and others.

These alone made Toledo the best distributing point for a great newspaper, as for everything else, in the country. The BLADE reaches a line north and south running through Syracuse, N. Y., as soon as the New York newspapers do, and when west of that point its advantage is tremendous. All the great weeklies go to press Tuesday evening, and in all the territory west of Ohio the BLADE is received, read and digested before the New York papers reach their patrons with the same intelligence.

Since the BLADE was established in Toledo that city has become the terminus of thirty-two distinct lines of railroad, penetrating every section of the United States, north, south, east and west, affording facilities for distribution unequalled anywhere in the country. Its two fast printing machines makes possible the most rapid printing, and the vast editions of the BLADE are on the cars hurrying to its patrons Tuesday night, Wednesday and Thursday till noon.

Toledo is, unquestionably, the best point for the distribution of a great weekly in the United States. The telegraph puts all points on an equality so far as the collection of news goes, and the best point for distribution is that nearest the centre of population which has the best railroad facilities. Toledo is the great railroad centre of the country, and is very close to the centre of population. Hence the BLADE was established at Toledo.

Immediately upon taking charge of the BLADE, Mr. Locke changed the weekly issue from a merely local sheet, to one of a general nature, and launched it upon the reading public from Maine to Texas. The "Nasby" letters, which had been famous as far back as 1865, was the basis of appeal to the general public, but he made the paper as nearly up to his idea of what a weekly paper should be as was possible with the facilities he had at control, that its existence should not depend upon one specialty alone.

The paper was then a folio, of nine columns to the page.

The result was far beyond his anticipations. Within a few months it reached a circulation of 12,000, and was growing in favor very rapidly.

The campaign of 1886, which resulted in the election of an anti-Johnson Congress, gave it another impetus, and it steadily grew till the exciting campaign of 1868, during which time it reached the then enormous circulation of 80,000, which was a most astounding growth, and a notable achievement for a paper outside of New York.

The circulation varied with the fluctuations of the business interests of the country, till 1874. In that year the proprietors finding themselves cramped in the old quarters where the Daily had been published for so many years, purchased ground at 150 St. Clair street, and erected thereon a building which, at the time, was one of the most complete printing houses in the country. It was 50 by 120 on the ground, and four stories in height, and was considered something remarkable.

The circulation of the paper continued with various ups and downs, for several years. In 1875, or thereabouts, owing to divers causes, it fell off to something like 25,000, but in 1877 it commenced to increase again, and from that date its progress has been steady and entirely satisfactory.

In 1883 it reached the splendid total of 117,000, and in October, 1884, it touched the enormous number of 200,000.

No paper in the United States, or in the world, of its class, ever reached so great a circulation, and no paper in the world ever more deserved it.

In 1885 the four cylinder press upon which it had been printed was found insufficient, and another step forward had to be taken. Accordingly a Scott web-perfecting press was ordered, and in six months from its commencement was put into the building. This is the ultimate of presses. The wonderful machine is capable of printing, pasting and folding 16,000 an hour of the mammoth weekly, and doing it perfectly. It cost enormously, representing $20,000 in money before a sheet had ever been printed.

As one thing leads to another, the new Scott press made a new building necessary. The eligible ground, corner Superior and Jefferson streets, was purchased, and the most beautiful building in Ohio was commenced in September, 1884.

The building covers a lot 80 by 120, and five stories in height, beside a high basement, and fire-proof throughout. There is no building in the State of its class up to the present time that will compare with it in beauty, or completeness as regards convenience. It was over a year in building, and was completed in October of the year 1884, at a cost of over $125,000.

The increased circulation made another press necessary, and in 1884 a twin to the other was put in position, in the new building. No other Weekly in the country finds two Scott presses necessary.

No paper in the world has had so continuous a patronage as the BLADE, by which we mean no paper in existence can show so large a list of names that have taken it for so long a time without lapse. We have on our books to-day, some thousands who have taken it all the time for over nineteen years, we have 12,000 who have taken it for eighteen years, and many, many thousands who have taken it from five to ten. This fact is the highest praise a paper can have. It is an easy matter to attain a large circulation on the strength of promises or premiums, but it is not so easy to keep it. The BLADE went before the people twenty years ago on its merits—it has increased steadily every year with two exceptions, holding all its old friends and making new ones every week. So far as holding its patronage goes, there is no paper in the country that can show so continuous and steady a list of subscribers.

It will be observed that the circulation of the WEEKLY BLADE is not confined to any particular locality. It circulates in every State and Territory in the Union, from Maine to Texas, and from Oregon to Florida. It is a paper for the whole country, and the whole country takes it. Its circulation is of course the greatest in the States of the largest population, but there is not a State or Territory in the Union to which it does not go. It is sent to almost every post office in the Union. No regular family newspaper published covers so much territory.

THE PECULIAR POINTS OF EXCELLENCE OF THE BLADE.

There are several reasons for the enormous circulation of the BLADE, and the steadiness with which it is held. It is the largest Weekly Family Newspaper in the Union, it gives more matter than any other, and at a cheaper price. It sends to its patrons every week eight broad pages, each page having eight long columns, and a very small amount of this large space occupied with advertising matter. The sheet is the largest of any in the country, and all for $1 a year.

Then the WEEKLY BLADE differs from other papers of its class in being edited. Its contents are not pitch-forked into its columns from a daily, without any arrangement or editing, but every line is prepared especially to meet the wants of a weekly paper which shall fill an especial place in the literature of the day.

No paper in the country maintains so many different departments, and in none are the departments so carefully edited. One man is paid a very high salary to answer correspondents, and aside from the fact that he is a walking dictionary (only he don't walk much), he has at his command one of the most perfect reference libraries in the world. It will be found difficult to ask any question that the BLADE cannot correctly answer. To show something of the pains taken in this department we will say that in 1868 it cost the BLADE $765 to answer one question! That is what the BLADE paid one of the best lawyers in the United States to go to Washington and investigate one inquiry as to Bounty and Back Pay, which settled the question forever for thousands upon thousands of soldiers.

We pay a competent woman a large salary to take charge of the Household Department, and certainly no woman who reads the BLADE will say that the money is not well spent. At the head of each department is a person selected for that especial place, to the end of making these departments as perfect as possible.

We specify these particular points to show that the BLADE is the result of an organized effort to make it the one paper for the people, and a paper fully worth the money paid for it, if such a thing can be. And as soon as a want is discovered to bring it nearer to perfection, that want is filled, if money and careful work will do it.

TO GENERAL ADVERTISERS.

The circulation of the WEEKLY BLADE is accurately stated at the head of its editorial columns every week, and printed so plainly that he who runs may read. This has been our practice for eight years, and it will be adhered to as long as there is a WEEKLY BLADE. The figures are absolutely correct, and all advertising contracts may be based upon them. If the circulation falls off it is so printed, just as it is when it is increasing. To verify our statements the affirmations of our employees are not depended upon. Our press-room is open to seekers after truth at all times, as are also our cash books, the receipts of the postmaster for postage, and in fact the entire concern. We have nothing to conceal, because, were we so disposed, there is nothing to be gained by it. Our actual circulation is large enough for anybody.

We claim that the WEEKLY BLADE has the largest circulation of any paper of its class in the United States. When we say "circulation," we mean regular paid-for circulation. We do not mean spasmodic givings-away of a hundred thousand copies at intervals, but a circulation which is genuine and bona fide. Our circulation is made up of people who send in their names and money for a stipulated time, and when the period for which they paid has expired their names are dropped. It is not that half-live and half-dead circulation where the paper is not stepped at the end of the time paid for, but is permitted to continue forever. Should we do business in that way the BLADE would go into a million of families.

There is another point to which we desire to call the attention of advertisers. There is no paper in the United States which covers so much territory. The Chicago weeklies go almost entirely into the Northwest, the New York papers into the Eastern and Middle States, and the Boston papers into New England. The BLADE goes everywhere. It is taken at over half the post-offices of the United States, and penetrates every State and Territory. It is as well known in Maine, Florida, and Oregon as it is in Ohio. It has more readers in Pennsylvania than any Philadelphia weekly, more in the State of Illinois than any Chicago weekly. North, South, East and West, it is the only paper in the country that can be said to have a National circulation.

CHARACTER OF CIRCULATION.

The BLADE's patrons are the better class of farmers, mechanics, and merchants in the country and county towns outside of the very great cities. It has circulation in every city in the country, but the bulk of it is in the country, among that great class who have money to buy what they want, and who want a great deal. It circulates among the intelligent, thinking, reading, well-to-do people, who must have the news in reliable shape, who want sound political opinion tersely and forcibly put, whose wives and daughters want good reading, and who are alive to every improvement.

It is this class of people in every State in the Union who take the BLADE, and the BLADE is the most popular paper printed among this class.

It is a fact which almost every shrewd and successful advertiser will testify to, that advertising pays better in the BLADE than in any other paper in the country. This is because: 1st, its prices are based upon an actual paid circulation, and 2d, because its subscribers are the people who can and do buy what they want.

As the BLADE'S circulation is continuous, so is its advertising patronage. No paper in the country can show so continuous a list of advertisers. That is because it pays them to stay with us.

The following table shows the circulation of the WEEKLY BLADE, week by week, for the past three years:

WHAT THE HERALD DOESN'T DO.

[From the Boston Herald of Nov. 8, 1885.]

The HERALD is not given to blowing its own trumpet, or to hiring other people to blow for it. It does not parade its wonderful success; the success has advertised itself abundantly to Boston, to New England and to the country. The HERALD does not proclaim the great things it is going to do; it keeps right on doing them, quite as a matter of course. The public has for many years known that whatever is reliable and important as news, timely and valuable as information, interesting as gossip or helpful as opinion, is always to be found first and fullest in the HERALD. Ten years of experience has taught the people this fact, and they don't need to be constantly told of it.

The HERALD does not make use of a leased building on leased ground, with its name on the rented structure, for advertising purposes and to give it a fictitious appearance of prosperity which it has not yet established. It occupies its own building, on its own land, simply as an ordinary matter of business, and not to make a blow about.

The HERALD does not brag constantly about its great circulation, and give no figures to sustain it. It does not deal in "round numbers," or rely on "high water marks"—as when, a year ago, it printed and sold in one day 302,030 copies, the largest number ever circulated of one issue by an American newspaper. It prints regularly, at the head of its columns, the precise average of papers sold each day for the last month. Its stated circulation is the number of papers actually sold, and is not padded with those taken by news dealers or boys with the privilege of returning them—a privilege which sends cartloads of unopened papers to the junk shop from some offices in this country. The HERALD does not seek to stimulate its circulation by underselling other papers to the dealers. It does not cut rates to obtain advertisements. It does not deal in dirt or sensationalism to increase its sales—pandering to vice with one hand and beckoning to virtue with the other.

The HERALD has not lowered the high standard which it set for itself, when it began, some years ago, that process of transformation which the Christian Union, in an article copied in another column, says is "only paralleled by some transformation of a reverse character in journals which shall be nameless, that were once respectable are now scurrilous." The HERALD does not believe in the practice of evolution backward, as applied to the press. It has never believed that a paper cheap in price need be cheap in quality, or that low price should carry a lowering of tone. It has demonstrated, by the character of its features, that a "two-cent constituency" of newspaper readers may be the best that this country affords. And the stress of competition which has we regret to observe, done so much to demoralize and "cheapen" the press within the last two or three years, has never caused the HERALD to adopt any of the cheap arts and devices for attracting attention which have disfigured the pages and lowered the tone of so many American newspapers. We have no quarrel with these contemporaries, near or remote; but, speaking for the HERALD, we are glad, as we have abundant assurances that its readers are, that it has not felt obliged to resort to any of these catch-penny tricks for maintaining a popularity and a business that has but one or two rivals in the United States.

We do not intend often to take up our space with personal allusions. But just now, when the dictionary definition of a "boom" as a "hollow sound" is illustrated by the endeavors of certain journals to celebrate themselves at the expense of others, the few remarks we have submitted seem to be in order.

THE CLEVELAND PLAIN DEALER.

The PLAIN DEALER was first so-called in 1841, by J. W. and N. A. Gray, they having purchased the Cleveland Advertiser, first published by W. Woodward, who sold this paper in 1834, to Canfield & Spencer. In 1836 it was transformed into a daily, and in 1841 became the property of the Messrs. Gray, who changed the name to the PLAIN DEALER. Under the editorial management of J. W. Gray, the PLAIN DEALER at once took rank among the leading newspapers of the West, and being uncompromisingly Democratic, wielded a mighty influence in the party. From its establishment to the death of Mr. Gray, which occurred in 1862, the PLAIN DEALER was the leading journal of Cleveland, and had established a national reputation, both as a party organ and newspaper. In the Presidential campaign of 1860, it ardently supported Mr. Douglass, he and its editor being warm personal friends. However, just prior to the war, Charles F. Browne (Artemus Ward), its then City or "Local" Editor, began writing those articles, which first attracted the attention of the country to him as a humorist, making both himself and the paper famous. After the Presidential campaign of 1860, and during the war, the PLAIN DEALER, although still and always Democratic, warmly supported the Government and the prosecution of the war. From the death of Mr. Gray, until 1865, the paper was published by his estate. In the last-named year it became the property of Major W. W. Armstrong, then late Secretary of State of Ohio, and owner and publisher of the Tiffin (Ohio) Advertiser. Major Armstrong brought to his aid, in rebuilding up the business and influence of the PLAIN DEALER, a thorough knowledge of Ohio politics, an extensive acquaintance and broad experience.

In 1867 Hon. F. W. Green, ex-member of Congress, and for twelve years previous Clerk of the U. S. District Court at Cleveland, became associated with Mr. Armstrong as half owner and editorial writer. This partnership lasted until 1876, Mr. Armstrong again becoming the sole owner and editor. In 1877 the PLAIN DEALER PUBLISHING CO. was incorporated, Mr. Armstrong becoming president, and editor, and manager, the ownership of stock being confined to Mr. Armstrong and old employees of the PLAIN DEALER, without change, until December, 1884.

At this date the old PLAIN DEALER, as it had been known for years, practically ceased to exist. Abundant capital placed at its disposal, and new blood and energy infused into its old veins, it set forth on a career that has enabled it in one short year to gain a foothold among the leading newspapers of the country. The history of and the causes leading up to this result are as follows: In December, 1884, the controlling interest in the PLAIN DEALER PUBLISHING CO. was purchased by Messrs. L. E. Holden, Chas. H. Bulkley, Geo. F. Prescott, R. R. Holden, and L. H. Prescott. Mr. L. E. Holden was made President, and Mr. George F. Prescott, Secretary and General Manager. Mr. W. W. Armstrong and Mr. John C. Roland, long identified with the paper, in addition to the above-named, constituted the list of stock-holders. The purpose of the purchasers was to build up, upon the good-will and prestige of the EVENING PLAIN DEALER, a first-class morning journal, one that would take rank among the leading newspapers of the land and at the same time be a representative Democratic paper, fully commensurate with the power and influence of this great party which had many times successfully contested the elections in Ohio with a party having all the Government patronage, and many widely-read and powerful newspapers at its back. Now, having ample capital, steps were taken to establish a "plant" necessary to carry out the purposes of the new owners. At this time an opportunity offered of purchasing the Cleveland Herald, a paper established in 1819, and which had grown up with Cleveland, its history being intimately interwoven with that of the city. In its struggle to keep up with the times, the Herald had established a valuable "plant," embracing ample office facilities with first-class equipment throughout.

The purchase of the Herald was consummated March 14th, 1885, and on Monday the 17th, the PLAIN DEALER was issued from the old Herald office as an eight-page, fifty-six column morning and evening paper. With the "plant" of the Herald, notwithstanding the difference in politics, the PLAIN DEALER secured much of the good-will, a large percentage of the daily subscription, and the entire advertising patronage.

Their improved facilities enabled the management also, at once, to improve the WEEKLY PLAIN DEALER, which had enjoyed a good-will and patronage among the rural population of Ohio, second to no publication issued from Cleveland. Its enlargement and improvement, as well as the reduction in subscription, to the uniform price of $1.00 per year, was hailed with delight by its friends and a steady growth in circulation through the Summer months of 1885, with an unprecedented increase at the beginning of the present year, has been the result. Beginning the year with a circulation closely approximating 20,000, the WEEKLY PLAIN DEALER, from being a good advertising medium from the nature of its clientage, has become one of the best in Ohio.

From the fact, that during the past year, neither labor or expense has been spared to make the PLAIN DEALER equal to, if not superior to any newspaper published in the State, the daily has grown from a small four-page evening paper to its present dimensions, and from a circulation bordering on five thousand to that of eighteen thousand copies per diem. This great growth in circulation, importance and influence may seem, and no doubt is phenomenal, but is accounted for by three simple and easily understood conditions :

1st. The purchasing of a formidable and well-equipped rival.

2d. By the long existing demand for a Democratic morning paper, commensurate with the power and influence of the party in Ohio, and published at an hour of the day, enabling the most remote parts of the State to be reached on day of publication.

3d. The necessity in this community for a newspaper, although it may be a party organ, which would at the same time give all the news without fear or favor, leaving to the Editorial Department expressions of political opinion or belief.

The location of the PLAIN DEALER is in a four-story building, with sandstone front, situated in the business centre, at Nos. 225 and 227 Bank, a few steps north of Superior street. The counting-room, or business-office, is elevated a few feet above the street, has an elegant double front with plate-glass windows. The interior is arranged with a view to the convenience of patrons. The visitor or patron enters a square lobby partitioned off on three sides by elegant solid walnut wood-work and richly ground glass with separate openings for the various departments—advertising, subscription, cashier, and manager. In the rear of the counting-room is the press and stereotype room. In this room, along one side is placed the stereotyping furnace and necessary machinery; on the other is a Scott perfecting press, capable of printing thirty thousand papers an hour, all cut, pasted, and neatly folded ready for the mailing-room in the basement. In this room all mails are done up, and news-dealers, carriers, and boys served with papers. From 3 to 6 A. M., and 2 to 5 P. M., this room presents a busy scene. Necessarily, a large amount of work is crowded into a few short hours, but being done systematically and orderly, there never is any delay in preparing the mails or in serving papers for delivery or street sale. The engine-room is adjoining the mail-room. In it are two complete engines and boilers, the reserve machinery being always in readiness in case of accident. On the second floor are the private room and library of the editor-in-chief, comfortable and well-arranged rooms of the managing and associate editors, city editor and reporters, and telegraph operators, the PLAIN DEALER having its private wires connecting with New York, Washington, Columbus, and all points reached by the Associated Press. The composing-room occupies the third floor entire, being one large room 50x150 feet, with windows at each end and along one side. In this room everything inserted in the paper is put into type. Here alone, employment is given to fifty men exclusive of the foreman, his assistants, and proof-readers. The fourth floor is occupied by the Job Printing Department. All told, the PLAIN DEALER gives employment to more than one hundred individuals, not including correspondents or outside employes of any description.

The foregoing will give the reader an idea of the PLAIN DEALER as it now is, but on an examination of the paper itself, the claim to be ranked in size, importance, and typographically, with the metropolitan press of the country will be sustained. A very important consideration to those general advertisers who find it to their interest to largely use the columns of the press of the country, is the territory in which a paper is issued and throughout which it circulates. The number of inhabitants, the extent of its commercial and manufacturing interests, are factors which influence the estimation of the value of advertising mediums. The city of Cleveland contains not less than 235,000 inhabitants, is situated on Lake Erie, and in addition to the commercial advantage afforded by the great chain of lakes, enjoys larger railroad connections than any city between New York and Chicago. It is on the direct line of the L. S. & M. S. and N. Y., Chicago & St. Louis Railways, and the other three great Trunk Lines of the country—viz., The Penna. R. R., the Lake Erie & Western (the old Erie & N. Y., P. & O.,) and the Baltimore & Ohio, having direct connection with the city. The Cleveland, Columbus, Cincinnati & Indianapolis Railway, is one of the important lines of the country. Commencing at Cleveland, it leads in a southwestern direction, affording direct communication with Cincinnati and the South, and with St. Louis and the great Southwest. In addition to these main lines and the roads immediately under their control, the iron and other manufacturing interests of the city have been the direct cause of the building of many railroads into the coal regions of the State. Most prominent among these is the Cleveland & Pittsburgh, an old and valuable road, passing through rich coal fields and the shortest route to the Ohio River. The New York, Pennsylvania & Ohio; the Valley Road; the Connotton Valley; the Cleveland, Lorain & Wheeling; the Cleveland, Akron & Columbus Railroads and the Ohio Canal, all tend to the one great central point and are valuable auxiliaries to the city's commerce. The value of these roads may be indicated by the simple statement, that in 1884 the receipts of coal in the Cleveland market were 1,831,112 tons; of iron ore, 1,575,594 tons, and lumber to the value of ten million dollars, the iron ore and lumber having been received by lake and the surplus above home consumption, shipped to various markets throughout the State and country. In the wake of these large commodities follow thousands of other interests which aggregate much more, giving to the commerce of the city creditable and prosperous proportions. Cleveland also, has many and varied manufacturing interests, the leading features of which are iron and oil. In the city limits are situated the Cleveland Rolling Mill Co.'s works, the largest plant in the State, and second in the country. In the matter of oil refining, Cleveland leads the world, being the home of the Standard Oil Co. The iron, steel, and oil manufactories number over two hundred, and employ more than twenty-five thousand men. The surrounding country, tributary to Cleveland, is dotted with thriving cities, towns and villages noted for the industry and intelligence of their citizens. The agricultural classes of Northern Ohio are noted for their sturdy and intelligent character. In fact, the residents of city, town and country in this section of Ohio are noted as a reading community, and with the exception of "County" papers, depend upon Cleveland for their news. Every train leaving Cleveland carries its regular packages of either the morning or evening PLAIN DEALER. It is not the purpose of this article to dilate on the beauties of Cleveland as a residence city; suffice it to say, that it possesses the finest avenue in the world, and many public improvements of great importance. Among these are the viaduct, spanning the Cuyahoga river and valley, extensive water-works, parks, and cemeteries, the most interesting of the latter being Lake View, where the lamented Garfield's monument is in course of erection. It has been more the purpose to show to the general advertiser that it is a field of value to those having articles of merit to which they desire to draw public attention. Without the use of the PLAIN DEALER, this rich territory cannot be covered, but with the judicious use of its columns good returns are assured.

THE AMERICAN RURAL HOME,

Rochester, N. Y., Established 1871, published by the RURAL HOME CO. (Limited), $1.00 a year. Officers—President: P. C. Reynolds; Vice-President: W. R. Kennard; Secretary, Treasurer, and General Manager: George W. Elliott. THE AMERICAN RURAL HOME is published weekly, at Rochester, N. Y., has eight pages, forty-eight columns; of these forty-eight columns of space an average of not more than ten columns is given to advertising, the balance being devoted to first-class reading-matter, of which one-half is particularly adapted to the reading of the Farmer, the Horticulturist, the Agriculturist, the Stockman, the Poulterer, and the Apiarist. Every week two columns of the very best markets of the world are found in its columns, and during the growing season, accurate crop reports from over 5,000 correspondents are published in its columns.

Besides being thus abreast in all agricultural and farm topics of the day, it seeks in its household, housekeeper, children's, women's, general topics, and other departments of the paper to present every week such an olio of events, incidents, literature, science, etc., etc., as to make the paper attractive to every member of the family.

In short, one of the proprietors says: "I would make such a paper that any person picking up or regularly taking the same, would find in its columns such a variety of departments that they would exclaim, 'this great paper is the most complete weekly news and family journal published in America.'"

In December, 1884, it was purchased by the present management, and had during 1885 the most extraordinary newspaper boom ever attained by any weekly newspaper in this country or the world. Its regular circulation averaged 107,309 copies each issue, for 1885, being more than quintupled, and its receipts during the year were more than octupled. This result was brought about by the issuing of a large number of sample copies, no less than five million two hundred thousand copies of the paper having been published during the year. Furthermore, the management advertised it extensively in the leading newspapers of the land, thus practicing what they preach, "that it pays to advertise."

The aim of this paper is to get a circulation of 250,000 copies weekly, and it is going to have it if pluck, perseverance, and enterprise, coupled with an A No. 1 newspaper, will accomplish this result.

The advertising rates are increased two or three times a year, as the circulation increases. At the present writing, March 1, 1886, the rates are as follows: Per agate line, display, sixty cents; per minion line, reading, one dollar; discounts very liberal to acceptable patrons.

Advertisers almost without exception, who have used its columns, become permanent patrons. It is not necessary to say more concerning its value as an advertising medium. It speaks for itself. A. Frank Richardson, 65 Tribune Building, New York, is our Special Agent.

THE ADVERTISER.

LONDON is the chief city of that portion of the Province of Ontario lying between Lakes Erie and Huron, and is the natural commercial and manufacturing centre for one of the richest agricultural sections of the continent. It has a population of some 30,000, which, by including London South and London West, becomes 45,000. Its manufactures are many and varied, its wholesale trade carries all staple and fancy lines, and it is the headquarters of the railway system of Western Ontario. That a live newspaper should flourish in such a city is not a marvel, and the claim of THE ADVERTISER, that it has a larger circulation in proportion to the population of the city in which it is published than any other paper in America, has never been challenged. To trace the growth of the sheet, it may be mentioned that the first copy was issued on the 21st of October, 1863. The paper was then not much larger than an ordinary copy book, and the staff then consisted of the editor and proprietor, Mr. John Cameron, and a reporter, who put his notes into type without the bother of writing them. To-day there are working on the editorial staff thirteen men and one woman; in the business office, seven men; in the composing room and stereotype department, forty-six; in the job room, twenty-five; in the subscription and mailing departments, seven; a like number in the press and engine rooms, with a large staff of out-of-town correspondents and an army of newsboys. THE ADVERTISER gives special attention to its "Departments," which are all treated by those skilled in what they deal with. Thus, the Medical Department is in the hands of one of the leading physicians of the city, a member of the Ontario Medical Council; its department devoted to answering Legal Queries is attended to by one of the foremost members of the Bar, the Registrar of the Law School in connection with the Western University; its Educational Notes and Queries are in the hands of the School Inspector of the District; its Agricultural columns are prepared by one fully versed in the theory and practice of farming; while its Editor-in-Chief is the Hon. David Mills, ex-Minister of the Interior in the Dominion Government, and now a member of the House of Commons. THE ADVERTISER is of the bright and cheery order of newspapers aiming to be entertaining while instructive. Not a little of the credit of this is due to the managing editor, Mr. Archie Bremner, an accomplished journalist.

A building over four stories above the basement is required to accomplish the business of THE ADVERTISER, which includes the turning out, from a fully-equipped job room, all kinds of plain and fancy ornamental job and book work, from a business card to a mammoth poster, and from a date line to a well-bound volume.

In the beginning of 1883, Mr. John Cameron was offered and accepted the management of the Toronto Globe, when the conduct of THE ADVERTISER fell into the hands of Mr. William Cameron, who had from the outset been connected with the enterprise; but he did not hold the position long, death cutting him off at an early age, when he was just on the eve of printing the paper from a Bullock perfecting press, manufactured especially to his order by the well-known Bullock Company, of Chicago. This machine is now in use in the office, and THE ADVERTISER is the only paper between Toronto and Detroit that finds such an adjunct necessary.

THE DAILY ADVERTISER is ordinarily an eight-page paper, six columns, though it frequently finds it necessary to temporarily enlarge, and on one occasion it distinguished itself by printing a twenty-page sheet.

THE WESTERN ADVERTISER (the weekly edition) is alternately an eight and twelve-page paper, thus making it an average ten-page paper (seven columns) each week in the year.

Lud. K. Cameron, the youngest of the three brothers who have been so prominently identified with THE ADVERTISER, is now Manager of that sheet—the success of which is the test of its popularity.

CHICAGO'S OLDEST DAILY.

THE EVENING JOURNAL, STARTED IN 1844.

The merits of the daily newspaper press of Chicago are acknowledged world-wide. The daily papers of that city are marvelous samples of literary work, journalistic life, and business energy. They utilize the facilities of the telegraph and the mails to their utmost possibilities. As comprehensive newspapers, they have no equals in the world.

Of the daily papers now published in Chicago, the EVENING JOURNAL is the oldest. It was originally established as a Whig political campaign paper, in 1844, from the remnants of what was first the Daily American, which was published from 1839 until 1842, when it became the Daily Express, and in 1844 a company of "Henry Clay Whigs," purchasing the printing-office and its good-will, changed its name to the EVENING JOURNAL, Richard L. Wilson being its editor, and a year subsequently becoming its proprietor. He was joined in 1849 by his brother, Charles L., as joint editor and proprietor, the firm of R. L. & C. L. Wilson remaining at its mast-head until 1857, when, Richard dying, Charles became its sole proprietor. A few weeks previous to Richard L. Wilson's death, Andrew Shuman, then editor of the Syracuse (N. Y.) Daily Journal, was called in as Assistant-Editor, a position he held until President Abraham Lincoln appointed Charles L. Wilson Secretary of the U. S. Legation at London, in 1861, when Mr. Shuman was made editor of the paper, and has continued its editor until the present time. The EVENING JOURNAL prospered greatly during the war of the rebellion, and when its proprietor returned home from his official mission at London, he found himself a wealthy man, possessing one of the most valuable press properties in the West.

The EVENING JOURNAL continued "prospering and to prosper," and it has held its own bravely and successfully against formidable competition, and is now regarded as one of the solidest as well as one of the most respected and trustworthy newspapers in the United States. Through all the eventful vicissitudes of the past thirty years, including several severe financial crises and the great Chicago conflagration, it has "kept right on in the even tenor of its way," missing its daily issue for not a single day. Three times in the course of its career its publishing and printing offices have been destroyed by fire, but the JOURNAL itself nevertheless made its regular appearance on the days of the fires and on the next succeeding days, the same as if nothing had happened. The history of newspaper enterprise contains no parallel to such indomitable enterprise.

In 1873 Charles L. Wilson incorporated the EVENING JOURNAL as a joint stock company, and shortly after his death in 1876 the establishment was leased to Andrew Shuman and John R. Wilson, the latter a nephew of the late proprietor, Mr. Shuman retaining the editorship, and Mr. Wilson becoming the publisher and business manager. Two years afterwards these gentlemen and Mr.

W. K. Sullivan, its city editor, purchased a controlling interest in the stock of the company, and have been the publishers and managers of the paper ever since, its prosperity increasing with its added capital and its persistent "push."

As an advertising medium, the EVENING JOURNAL has few equals. Its readers are the "solid" men and families of the West, whose interests and respectability it faithfully represents. There are but few banking-houses or business-offices in the great region of which Chicago is the centre, in which the JOURNAL is not a regular daily visitor, and as a clean, carefully-edited paper, it is a favorite in the best families of the city and the region roundabout.

Other newspapers have sprung up and gone down in Chicago—scores of them—since the EVENING JOURNAL was established, some of them its avowed rivals, but it survives them all, and stands to-day upon a rock-foundation—a high-toned, conscientious and ably-conducted daily paper; in age, co-extensive with the history of Chicago, and in spirit a faithful representative and index of that wonderful city.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.

MANCHESTER "MIRROR AND AMERICAN" (DAILY) AND "MIRROR AND FARMER" (WEEKLY).

The leading papers in this State are owned and edited by John B. Clarke, at Manchester, the chief city, and larger than any other three cities in the commonwealth.

In 1852, when the Manchester MIRROR, which was founded in 1850, was purchased by its present owner, it was one of the smallest and weakest papers in the country. Its weekly edition had a circulation of about six hundred, that of its daily was less than five hundred, and its advertising receipts were extremely small. Altogether, it was a load which its owner could not carry, and the whole establishment, including subscription-lists, good-will, press, type, and material, was sold at auction for less than a thousand dollars. Now, January, 1886, the Weekly MIRROR AND FARMER has a regular circulation of 25,440 copies. Its growth has been constant from the beginning, but has been very rapid during the past five years, and is steadily increasing. This growth is due solely to its merits, neither the attractive glitter of showy "premiums," nor the persuasive tongues of traveling agents have been employed to secure its entrance into homes where it is not read and appreciated; but every subscriber takes it because he or she wants it, and pays for it in advance—a fact of special importance to advertisers, and one which makes it an exception to all other papers of its class in the Eastern States. Although its circulation is mainly in New England, it has numerous subscribers in the Middle and every Northern State to the Pacific Coast.

The Daily MIRROR AND AMERICAN has a correspondingly large and reliable constituency, and is read in the homes of nearly every well-to-do family in the city where it is published. It is emphatically the fireside paper of the city, and from this fact is a superior advertising medium. The office in which the Daily and Weekly MIRROR are printed is one of the most extensive and best-equipped in the Eastern States out of Boston. In every sense of the word the MIRROR is successful, strong and solid. The building up of this great and substantial enterprise from so small a beginning has been the work of John B. Clarke, who bought the papers, as stated above, in 1852, has ever since been their owner, manager, and controlling spirit, and has kept the MIRROR, in hard times as in good times, steadily growing, enlarging its scope and influence, and gaining strength with which to make and maintain new advances; and at the same time has made it yield every year a handsome income.

Mr. Clarke, who is a native of Atkinson, N. H., and a graduate of Dartmouth College in the class of 1843, first chose the law for his profession, and when he bought the MIRROR in 1852 he had no experience in journalism and no capital; but he had confidence in himself, energy, good judgment, and a willingness to work for the success he was determined to gain. For months and years he was editor, reporter, business manager, accountant and collector. In these capacities he did an amount of work that would have killed an ordinary man, and did it in a way that told; for every month added to the number of his patrons; and slowly but steadily his business increased in volume and his papers in influence. He early made it a rule to make what he printed readable as well as reliable, to make the paper better every year than it was the preceding year, and to furnish the weekly edition at a price which would give it an immense circulation without the help of traveling agents or the credit system; and to this policy he has adhered. Besides this, he spared no expense which he judged would add to the value of his publications, and his judgment has always set the bounds far off on the very verge of extravagance. Whatever machine promised to keep his office abreast of the times and increase the capacity for good work, he has dared buy; whatever man he has thought would brighten and strengthen his staff of assistants, he has gone for, and if possible got; and whatever new departure has seemed to him likely to win new friends for the MIRROR, he has made.

In connection with the MIRROR a great book and job printing establishment has grown up, which turns out a large amount of work in all departments. Mr. Clarke has also published several books, including "Sanborn's History of New Hampshire," "Clarke's History of Manchester," "Successful New Hampshire Men," "Manchester Directory," and other works. Within a few years a book-bindership has been added to the establishment.

The large circulation and character of the MIRROR have given its owner and editor a great influence in the politics, the agriculture, and the social life of his time, have made him a power in shaping the policy of his city and state, and one of the forces that have kept the wheels of progress moving in both for more than thirty years.

An advertisement of the MIRROR giving further facts of interests to advertisers will be found on page 1167.

THE KANSAS CITY TIMES.

Wherever newspapers are published, and wherever the news of the day is disseminated, the name and fame of Kansas City have penetrated. Kansas City, a few years ago a mere trading point for a handful of men, to-day sits proudly upon more hills than Rome, with 100,000 people within her limits and with all the evidences of her wonderful growth in commercial importance stretching from the rivers at her gates for miles along the uplands and prairies.

One of the surest indications of a city's progress is the rapid and constant erection of substantial buildings, and this is not the smallest source of Kansas City's pride. In the year 1885, the most notable in Kansas City's history, there were erected nearly 3,000 buildings at a cost of about $5,000,000. Conspicuous and overshadowing all other building enterprises in that year rose the edifice designed, constructed, owned and occupied by THE KANSAS CITY TIMES. Right at the junction formed by Main, Delaware, and Ninth streets, in the very heart of the city, stands THE TIMES building. Its location is not unlike that of the post-office building in New York, looking north from the Herald office, or the junction of Fifth avenue and Broadway at Twenty-third street, just south of the Fifth Avenue Hotel. It stands out pre-eminent in boldness of architecture, the most striking and imposing building in the city. The ground on which it is placed is by the very nature of location unequalled in value. Just in front lies Ninth street, along which run the cable cars, the greatest medium of passenger transportation from the Union Depot and the eastern limits to the centre of traffic. On one side is Main street, the great retail thoroughfare, and on the other Delaware street, lined with blocks of the leading wholesale houses, both streets crossing Ninth and forming a plaza from which street car lines radiate in every direction. One block to the east, and fronting the junction, rises the new government building, while the four corners flanking THE TIMES' local point are graced by handsome buildings, devoted to stores and offices, not a few of which are given up to the ticket offices of the various railway lines.

THE TIMES property is 124 feet in length, and on an average, thirty-five feet in depth. The building is five stories high with basement and sub-cellar on Main street, and with one additional story on Delaware street. The intention at first was to construct it with the view of adapting it solely to the wants of THE TIMES, but its immense size renders only a small portion of it necessary for such uses, the remaining rooms being rented out for business offices of every description. The real property is valued at $300,000. The annual rental received from the building, exclusive of the portions occupied by THE TIMES, amounts to nearly $22,000. Every room for rent was taken before the building was finished. The rooms are all heated by steam and lighted with the Edison incandescent electric lights, with elevator service day and night.

THE TIMES occupies one of the store-rooms for its publication office, and has fitted it up in a style surpassed by none outside of Philadelphia or San Francisco. The basement is used for the press-room, in which are set two Scott perfecting presses, with a capacity of 30,000 quarto sheets per hour. The mailing department is adjoining on the same floor, while below in the sub-cellars are placed the boilers, engines, electric-dynamos and other machinery. The composition room is on the fourth floor, and the stereotyping department and editorial offices are on the fifth floor. From top to bottom all the plant and appliances of THE TIMES are entirely new; the most improved and the very best to be purchased—new presses, new type, stands, cases, new boilers, engines, stereotype machinery, etc. When THE TIMES took possession of its new building on December 2, 1885, it found awaiting it an entirely new mechanical outfit, from which the paper was set up and printed the following morning. And it may with truth be said to-day that no newspaper office in any city has a more complete or perfectly equipped plant and appliances than THE KANSAS CITY TIMES. Others may be more extensive, but none is better arranged or adapted for the publication of a great metropolitan daily newspaper. Every convenience, appliance or facility known in any of the newspaper offices in the country has been introduced. Every department is served plentifully with the splendid incandescent electric lights. Speaking-tubes and electric annunciators put all the departments in instant communication with each other. Pneumatic tubes convey copy from the publication office to the composition and editorial rooms, and between the editorial and the composition and proof rooms. Telephones in the publication office, the city editor's and the managing editor's offices, place THE TIMES in reach, not only of the city, but of the whole Missouri valley within a circuit of seventy-five miles. Telegraph operators in its own quarters receive and instantly deliver to the telegraph editor the full western Associated press and the United press reports, and also the immense line of special telegrams demanded by THE TIMES every day. The editorial rooms, like all the other departments, are arranged primarily for business, but at the same time for comfort and convenience. They are all contiguous on the fifth floor, are large and commodious, above the noise and bustle of the streets, and splendidly lighted and ventilated.

Such is THE KANSAS CITY TIMES, outwardly and materially, as it finds itself at the beginning of 1886. The record of its growth and progress is but the repetition of that of the city in which it is printed, and of the surrounding territory on which it depends for its support, and that record is not the less interesting because it shows with what difficulties journalism had contended in the south-west of the past. It was not until 1871 when THE TIMES passed to its present management, that it was started on a fixed and definite course, both in a business and editorial way. Kansas City then boasted 32,000 inhabitants. The State of Kansas, from which the bulk of business for THE TIMES, as well as for every other business institution in the city comes, had a population of about 365,000. By the census taken last fall Kansas City has a population of 105,049, which with that of Wyandotte, Kansas City, Kan., Armourdale, and other suburbs, virtually swells the figures around Kaw's mouth to 140,000. The population of the State of Kansas has jumped from 365,000 in 1871 to 1,268,000 in 1886. Kansas City ranks tenth in the financial list of American cities, its bank clearings for 1885 being $223,500,024.17. It is second to Chicago only as a live stock market and packing point. In 1871, 41,033 hogs were received, while in 1885 the number was 2,331,562. The consideration of real estate transfers in the city last year was over $17,000,000. These are merely a few examples of the wonderful growth of the "second Chicago," the "Little Giant of the West," the city to which thousands of young men come annually, attracted by the noise of her fame. No wonder that THE TIMES from year to year felt the impulse of Kansas City's increasing activity.

What Kansas City has been among cities Kansas has proved in the race of commonwealths. She has surpassed the record of all other States within the past fifteen years, as a few figures will show, the comparison lying between the years 1870 and 1885 :

	YEAR.
	1870.	1885.
Population.....	364,899	1,268,562
Corn, bushels.....	17,025,525	194,130,814
Wheat, bushels.....	2,391,179	48,050,431
Acres in crops.....	1,360,000	14,252,815
Value of farm property.....	$27,630,651	$143,577,018
Value of live stock.....	23,173,185	117,881,699
Assessed valuation.....	92,400,820	248,845,276
Scholars enrolled.....	63,218	335,538
Expenditures for schools.....	$623,041	$2,977,703

Such is the record of which Kansas may well boast, and of such Kansas City as the great commercial entrepot of that great State may well be proud. And THE TIMES, which has a larger circulation in the State of Kansas than any newspaper published within or without her borders, shares in the pride of her progress, and feels that it has experienced many of the advantages of her growth. Kansas has been taken for purposes of illustration, but the same facts hold good to a great extent as regards the corresponding increase in population and development of western Missouri, southern Nebraska, and Iowa, within which territory THE TIMES is the leading and most widely-circulated newspaper. Situated 300 miles from St. Louis, and 450 miles from Chicago, in the midst of the most fertile and productive region on the continent, populating and developing more rapidly than ever experienced in the history of cities, with intelligent, educated, and thrifty people, Kansas City's future growth and prosperity are assured. In this great field the supremacy of THE KANSAS CITY TIMES is undisputed. At its head still stands its principal proprietor and general manager, MORRISON MUMFORD, who for fifteen years has watched and guarded it in tempest and sunshine, whose hand has directed every movement, and whose judgment has brought it out of the shoals and rapids, and placed it on a secure foundation above all dangers or fears for the future. And the same energy and perseverance and enterprise, which have marked the management of THE TIMES in darker hours, before Kansas City's brilliant destiny was dreamed of, will keep it in the front and point to it as a worthy exponent of the virtues of Simon-pure western journalism.

THE MONTREAL STAR.

(DAILY AND WEEKLY.)

THE MONTREAL STAR is the most widely-circulated newspaper in Canada. Its daily issue at present averages 25,350 copies. Its weekly issue averages 105,000 copies. Daily and Weekly, it aggregates close on 260,000 copies per week. Its daily issue exceeds the combined issues of all the other Montreal English dailies (four), and its weekly issue is double that of any other weekly published in British North America.

THE MONTREAL DAILY STAR aims at being the best Daily newspaper in the Dominion. Everything is subordinated to the collection of news. Its cable and American telegraphic service is complete, and for its Canadian news it relies almost wholly upon special correspondents, while its rivals continue to depend chiefly upon news provided by the telegraph companies. Its Saturday evening's issue is a double number and takes the place of the Sunday paper. There are no Sunday papers published in Canada.

THE STAR has become the recognized champion of every enterprise likely to further the prosperity of the community in which it is published, and while fearlessly independent in both local and national issues, and resolutely opposed to monopoly or injustice, it preaches and practices toleration toward all honest opinion, and consequently is read by all classes of the people.

THE FAMILY HERALD AND WEEKLY STAR aims at being the family paper par excellence, the friend of the household. The news of the week is given in condensed and telling form; educational, legal, medical, agricultural and veterinary departments are maintained for the benefit of subscribers; the political world is illustrated by sketches and portraits of prominent men; instalments of fiction by popular writers are given, and each week sees a careful selection of family miscellany. Special and separate editions are issued for each province in the Dominion, and a special edition for foreign parts.

Such are the features of the two distinct developments of THE DAILY AND WEEKLY STAR. The aggregate weekly issues of about 260,000 copies have been attained in the short life of sixteen years.

THE STAR'S equipment was always complete, but the natural consequences of its business success have just materialized in the shape of one of the finest newspaper buildings in British America, and an exceptionally prosperous and stable future looms before the paper.

GEO. P. ROWELL & CO.

SKETCH REPRINTED FROM "BRADSTREETS."

NEW YORK, March 1, 1886.

MY DEAR FRIEND: As you have asked me for a minute sketch of Geo. P. Rowell & Co.'s establishment, I assume that you have an interest in advertising, and wish to know exactly what is accomplished by advertising agencies in general, and by Geo. P. Rowell's in particular. I hesitate about beginning this sketch, for there is so much of interest in the details, without which the sketch would be incomplete, that it will consume much time in writing. And if my assumption is not right, and you are not somewhat interested in advertising, and the powerful organization that Rowell & Co. have developed for its successful execution, I pray you to lay aside this letter for the time being, and take it up again some time later, when you may feel interested in this subject. Although I had been in the publishing business for some years, and thought I knew just what a newspaper agency was, I must confess that I really knew but little about this matter, which, after considerable thought, I now see to be one of utmost importance to every progressive business man. And I can assure you that while you expected of me only a brief reply to your request for information concerning Rowell & Co., you need not feel that you have imposed on me a great task, for the work has been exceedingly congenial, and will be of great service to me on many occasions hereafter. It has been also pleasant from the fact that all the persons—the members of the firm and their host of employees—are courteous in the extreme, and seem to take pride in showing the establishment, and explaining its uses and possibilities.

And now that I have referred to the

it may be well to say that the name of Mr. Rowell, the founder and senior member, is one of the best known in America. Every intelligent business man knows him by name, and this reputation is characteristic of his business. He believed in judicious newspaper advertising as a means of fame and profit, and he has demonstrated by his own career how successfully this can be accomplished. For he is not only universally known, but is considered wealthy, besides having lived all along in comfort and even in what may be called comparative luxury. Perhaps he cannot boast of being the "oldest" advertising agent, for his present business was not founded until 1865, but the people who are competent to decide, will readily crown him as the real genius of advertising in the present generation. When he began business he showed at once the spirit that he has incessantly displayed. A short time after he began, a competitor of his said: "He is the most driving man in the business, and will certainly grow rich some day." And still another competitor years ago, when the firm was young and gaining a foothold for credit and general standing, freely added his opinion, saying: "They already do about the largest business in the country, and are making money, while they have already established a high credit. The desire of the firm to do ALL the advertising business of the country, to crowd out the smaller firms, to dictate terms to country newspapers, and their vindictive spirit, have made them many enemies, while their perseverance, pluck and drive, with prompt pay and general good fellowship, make them desirable customers and unquestionably creditable business men."

This cry of an attempt "to crowd out" rivals or small competitors is always raised against any concern combining enterprise and ability, if any innovation is made in the traditional ways of carrying on a business—i. e., if any genius comes along who has the faculty of seeing the weaknesses or fallacies of prevailing methods and the power of outdoing his competitors by unusual although perfectly legitimate means, he runs the risk of being unpleasantly criticised by some of these persons, who fail to see that it is only their own weaknesses that are telling against them.

CRUSHING AND CROWDING OUT.

As a matter of fact, however, I believe that Rowell and his associates have never thought of crushing small concerns or of crowding out rivals, and there can be no doubt that they have from the first done so much to make known to the public the powers and possibilities of advertising agencies, and have even under all the trying circumstances of a newly developing organization so much demonstrated their almost indispensable service to advertisers that instead of crowding out and crushing, they have really made an opening for hundreds of new firms and broadened the business itself very much for those then established.

MR. ROWELL'S ASSOCIATES

are Charles N. Kent and Oscar G. Moses. Mr. Kent graduated from the Harvard Law School, and was admitted to the bar, but seeing the great opening for such an institution as Mr. Rowell had in mind, he became his associate soon after the business was removed to New York city, for this ingenious enterprise, as might be expected, had its origin in Boston, where Mr. Rowell carried it on for a few years. Mr. Moses, a business man who had been a large customer, was admitted to the firm in 1879. Both of these men stand, like Mr. Rowell himself, pre-eminent in their lines of work. All three have been associated together so long, and have been so closely identified with the development of the establishment that they have become almost a unit in their ways of working and their forecast of the future uses of the advertising agency. All three are at their posts early and late, and are apparently as full of vigor and aspirations as ever.

Now that I have, as best I could, given you an indication of the character of the men, let me say something of

THE BUILDING AND ITS LOCATION.

It is a six-story brick structure—i. e., five stories and a finished basement, known as No. 10 Spruce street, and situated in the immediate neighborhood of the great daily and periodical papers of the city. It is across the street from the Tribune building, and on sunny days the shadow of Franklin's statue, standing in Printing House Square, falls upon Rowell & Co.'s front. It is only a stone's throw from the New York Post office, into which are poured every day the tons and tons of newspapers loaded down with the advertisements of men who are destined to be rich, while it is also only a stone's throw from the City Hall Park, which is pretty well occupied by men who have neither brains nor means for advertising, and who will always remain poor. It is within a stone's throw, too, of the leading paper dealers, press builders, type founders, and other trades which are needed directly for the paper publishers, and hence indirectly for the advertisers. It is in this atmosphere and with these surroundings that this establishment is situated.

This firm are probably the only advertising agents who own their premises. The building was bought by Mr. Rowell in 1877. It was then remodeled so as to fully meet the then existing and future demands of the business, which had been calculated from the results of a varied experience of some years in the past and a wise forecasting of the future for some time to come. It has a very plain exterior, but its neat front, its large windows, and numerous accessories, give evidence of the practical and methodical occupants within.

As you enter at No. 10 Spruce street, the place at once convinces you that something lively is going on. The arrangement was skillfully studied to secure the greatest possible accommodations, the least interference of clerks with one another, the easiest passage from department to department, the readiest reference to the files, books, drawers, etc., the quiet consultation of patrons, employers, and employees, the quick passage of the various documents from person to person—in fact, all the machinery essential to an organization which is dependent for its success on the closest carrying out of thousands of details. The main floor is the counting-room, with all that this implies in this estabishment. The fifth story is the type-composing and press-room, which has special interest to the advertiser, for here it is that his matter, which he trusts will bring him great returns, is experimented with until it is got into what seems to be the most advantageous form to lay before the public. The basement has also an interest to the advertiser, for here is where, in thousands of bins, are alphabetically stowed away every paper that has published his advertisement—which has been marked before it is placed in the bin. This basement is incessantly visited by people, some who want to see their own advertising, some who want to see advertising of others, some who wish to consult papers from many motives. Here one can see the successive issues, usually for three months past, of every paper or periodical of any value in all North America. About seventeen hundred papers are here, received, examined, marked, and filed every day. Excepting at one, perhaps two, other advertising agencies, no such number of publications can be seen elsewhere in this country.

THE REVOLUTION.

The revolution that Rowell & Co. brought about a score of years ago created the advertising agency as now conducted. When agencies were first begun their sole aim was to see how well they could serve the papers for which they were working, almost wholly regardless of the advertiser, from whom, of course, they got all the money possible. Rowell & Co. saw the opportunity of serving the public and at the same time doing justice to the papers. They undertook to get the lowest possible prices from the papers and give this difference, which at times was enormous, to their patrons. One well-known house had been paying $2,400 a month for a line of advertising which Rowell & Co. placed at $800, the former sum being the schedule prices of the papers and the latter the prices they could be induced to take by special contract.

INDUCEMENTS TO PAPERS.

Rowell & Co. have also been of incalculable benefit to the newspapers, for as an offset to the forcing down of prices they made the publisher sure of his money. For, as heretofore stated, the firm started out with the policy of paying strictly cash as promptly as an order was executed. They very early in their career established an unquestioned credit, and many an outside publisher was better pleased to get an order from this firm at a low rate than from other firms at a much higher one. They also gained such a knowledge of papers as to be competent to name the value of advertising both to the publisher and to the advertiser. Before they began there was but little actually known in regard to papers, their circulation, their merit, their prices, etc., but now everything of the slightest importance is known by reason of the work accomplished by Rowell & Co., the greater part of which is given to the public in the "American Newspaper Directory," a volume which has in its way become as indispensable as a city directory to the local merchant, or the volume of Bradstreet's Mercantile Reports to the wholesale merchants. I shall, a little further on, say something more about this "American Newspaper Directory," for it is a noteworthy book.

THE SOLE AIM.

The general impression prevails that advertising agencies aim to get people to advertise. But this is not the case. They do not try to allure any one into any line of advertising, but to convince him, when he has fully decided on his line of advertising, that they can do it for him better than he can do it himself. They will, however, furnish him by all odds the most reliable data on which to base his decision. They will not try to get a man to spend money, but will see that he gets the full value of any money he wishes to spend.

PROMPT ACTION

is apparently one of the advantages which an agency can furnish. This at times is essential to the success of a proposed line of advertising, and without such an organization many moves now executed with profit could not be made at all. An advertiser may wish to begin operations in some section at once, but to go at it independently, he would first have at least to study the papers, learn the rates, and establish his credit. All this, and a thousand things besides, the agency lays before him on demand.

THE KNOWLEDGE OF MEN

who are the publishers of the papers throughout the length and breadth of the land is another advantage which Rowell & Co. can offer. They know the men personally, or by repute, or through many transactions, and they soon learn just how far they can be induced to yield when properly approached with good advertising backed with cash. No advertiser alone, or new-comer into the business, can possibly compete, to any great extent, under these circumstances, for here surely is a case where "knowledge is power." Even to day, with all that is known about papers and their prices, there are still many publishers, like many merchants, who have an asking price and a taking price, between which there is too often a vast difference.

ECCENTRICITIES OF PUBLISHERS.

There are many of these to bother any man who sets out to do his own advertising. He may take down a directory of the newspapers and find the prices, size, circulation, and other points, or he may send to each paper for their best advertising rates and sample copies. He then may feel himself competent to begin negotiations, but without a knowledge of the eccentricities of the publishers and specific regulations of their advertising columns he cannot successfully do his own advertising.

"Some demand absolutely cash in advance, regardless of references; some insist on their own classification; some guarantee the faithful performance of their advertisers; some insert no medical advertisements; some object to such as seem to promise the public more than it would seem possible to give for the consideration asked; some exclude announcements which leave the reader in doubt concerning the object or business of the advertiser; many decline to place before their readers the prospectuses of other newspapers; many exclude pictures or large display type. In certain states the laws forbid the publication of any scheme which partakes of the character of a lottery or gift enterprise. So also many papers have special rates for certain classes of advertisements; as, for instance, amusements and legal advertisements are often charged at an advanced price, while schools, and railroad or steamship timetables and "want" advertisements are in many prominent journals advertised at a discount of 25 to 50 per cent. from the schedule fixed for other kinds of business."

For these reasons it is oftentimes impossible for a man to do his own advertising.

PREPARING THE ADVERTISEMENTS.

Here, too, is still another advantage which is of inestimable value to the would-be purchaser of space. There are shrewd and old advertisers employing Rowell & Co., who send with proposals or orders type copy, to follow which to the line every paper is positively instructed. But the majority of patrons send in only written copy, leaving the display and arrangement to the skilled expert labor to be met with at this establishment. In such cases it is first thoughtfully edited so as to be sure that every idea of the advertisers is clearly expressed in the briefest and plainest language, and then it is set up so as to bring out every point in the most effective manner. After clearness, brevity, and effect comes the all-important matter of how to get it all into the minimum space. This, of course, is done in the composing-room on the top floor, where many of the men have been kept at such work during a term of years, and are consequently competent for this very purpose. In this matter, too, there is an all-important point to be considered. An advertisement is made effective only by contrast. Light-face type of small size, set in contracted space, often brings out a more striking effect than big black type filling the space, all owing to the character of the surrounding advertisements. Thus it is that with a knowledge of papers to which an advertisement is to be sent, with a copy of the paper always at hand, they can get up the same matter in numerous forms to obtain all possible effect in the various publications.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT.

A curious table was published not long since by Rowell & Co., the main object of which was to bring out conspicuously the comparative cost of advertising in a representative paper in all sections of the United States. Necessarily circulation is the basis of cost, assuming the advantages to be the same everywhere. The table contains much other matter, but the main point is its last column, which shows "the price per thousand circulation per year for five inches space," based on the average daily circulation. Here it is seen that for seemingly the same thing the prices range from $17 50 (the Providence, R. I., Journal) to $160 (the Virginia City, Nev., Chronicle)—i. e., the Nevada paper charges 1,000 per cent. more than the Rhode Island paper. Hardly two papers charge the same price for the same circulation. Consequently there are other things than circulation to be considered, and Rowell & Co., after compiling the table, sent it out in proof-sheet impressions to all the publishers whose papers were mentioned with the following note:

"The object of compiling the table has been a view of enabling publishers to consider a question which advertisers and advertisement brokers can never permit themselves to lose sight of—viz., What paper gives the advertiser most for his money?

"There are other elements of value beside circulation, but every publisher and advertiser admits that circulation is an important element, and one that must always be considered. It is the only element which can be exactly measured.

"It will be seen that some papers charge nearly ten times as much as others for the same thing.

"We do not say that the scale of prices in each case is not fairly graded, but we ask of the publishers, whose rates we quote, to consider the question whether it actually is so or not.

"It will be noted that the quotations are for daily papers only; that they are given for but one paper in a State; that the paper is in every instance one of the very best in the State."

Many replies were received from the publishers, some explaining at length other elements of good advertising than the mere number of copies printed. Most of them had seemingly plausible reasons for their unquestionably high rates. The publisher of the Chicago Daily News hit the nail on the head when he added to his reply: "We are exceedingly gratified to see a disposition on the part of an advertising agent or advertiser to figure out just exactly what advertising really costs." This is precisely what Rowell & Co. have been doing for the advertising public for twenty years. They are of the profession. In fact they have become arbitrators, as it were, between the papers and their advertisers; the former wanting the business which the latter wants to give. Then it becomes only a question as to the actual value of the commodity. This value is usually most accurately determined by the intervening parties and counsellors, such as Rowell & Co. So far as the public is concerned, there is little doubt that only in such an office, backed up with such a long-continued and well-developed organization, can the true and unprejudiced information be ascertained. Here only can all the claims be clearly viewed and impartially acted upon. Here, with every statistic, every paper, tons of accumulated data, all arranged with the supposition that it may be demanded at any moment, and with men anxious to get the business and equally anxious to patronize all papers, it remains only a question of

CONSCIENTIOUS ADVICE.

Here comes in the simple problem: Does it not pay best to be honest? A concern that has come to stay forever, if possible; that is proud of its name, and has striven boldly and earnestly to bring that prominently and honorably before the business public, usually carries on its business on the most conscientious basis. The records of the firm will show that it holds the patronage of its customers as long and as satisfactorily as does almost any firm in any branch of business. Concerns who were patrons twenty years ago are patrons to-day. It is the accumulation of old customers, not the getting of transient or new customers, that would warrant a concern like this to go systematically to work to earn the good will of the whole newspaper world, and to secure the patronage of the advertising public. Were the business only for to-day there would be no need of any such organization, or of any such quarters with its equipment.

A STRANGE THING

is the cool and unexpected way in which they treat many proposals from would-be patrons. Some farmer or other person who has patented a medicine for man or beast, or something else equally serviceable, writes to them that at last he has saved a few hundred dollars and wants to advertise through them because he feels confident they can make it pay him. Their invariable reply in such cases is that the best thing the party can do is to hold on to the money he has, and not risk it in advertising.

THE SCHEME IN PRACTICE.

In reply to my question as to the actual method of dealing with customers, Mr. Rowell said :

"Let me illustrate it by telling you of our dealings with some firm; for example, P. H. Drake & Co., of New York, the proprietors of the Plantation Bitters, Mustang Liniment, Hagan's Magnolia Balm, Lyon's Kathairon, and other proprietary articles. They have paid us not merely thousands, but several hundreds of thousands of dollars, single orders often reaching fifty thousand dollars. And at the present time we are carrying out a large yearly order recently begun. When they desire to advertise, it is their custom to name to us the States or sections of the country they wish specially to reach. Then we make up lists of papers, carrying out against each the lowest price at which we believe it reasonable to expect the publishers to render the service. When these lists are submitted to Messrs. Drake & Co. they compare the prices with those previously paid, also with special offers from publishers by letters or otherwise, and if they believe that a smaller sum than we had named would be accepted, our figures for those particular papers are revised. And I wish here to make continued Mr. Rowell "It is freely understood between us that we do not promise that every paper will accept the advertising at the price named. When they were unacquainted with the workings of our system they were afraid that we would secure insertions for them in all of the poor papers, and fail to get them into many of the best. An experience of twenty years, however, has demonstrated that the good papers are the most ready to contract with us, and that those finally omitted are not the most desirable when prices, display, position, and other values are considered. As a matter of course we do not undertake to give a good paper at the price of a poor one. What we do accomplish is to get into both at the lowest price they can be induced to accept. If you or any advertiser will go to P. H. Drake & Co. and ask about us, I know they will tell you that they have rarely had occasion to change lists of papers submitted by us; that we have habitually advocated good papers at a high price in preference to poor papers at any price; and furthermore, that there has never been an instance where we failed to procure for them every advantage which any other person has ever offered."

A SPECIAL POINT,"

A CUSTOMER'S VIEW.

Being acquainted with a firm here which was placing a large line of advertising with Rowell & Co., I dropped in to ask one of the partners his view of the service being performed by them. He spoke very kindly of the firm, and said that their experience was all that could be desired. "They recently made an estimate for us to place our advertisement in a large number of high-priced papers which we had selected. Their estimate footed up $16,000. After going carefully over their figures, we asked them if they would accept $18,000 and guarantee insertions in all the papers specified. They replied 'No! We own no papers, and we never sell what we have not bought.' We then offered them $20,000 to give us their guarantee of the acceptance of the advertisement by all of the papers. They still declined on principle, but assured us that the whole would not cost us the sum we were willing to pay. Their chief reason was that to promise every paper would make it tolerably certain that some would exact and receive a price in excess of their value merely on account of their arbitrary demands. We had known from experience that we could do no better any way than to place the order in their hands. They sent it out in their own way, and for $14,000 secured rather more than three-fourths of the circulation represented by the list, and brought to us a pile of neatly-arranged letters from all the remaining papers, showing that these could be had for $4.00. We looked into the matter and concluded to reject all of these, for we were convinced that the prices, as Rowell's people had told us in the beginning, would be too great for the merits of the papers for our particular use. We can frankly say to you, as we said to Rowell & Co., that we feel that in declining our offer of $20,000 they saved us fully $3,000. We are still their patrons.

The remark of Rowell that his firm

OWNS NO PAPERS,

recalls the fact that herein too is another evidence of the revolution brought about since he began in Boston in 1865. He had been engaged on the Boston Post under the regime of Beals, Greene & Co., when it was one of the leading papers of this country. He conceived the idea of buying outright a column in each of one hundred choice New England papers, and greater space pro rata, and farming it out as best he could. He not only saved large sums for his patrons, but made a handsome thing for himself. It has always been, as you see, from the beginning, his aim to be a wholesale buyer in some form and sharing some way with his patrons. And it is just the same principle to-day, although he buys no space in advance, as he did when he had no business built up, the publishers everywhere know that he can utilize considerable space, and will pay cash for it as soon as utilized.

I have within the past few days taken a little turn among well-known newspaper managers, so as to get on this firm and their methods. All speak well of them, and the only criticism that is ever made is that they know too well every point that is ever yielded to any advertiser, and insist upon getting it for their customers. Their knowledge of our own affairs is a help to us, for their orders come to us so specific, their copy is so clearly put, in type or manuscript, their wants so distinctly expressed, that there seldom arises a question about their advertisements, as is too often the case with other patrons. And their system of payments, too, is such that every New York publisher honors their orders as quickly as those of any house. The publishers here are also glad to do business with them from the fact that no time is lost in the doing of the business. They do not go to the offices to quibble about rates, position, types, and a thousand other things that suggest themselves to the novice or occasional advertiser. They know already the possibilities, and they are, with all their shrewdness and experience, very reasonable men. So it is that business coming from them is treated as favorably as it is possible from any one.

THE AMERICAN NEWSPAPER DIRECTORY,

already mentioned, is a gigantic production. It is one of those books regarding the preparation of which words can convey but a faint idea. One who has never attempted a similar piece of work on some small scale can ever appreciate the labor required to get this volume. We can speak of it as containing about 1,400 octavo pages of closely-set matter, all well printed on good paper, and substantially bound; we can say that it is chiefly statistics and descriptions of the nearly 17,000 papers and periodicals of North America; we can add that it is complete in its lists of papers, etc., with all essential data regarding them—their location, publishers, circulation, size, price, etc.; and still further add, that it is a complete gazetteer of every place wherein a regular publication is put forth; we can go on enumerating its contents, and speak positively of its wonderful degree of perfection and accuracy; but we cannot in a brief review give to the uninitiated in this line any conception of the stupendous labor involved in the original compilation, and the sixteen successive annual enlargements and revisions. It is said that the seventeen volumes have involved a total cash outlay of upwards of $200,000, and yet even this fails to represent the indirect cost of the work, and the peculiar talent and noteworthy individuals who have from time to time been found or trained for this compilation. The first volume was the outgrowth of the systematic classification of every bit of information that ever came in the way of or could be hunted out by Rowell & Co. At first it was, as in matters of rates, a fight against the papers in the interest of the advertisers. A great part of the publishers declined to give the circulation and other desired data, and so it had to be gleaned from outside sources. Nowadays, however, it is the almost universal desire of publishers to be reported, and this is so much the case that they readily furnish the means for getting out the book. It is their own advertising which they freely pay for that makes the yearly publication of the book possible and remunerative. It is the careful watching of circulation ratings by competitors that tends to make publishers accurate in their statements when desired for publication. While years ago advertising was oftentimes obtained by deceit or concealment, now it is generally solicited by presenting facts and figures, along with whatever proof can be furnished as to their accuracy. To this firm and to its "American Newspaper Directory," the business man who advertises is indebted far more than he usually realizes for the obtainable trustworthy information and reasonable prices.

ADVERTISING AGENCIES IN GENERAL.

You may say that I set out to write of "agencies in general," and I have seemingly written only of Rowell's. This would be true if this were not a representative ideal advertising agency of the present time, and if it were not also the agency which had been by far the most instrumental in developing these useful organizations. There are other similar agencies of almost equal standing and magnitude, and the work is nowadays pretty much the same in all. Of course there are in every directory a large number of names to be found under the heading of "advertising agents," but inquiry at authoritative quarters will soon disclose the fact that any person soliciting an advertisement for any dodge, or scheme, or newspaper, or periodical, soon gets himself scheduled as an "advertising agent," and their number throughout the country is legion; but there are not many such agencies as Rowell's. As a rule they are found only in the largest cities, and outside of New York there are only one or two in any city. When I told Mr. Rowell I was going to write a long account of his concern, he asked me to be kind enough not to say that theirs was "the largest," "the greatest," or "the best," but to say that they believe they possess every facility now obtainable for carrying out any advertiser's plan with the utmost rapidity, the greatest care, the least labor to the best advantage, and at the minimum of cost. He also explained that they are placing every kind of advertising, from the mere "want" ad. without the slightest display to the biggest advertisement—or largest series of advertisements—possible, involving the most ingenious display.

AGENCIES AND BUREAUS,

when rightly conceived and conscientiously conducted, have become all powerful and essential in the carrying on of the whole industry of the nation. Here is, for instance, the Bradstreet Company, recognized universally by the courts and by all clear-headed business men as absolutely needful in its way, and there are now upward of 20,000 firms subscribing money—from $50 to $3,000 a year each—for the information that this company has been persistently and intelligently accumulating and classifying during the past forty years. So it must in time come to be the case with Rowell & Co. and others who are doing for the advertisers a kindred work to that performed by the Bradstreet Company for the business community, the difference being at present chiefly in the manner of paying for this service—in one case by annual subscriptions, with extra charges, and in the other by merely allowing the agency to place the advertising on terms at least as advantageous as could be obtained in any other manner.

INDISPENSABLE POINTS.

Every day in the week brings a great mail—aside from their 1,700 papers—to the firm which I have been sketching. And in every mail comes a goodly number of letters from every section making inquiries as to the probable cost of advertising. It is a fact that all such inquiries are eagerly solicited and minutely and promptly attended to. But I should judge from the volume of correspondence of this character that an immense expenditure of time and money would be saved to these agencies if their inquirers would only learn a few points before, instead of after beginning their inquiries. And so let me suggest, if you are going to do some advertising, as I assumed at the beginning of this sketch, that you make the agencies understand very clearly six indispensable points:

- |                                |                                      |
|--------------------------------|--------------------------------------|
| 1. What you want to advertise. | 4. The names of the papers.          |
| 2. The space you expect.       | 5. The wording of the advertisement. |
| 3. For how long a time.        | 6. Amount of money you will spend    |

If you have been following me through this sketch you will perceive that these points must be learned before the agency can give an estimate of their charges or insert any advertising. And do not forget, what I have tried to make clear, that the agency aims not so much to induce you to advertise as to satisfy you when you are going to advertise that such a house as Rowell & Co.'s is the best place for you to do the work.

Again assuring you of my pleasure in writing you at this length on the subject, which has a peculiar interest to me, I remain,

Very truly yours,

MOSES KING.

EDITORIAL COMMENDATIONS.

FOR THE PURPOSE OF PRESERVING THE FOLLOWING EXTRACTS, WHICH HAVE RECENTLY APPEARED, AND WHICH MAY POSSESS INTEREST TO NEWSPAPER PUBLISHERS AND ADVERTISERS, THEY ARE REPRINTED HERE.

A THOROUGH advertising agency, an honest advertising agency and a valuable advertising agency mean much more than might at first appear. The advertiser wants to know at what points his particular commodity will be likely to be most eagerly sought, from what section he may look for the largest returns and what particular journals may reach in those sections such people as will be most likely to patronize the interests which he has in hand. The journals are, of course, anxious to be assured of the certainty of payment and the continuation of patronage. These two interests are those which a really intelligent advertising agency desires to serve, and to thoroughly serve which is its only hope of success. Nobody understood this better than did Messrs. Geo. P. Rowell & Co. They saw in the first place that honesty—to place the matter on no higher plane—was the best policy; that to serve the system in which they believed was to serve each of these interests alike with fidelity and thoroughness. The circulation, all other things being equal, is the most important factor in ascertaining the commercial value of the advertising columns of a newspaper. But other matters of information are important—the character of the journal itself, the class of readers who purchase and peruse it, the particular adaptability of the journal and its circulation to the particular class of commodities to which its attention is to be called. It would be tedious to attempt to enumerate all of the duties and advantages of an advertising agency of the first class, but nowhere have these things been more intelligently and carefully considered than by Messrs. Rowell & Co., and those who have so successfully seconded efforts to establish what is really a great commercial agency. The amount of information to be obtained from the American Newspaper Directory is, as has been noticed, truly wonderful. The location, the character, and the territory covered by every journal in the United States are enumerated. The size, the names of the publishers, and the circulation of all of these journals are fully and accurately described. One wonders sometimes at the mass of information of all sorts relating to the advertising business of the country, its newspapers, their advantage, and the special fields covered by them, to be obtained from the pages of the Directory. It seems like an almost incredible task to have gotten together so much data of interest and importance upon this one special subject. At first glance it may not seem a very stupendous task to collect and present in a handy form such information as this; but when one considers the details which the acquisition of such data involves it presents a very much more astonishing aspect. To the advertisers in a small way—that is, in a comparatively small way—one need not ponder long to see what an advantage such an institution really is. It would be impossible, it is impossible, for such individuals or firms, enterprising as they may be, to attempt profitably to obtain from the vastly diversified sections of the country such information as such an agency can furnish them at once and without cost. To the more extensive, to the colossal advertiser, indeed, the advantages of such an institution are too manifest to need explanation. It is, therefore, manifest, first and evidently, that such an enterprise should be located in the foremost business centre of the country—New York. Then the second consideration, of importance to both the advertisers and the advertising medium, is that it should be reliable and responsible. Geo. P. Rowell & Co. have never lost sight of these two vital principles. Brains are, of course, as important an adjunct of a successful enterprise of this sort as of any other, and foresight and business sagacity count for much more than mere smartness and trickery. Having all these facts in view, the Rowell Agency, which is really the father of the system of scientific advertising, has increased and prospered. A fact of special interest in this particular agency is that all bills found to be correct are paid within forty-eight hours of the receipt of statements. Entirely responsible, the contracts are as good as first-class commercial credit. This is an indispensable element in the consideration of an intermediate agent in this sort of business.—Philadelphia (Pa.) Record, Dec. 2d, 1885.

No one can fail, in reviewing the disasters and the successes of advertising ventures, to appreciate the immense advantages to such enterprises, of such institutions, as the Rowell Agency. It may not seem so great an institution as it really is, but it is a fact that if all the agencies in this country alone were to discontinue taking or sending advertising to the papers the revenue of the publishers would fall off not less than one-third. The value and the experience an advertising agent can furnish are incalculable, and this work, which a merchant and a manufacturer would otherwise be compelled to pay, is paid by the publisher himself. As we have seen, great fortunes have been, and great fortunes are yet to be made in judicious advertising, and in particular localities extensive advertisers may profit, in a measure, by conducting individual agencies of their own. They are, however, exceptions to the rule, and even they, enormous as may be their business, cannot entirely avoid the services of such agencies as that of Messrs. Rowell & Co. And when they attempt to reach into a terra incognita, at least a land unknown to them, they must avail themselves of the superior knowledge possessed by such an institution. There is a great deal of confidential knowledge which is at the service of the customer who comes in contact with the business of the institution—points which it would be neither wise nor expedient to publish, but which are of incalculable advantage to the trade. It is not only the advertiser who is thus benefited, but the papers are protected and all interests are served. Advertising agencies have, since Mr. Rowell's first venture twenty years ago, become an institution of the day, and their usefulness and necessity are now fully recognized. Year by year their business increases, and probably two-thirds of the most successful advertising in the United States is placed by them, the aggregate of cash paid out through their hands amounting to millions. To irresponsible advertisers, and to papers of little value as mediums, the agency is an evil. They discover the weakness of the one, and are fully posted as to the facts about the other, and few careful business men who understand the importance of a reliable guarantee now think themselves able to get along in the newspaper and advertising world without such an institution as the Rowell Agency. It has recently happened in several striking instances that men of pluck and enterprise, who have mapped out a definite plan of extensive advertisement, and who backed their faith in printers' ink by scores of thousands of dollars a year, have found after sad experience that the attempt to depend entirely upon their individual resources in making contracts, enforcing them, and properly reaching the people they are after, has terminated in anything but satisfactory results, and have been compelled at last to call in the experience and special facilities of the agencies. One need not possess extraordinary sagacity to see that the drift of the business of advertising is tending rapidly to the scientific system, which cannot be thoroughly successful upon any other plan than that which the Rowell and other large and influential agencies have adopted. In union there is strength, and in honest, capable, and well-directed union of interest in advertising there is safety for the publisher, a guarantee of results for the advertiser and a reasonable profit for the institution thus managed. A perfect system prevails in the management of the business of Geo. P. Rowell & Co., and the merchant who intrusts his advertising to this firm may expect to have it attended to with the utmost fidelity and in the most accurate manner. It is in this way that the Messrs. Rowell have built up the large and lucrative business which they now enjoy, and it is by strict adherence to these cardinal principles that they now owe the proud position they occupy in the field of general advertising agencies.—Philadelphia (Pa.) Record, Dec. 23d, 1885.

In a long, able, and exhaustive article descriptive of the origin, growth and present magnitude of the business of advertising as started and managed by George P. Rowell & Co., the world-famed advertising agents, recently published, we find much that is interesting. One wonders sometimes at the mass of information of all sorts relating to the advertising business of the country, its newspapers, their advantage, and the special fields covered by them, to be obtained at their agency or from the pages of the American Newspaper Directory. It seems like an almost incredible task to have gotten together so much data of interest and importance upon this one special subject. The names of papers published in every city, town, or village in the country are given, besides all necessary information about the place in which the newspapers are published, with its population, location, the name and location of the county, the politics, religion, class and characteristics of each paper, the day of issue, the name of the editor and publisher, the size of the paper, the price of subscription and the date of establishment. But, above all, it gives the circulation of the paper, and its figures have become recognized as accurate. It is the most important feature of the Directory, and the utmost care is exercised to get nothing but what is accurate information on this point. The trouble encountered and the diligence displayed in the collection of true figures concerning circulations, cannot be imagined. It is something that advertisers would find most difficult to obtain were it not for the American Newspaper Directory. When it is known that there are in the United States and Canada over 13,000 newspapers and periodicals which are represented in the American Newspaper Directory, most of which are on file in their establishment, and with which they are in constant communication, the character of the enterprise and its great advantages to those who desire to profitably distribute their appeals to the consumer of their goods becomes as evident as an axiom. A perfect system prevails in the management of the business of George P. Rowell & Co., and the merchant who intrusts his advertising to this firm may expect to have it attended to with the utmost fidelity and in the most accurate manner. They have won the respect and confidence of all with whom they do business, and every succeeding year adds to their list of customers. Satisfaction is guaranteed, and the interests of the advertiser are carefully guarded.—Harrisburg (Pa.) Telegraph, Jan. 5th, 1886.

The office, outfit, and requisite plant for a first-class agency in New York cost at least $100,000 investment, and a weekly pay-roll of $1,000. There is no doubt in our mind, after forty years' experience, that such an agency as that of Geo. P. Rowell & Co. is better for the advertiser and better for the newspaper than any special, exclusive agency. The newspapers combine in what is termed an associated press, by which nine-tenths of the news is gathered. Why should they not also have their advertising gathered by single large agencies in New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Chicago, etc.? Such co-operation reduces the expense. It does the work for the advertiser more satisfactorily and cheaply, while at the same time it gives the publisher greater net results. An agency like that of Rowell & Co. has the name and standing of all the advertisers in the country. It also has the circulation of all the newspapers. The newspaper and advertiser are nearer together in such a bureau than anywhere else. It is estimated by good authority that more than 25 per cent. of the advertising in American newspapers is never paid for. If all the foreign advertising had been received at the hands of a sound agency, not a dollar would have been lost. The advertising could have been done 20 per cent. cheaper, and still the newspapers receive more, the amount of bad debts being reduced to a minimum. Every advertiser who pays his bills is benefitted by the exclusion of orders not good. Bogus advertising schemes are not as likely to get into a newspaper through a wide-awake first-class agency, as when the publisher attempts to do his own business in a distant city. A good general agent knows these bogus concerns at sight, as a bank-teller does a bogus bill. To have one represented in a newspaper is a damage much greater than the mere loss of the account. Large advertisers, we are convinced, will do better to give their out-of-town orders to a sound advertising broker. There are very few advertisers who can do their own advertising to the best advantage, just as there are few merchants or business men who are warranted in doing their own insurance or their own banking. Co-operation reduces the cost to the individual, provided dealings are had with general agents who are financially sound, who know the business, and conduct it upon good business principles and with economical methods.—Milwaukee (Wis.) Evening Wisconsin, Dec. 19th, 1885.

ADVERTISING agencies have come to be recognized as a necessity of the day. Year by year their business increases, and probably two-thirds of the successful advertising in the United States is placed by them, the aggregate of cash paid out in this way amounting to millions annually. One need not possess extraordinary sagacity to see that the drift of the business of advertising is tending rapidly to the scientific system. It is apparent that no advertiser, however large his operations, can afford to establish his own bureau with such ample sources of information and such thorough methods as those of a general bureau which does the work for thousands of his competitors. Combination, intelligently directed, can always do more than individual effort. Of course there is a perfect system in the management of the business of Geo. P. Rowell & Co., and the merchant who entrusts his advertising to this firm may expect to have it attended to with fidelity and in the most accurate manner. They have won the respect and confidence of all with whom they do business. To any one who thinks, the advantages of such an institution to advertisers in a small or large way, is obvious. It would be impossible for small firms, enterprising though they may be, to attempt without great cost, to obtain such verified information as such an agency can furnish without charge. To the extensive advertiser, the advantages of such an institution are so multiplied and manifest as to need no explanation. Another consideration of importance is that the concern should be unquestionably responsible. What the newspaper requires is security of payment. What the advertiser desires is certainty of fidelity to his interests, and assurances that the representations as to character, circulation, and availability of the mediums which he employs are to be depended upon. No agency can have a permanent and profitable existence lacking these elements. Base imitators always follow successful ventures, and may appear to succeed for a time, but they are really ephemeral and evanescent. It is only such institutions as Geo. P. Rowell & Co.'s Agency that have continued an unflinching success.—Wilmington (Del.) Morning News, Feb. 5th, 1886.

ADVERTISEMENTS in these latter days constitute as much a part of the news of the day as the dispatches and the latest home gossip and information, and the people who have made advertising a study are as interesting in their way as the mysterious "we's" who thunder in the leader, or the enterprising and sparkling fellows who write up the sketches or report the base-ball matches. It is no startling truth that without its advantages the modern newspaper would be an impossibility, and the sagacity of the business management is as important as the intelligence and brightness of the editorial rooms; and in this connection no department of journalism possesses more interest than that of the great advertisement agencies of the world, which have grown to such immense importance that the business world could not now well do without them. One glances instinctively to New York for types of such enterprises as are suggested by the thought of centres for the distribution of mercantile information through the medium of a newspaper's advertising columns. What could be more necessary than that there should be special, enterprising, and thoroughly equipped organizations, which can distribute to the best advantage the advertising which business men and business interests in different sections are crowding on the newspapers throughout the continent. The great advertising agencies are an outgrowth of necessity to those who seek the newspapers and to the newspapers which seeks the advertiser. The millions of dollars sent annually in this country to newspapers, hundreds, and even thousands of miles from the advertisers, must eventually find a system of intelligent distribution which relieves the latter of the expense of individual investigation, and the former of the risks involved in the acceptance of doubtful customers. Well, the system has come along with the demand, and, with the history of the progress of national advertising upon scientific principles, the name of Geo. P. Rowell & Co. will always be inseparably linked.—Philadelphia (Pa.) Record, Dec. 23d, 1885.

FOR years the newspapers of the smaller towns have been struggling with the advertising problem as presented by general advertisers, and their gatherings for social and business purposes have the matter before them constantly, but as yet have failed to reach any satisfactory conclusion, although their Utopia seems to be some central agency in New York that will give entire satisfaction. Why and how a house like that of Geo. P. Rowell & Co., New York, fails to fill the bill we are at a loss to see. We believe the agencies have been of great good to the newspapers of the country, even to those who do not do business with them (we have not had a line of business with G. P. R. & Co. in several years); that they have raised the standard of excellence; that they have introduced a better style of advertising; that their books have been of the greatest value to the craft; that they are a legitimate adjunct to the newspaper business. And because of this we believe it will prove to the ultimate good of all to turn towards them as the only legitimate channels for business outside of our own immediate centres of publication. We cannot afford to be indifferent to any matter which obtains against these agencies, for "no man liveth to himself alone," and no one has so much with which to prove the usefulness of the newspaper press as an advertising medium as the advertising agent, and nothing will be such an incentive to bring its value to general notice as the fact that the newspapers regard him as one naturally interested in bringing the producer and consumer into the more intimate relations of seller and purchaser.—Lexington (Mass.) Minute Man, Oct. 30th, 1885.

ARE our readers familiar to any extent with the business and details of a newspaper advertising agency? Probably few know anything of it, and those few will be reminded of pleasant remembrances if we outline the leading firm in this business in New York, Messrs. Geo. P. Rowell & Co., 10 Spruce street, not for the sake of making needless comparisons, but simply because we chance to be more familiar with their establishment and its methods. From the very beginning of their career in 1865 the objects have been on the one hand to secure the maximum of circulation for the minimum of cost to the advertiser, with the highest degree of perfection in tracing the expenditures of money with the least trouble to the advertiser; and this has always meant a fair compensation to the publisher, coupled with a prompt payment of all obligations so sure to secure the good will and whatever of special favor we as publishers are ready to grant to that class of customers. The perfection of system now in vogue with the house of Geo. P. Rowell & Co. is the result of many trials of whatever seemed a good plan, and no cost to the firm has ever stood in the way of an experiment that promised fair results. In the business office perfection in system and minuteness of details obtains, so that it is impossible that the briefest communication, on the most unimportant of business matters, can escape attention.—Lexington (Mass.) Minute Man, Oct. 30th, 1885.

NEWSPAPER advertising as an art, is, perhaps, in its infancy, but it has already reached a high state of development, and has become one of the most interesting subjects of study connected with the greatest power of the age—the press. With the history of the progress of national advertising upon scientific principles, the name of Geo. P. Rowell & Co. will always be inseparably linked. Twenty years ago they looked far enough into the future to see that the old methods would have to be dropped, and that the great medium of communication between those who wished to sell and those who wished to buy would be the columns of the newspaper. With this idea in view they went to work and have succeeded in establishing the greatest advertising agency in the world. Over 13,000 newspapers and periodicals are represented in the American Newspaper Directory. The secret of Rowell & Co.'s success is not hard to find. They do business in a fair, square way, perform what they promise and live up to the very letter of their contracts, both with the advertiser and the newspaper publisher. It is not, therefore, surprising that they stand high in the estimation of the business community.—Trenton (N. J.) Times, Jan. 7th, 1886.

WHEN it comes to promptness in business transactions, the advertising agency of Geo. P. Rowell & Co., New York, can't be beat. A good-sized bill sent them by us the other day resulted in the receipt of a check for the full amount, by return mail. Only the most complete systematizing of business admits of such prompt response to the demands of parties having claims against Rowell & Co., and we are sure that all who deal fairly with them will find them awake and square on all sides. As a successful advertising agency, Rowell & Co. are entitled to the confidence of business men.—St. Albans (Vt.) Messenger, Jan. 21st, 1886.

THIS BOOK!

THE EIGHTEENTH EDITION OF THE

AMERICAN NEWSPAPER DIRECTORY.

METHODS ADOPTED FOR THE ANNUAL REVISION.

In the revision of THE AMERICAN NEWSPAPER DIRECTORY, for the purpose of issuing the Eighteenth Annual Edition, the following plan was adopted:

First, the description of each newspaper as it appeared in the last issue of THE DIRECTORY (1885) was cut out and pasted on a sheet of paper and sent by mail to the publisher, and his attention called to it in the following words.

Above is the report of your paper as it appears in the last (1885) edition of THE AMERICAN NEWSPAPER DIRECTORY.

THE DIRECTORY undertakes to report the name of every periodical; day, days, or frequency of issue; politics or general character; form, size of paper used; yearly subscription price; year of establishment; editor's name; publisher's name; and to give it a correct circulation rating.

If your paper is erroneously reported on any of the above points, or if upon any it is not reported at all, you are requested to furnish the information necessary to correct or complete the report. Please reply as soon as practicable, using the post-paid envelope sent you herewith.

From the description of the paper sent for revision the circulation rating was cut out; because experience had shown that when the rating accorded happened to be too high, sufficient care was not always bestowed upon the correction of that particular detail of the report.

The publisher was requested (if he furnished any information at all upon which the circulation report of his paper might be based) to send a memorandum of the actual issues for each number for a period of not less than three months; and he was at the same time informed that a report for a full year would be more satisfactory; and was asked to make his report as definite as to dates and figures as he would wish a statement from a rival publisher to be if a comparison, based upon the reports, were to be instituted between the two papers.

For the purpose of making it impossible to misunderstand the sort of report it was desirable to receive, a sample of one which had been made out in a satisfactory manner was furnished to every paper.

In reply corrected reports were received on the subsequent day and for weeks thereafter, until they numbered about six thousand, THE DIRECTORY mail having contained over eighteen hundred such communications in a single day. The amount of labor requisite in reading, answering, where answers were necessary, and filing away for future use this vast amount of matter, in a limited time, can only be appreciated by those accustomed to work of this, or of a similar, nature. In all instances where the post-paid envelope was returned and was found to contain no report upon which it would appear to be proper to base a circulation rating, the publisher was again communicated with and asked if it was an oversight that he neglected to furnish a detailed statement. He was also informed that:

"The plan of THE DIRECTORY compels us to estimate the regular average edition of every paper, and it is very important to us that we make it plain to every publisher that we would be glad to have his own statement on file (for nobody else is so competent to report the actual truth), but if there is any objection whatever to furnishing the facts this communication needs no reply; it is sent only to make certain that the subject was not overlooked."

The publisher was told that the Editor of THE DIRECTORY would be very glad indeed to learn the facts about a newspaper's circulation, whenever there existed no objection to communicating them in detail and over the signature of the publisher. In this second communication, on a separate page, all that was said in the first one, on the subject of circulation, was reprinted and the sample showing what constituted such a statement as would be satisfactory was again inclosed.

In some instances a second reply failed to convey the information with so much definiteness as would permit of its being relied on, and a third communication was then sent, in which the publisher was informed that:

"In your communication just received, you still omit to furnish any detailed statement upon which a correct circulation rating for your publication may be fixed.

"We very much desire to have a memorandum of the actual issues for each number for a period of not less than three months. Each issue stated separately (the actual issue, not the average issue). A report for a full year would be more satisfactory. If you will look at the sample statement printed on third page of this sheet you will see exactly what we would like to have.

"If you are unwilling or unable to furnish a statement in detail, then this communication needs no reply; but we should be very glad indeed to be furnished with the information direct from your own office and over your own signature."

In this, the third communication on the subject, all that part of the first circular which referred to circulation, and also the sample of the sort of statement which was desired, was forwarded for the third time.

The circulation ratings are given approximately in THE DIRECTORY by the use of letters and figures, the meaning of which is learned by reference to a KEY, in accordance with a method found so satisfactory by the mercantile agencies in reporting the credit and capital of commercial houses; but for the purpose of favoring those publishers who were able, and some who were really anxious to have the actual facts made known, a promise was made that, in addition to the regular circulation rating, the figures, which would represent the average edition printed for a year would be published in connection with the report for every paper, the publisher of which furnished in good faith a statement prepared in detail and duly signed, showing:

"First—The date and actual edition of each issue of his paper for a full year immediately preceding the date of the statement.

"Second—The sum total of all the issues (for the full year) footed up.

"Third—The average issue; found by dividing the total sum by the number of issues."

Following the report of each paper whose publisher availed himself of this privilege will be found its circulation, given in figures, as per statement on file at the office of THE AMERICAN NEWSPAPER DIRECTORY, this additional matter being in all cases set in italic type. It is inserted without cost to the publisher, when ever furnished in good faith and properly signed and dated. The form of information contained in many of the reports would seem to indicate the willingness of publishers to comply with the conditions of this proposal, but as a rigorous conformity to the terms of the proposition was deemed essential, many, whose reports would otherwise entitle them to the statement, were thereby excluded. Notwithstanding this fact the number who furnished complete reports will be found to be two hundred and thirty-five, a remarkable advance when compared with last year.

After waiting a suitable time, it was found that some publishers had failed to make any response to the application for information upon which a correct report of the paper could be based, and to all such there was mailed a duplicate of the first application, and attached to it a communication of which the following is a part:

"Herewith we send you a duplicate of our communication of November 10th, 1885, and call your attention to the fact that, although we then enclosed a post-paid addressed envelope for your reply, no reply has as yet been received.

"Fearing that there may have been a miscarriage of either our communication to you or your reply to us, and wishing that any failure to receive your corrected report for the 1886 edition of THE AMERICAN NEWSPAPER DIRECTORY may not be the result of accident or oversight, we again address you.

"The plan of THE DIRECTORY compels us to estimate the regular average edition of every paper, and it is important to us that we make it plain to every publisher that we would be glad to have on file his own statement, over his own signature (for nobody else is so competent to report the actual truth). A report for a full year would be most satisfactory. If you will look at the sample statement sent herewith you will see exactly what we would like to have. If you cannot furnish such a statement, then a memorandum of the actual issues for each number, for a period of not less than three months, each issue stated separately—the actual issue, not the average issue—would be serviceable."

Replies to the number of over twenty-five hundred, which came in response to this second direct application, and which were less than complete, were treated precisely as were those which came in answer to the first.

It may be here stated that during the period of the active DIRECTORY work every paper which appears in this edition was either heard from direct or intelligence of its then present existence was received from some reliable source. This fact is significant when it is remembered that, notwithstanding the most persistent efforts, it has heretofore been impossible to ascertain definitely whether certain papers, of which no late copies could be had, were still published or not, the previous edition shows seventeen of this class.

It has sometimes been claimed that no person has any right to ask the publisher of a newspaper what his circulation is, because, it is said, that that is strictly a private matter which concerns only the publisher. "I never have and never expect to give my circulation," writes one publisher. "I regard that as an entirely private matter," says another. "There is no decency in asking my circulation after I declined to give it," is the expression of a third. Yet advertisers, who pay their money for the publicity which a newspaper can give, take an opposite view of the case, and it is mainly in the service of advertisers that THE AMERICAN NEWSPAPER DIRECTORY is issued.

The publishers of THE DIRECTORY partially recognize that they have no actual right to require the publisher of a newspaper to convey this information to them, and they avoid doing anything more than to make it plain that they would like to be placed in possession of the facts, because, as they are expected to convey to advertisers information on this very subject, it becomes apparent that if they do not ask the publisher to furnish it over his own signature, that they should at least furnish him an opportunity to do it, provided he wishes to.

Since THE DIRECTORY has quoted newspaper circulations by symbolic letters and figures, advertisers and advertising agents get in a habit of valuing papers in accordance with their ratings, and to a considerable extent to omit the consideration of any other facts concerning them. They arrange them in classes as K 1, J 2, etc., and this being the case, it becomes rather important that every publisher who seeks advertising patronage from a distance shall not be deprived of an opportunity to be correctly classed.

Papers marked K 1 are believed to have an average circulation exceeding 500 copies; papers marked J 1 are thought to exceed a thousand copies each issue, and a paper marked I 1 to exceed 2,000 copies. Now, if an advertisement in a K 1 paper is fairly worth $5.00, its value in a J 1 paper cannot be less than $8.00, and in an I 1 paper $12.00 would not be too much, and these are about the proportions that a judicious advertiser would think of offering. It becomes quite important, therefore, that the publisher of a paper entitled to be rated at I 1 and J 1 shall not, by any neglect of his own, permit the rating to be something less than the facts, if known at THE DIRECTORY office, would secure for him.

Conscious, also, that circulations have generally decreased during the past year, it has been the endeavor of the publishers of THE DIRECTORY to prevent any injustice being done to newspapers, by placing at their disposal every facility for making known the exact facts, at the same time taking advantage of such general information, and making such special inquiries as long experience and the character of the work have suggested.

To be rated correctly does not require any outlay of money or influence; it is not a favor, it is a right which is accorded to every publisher who furnishes in good faith an accurate statement of the actual number of papers which he has issued for a period not less than three months preceding the time of making his report.

A desire to be rated at the highest possible figure has often led a conscientious publisher to delay making a statement. "We have now about 1,200 subscribers, but confidently expect within two months to increase the number to 3,500 or over." "I do not care to make any circulation statement, because my circulation is rapidly increasing, and probably before THE DIRECTORY is published I will have added 100 to my list." It will be seen that the two gentlemen quoted above neglected to furnish any statement in detail. After they had written the letters the matter was allowed to pass from their minds, and when THE DIRECTORY appears, if they find that their failure to give the proper information at the time they wrote has led to their circulation rating being fixed a grade below, instead of above, what the facts would at that time have warranted, it is hoped that they will not think of putting the blame where it does not belong.

It is a curious circumstance that many publishers find it difficult to maintain an implicit faith in the statements concerning circulation made by other publishers. They sometimes do rivals a material injustice by expressing their doubts. "As to the circulation of our contemporaries, we prefer not to revise their figures, although we are confident that four-fifths of them are credited with from 50 to 100 per cent. more circulation than they are entitled to" "We do not desire to give our circulation, because papers so largely exaggerate that ours, supported even by affidavit, would appear insignificant." "We do not wish to make false returns, and do not wish to place real figures by the side of fictitious figures accredited to other papers." "An honest statement has no fair show, when neighboring publishers profess a willingness to swear to a circulation largely in excess of truth." "It is generally believed that overstatements are made in regard to circulation; a statement of the exact truth would therefore work injuriously." These are samples of the objections which the editor of THE DIRECTORY has to consider. One publisher writes: "I inclose a statement of circulation, but prefer that it should not be published, because it is strictly correct, and the circulation of several papers in this vicinity has been grossly exaggerated." Another says: "Great injustice was done me in the last DIRECTORY, in giving my competitor here over 1,600 when he has not over 1,000 in circulation, to my actual knowledge."

In all the complaints which are made to the publishers of THE DIRECTORY about circulation ratings, it is rare that the complaint is based upon a claim that the writer's paper is rated too low, but, almost always, that his neighbor is rated too high.

After all had been done in the direction of communications to and from publishers, it was found necessary to examine one or more copies of every publication which THE DIRECTORY undertakes to describe, noting its day or frequency of issue, its form, whether a folio, quarto, or in book shape, and the size of paper used. To learn all this makes it necessary to measure, with a yardstick, more than fourteen thousand separate newspapers and periodicals, unfolding, refolding, and noting the result.

The yearly subscription price, as given in each paper, had to be referred to and any change noted. So also with the editor's and publisher's name. To state reliably what is the political complexion, or other characteristic, sometimes required a pretty careful perusal of several copies of the publication under consideration, as these are not always apparent to one making a hasty examination.

At THE DIRECTORY office there are received about three-fourths of all the publications issued in the United States and Canada, and copies of these are, of course, readily accessible. To obtain most of the papers which are not regularly received, it was only necessary to communicate with the publishers and express a desire for a sample copy, and the purpose for which it was wanted; but there are a few publishers who, from a variety of causes, refrain from acquiescing in such demands; and in those cases the editor of THE DIRECTORY was compelled to rely upon the kindness of a neighboring publisher or to apply to the local postmaster. Eliminating dead papers is one of the most difficult and troublesome items of labor in preparing for the publication of THE DIRECTORY.

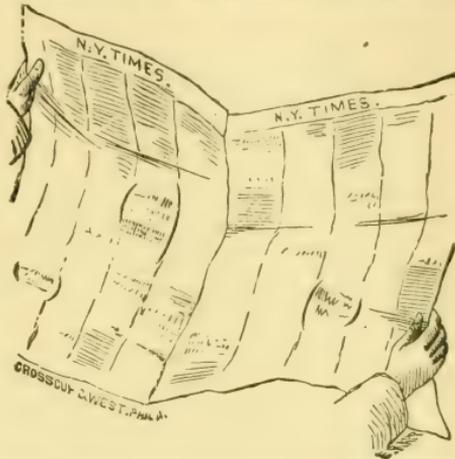

An inquiry into the increase during the past twelve months, in the number of papers, will present no very striking contrast to the gains exhibited in the last edition over its immediate predecessor.

The aggregate number of newspapers and periodicals published in the United States and Canada is 14,839, a net gain of 692 over the previous year. Of this number the United States can lay claim to 14,160 and Canada to 679, showing an increase of 666 and 26 respectively. In 1885 the net gain in the United States was 823 and in Canada 22.

The most conspicuous instances of growth are furnished by comparatively new and thinly populated sections. Thus we find in Kansas an increase of 117, or 24 per cent. of the whole number of papers published in the State, and in Nebraska an increase of 58, or 18 per cent. of the number published.

The State of Massachusetts exhibits a remarkable increase (45) in the number of its weeklies, while the number of monthlies is three less than last year. This would seem to indicate that while the rural press is gaining in numbers, the magazines, or periodical publications, are losing ground in this the State of their nativity and most conspicuous triumphs.

The States of Illinois, Indiana and Iowa, located as they are in the same geographical section of the country, and possessing no very dissimilar characteristics, present a curious contrast. Illinois and Iowa show an increase of 48 and 44 respectively, while Indiana has increased but five. It would be difficult to find any satisfactory solution of the cause of this difference in journalistic enterprise in these three States.

Besides the States above mentioned, those which show the greatest increase are: Michigan, 30; New York, 30; Wisconsin, 25; New Jersey, 23; Ohio, 21; Minnesota, 21; Missouri, 20; North Carolina, 17; Georgia and Kentucky, 16 each; Arkansas, 15; West Virginia, 11 and Connecticut, 10. Maine has increased 5 and Texas 3; California 9 and Florida 6. The increase in the last three named States as shown by the 1885 DIRECTORY was: Texas, 28; California, 36, and Florida, 23.

The most prominent decrease is in the District of Columbia, which has fallen off 9. Maryland and Vermont have each three less than last year. Nevada shows a decrease of 2 and Virginia 1. The number of papers in Delaware remains at 32, the same as last year.

The Territories exhibit a total increase of 41; the increase in 1885 over the previous year was 66.

In Canada, Ontario, shows an increase of 20, five of which are dailies. British Columbia and Nova Scotia exhibit a gain of 3 each.

The total number of dailies published in the United States will be seen to be 1,216, or 33 more than one year ago. Pennsylvania has three dailies less than then, and New York four more. Kansas shows the largest increase in the number of dailies.

The weeklies have increased from 10,082 in 1885 to 10,685 in 1886; Kansas again heading the list with 105, followed by Nebraska with 59, Massachusetts with 45, Iowa with 42 and New York with 32.

That stability is one of the features of monthly publications is shown by the fact that the number varies but one from the total of last year. The increase of 23 in the number of monthlies in New York is by far the largest gain shown in any State, and clearly emphasizes the assertion that the Empire State is fast becoming the literary centre of the Union, and that the magazines themselves, as well as their contributors, find here a most congenial atmosphere. The large percentage of unsuccessful enterprises to which the past year has given birth can be estimated by comparing the real increase with the number of new journals of which copies were actually received. Thus it has been seen that the net increase in the United States is 666, while, according to the records kept, the number of establishments is 2,185, the former being but 30 per cent. of the latter.

The number of periodicals in this edition, to which is accorded a regular average circulation exceeding 5,000 copies each issue, is 1,219, of which number 510 are regular weekly issues, 148 are Sunday papers, 212 are dailies and 349 are issued at other intervals, mostly monthlies.

After arranging the whole list of newspapers alphabetically by States, they are separately re-arranged and classified by Counties, as shown in Part II. Much care on the part of the editor of THE DIRECTORY is necessitated in correctly applying the ingenious geographical indicators invented by Dr. Joseph M. Toner, of Washington, and used only in this book, the little projection from which indicates in what portion or direction from the centre of the State the County may be found. They are of great convenience to the advertisers who wish to use the book, and to the advertising agent who selects a list for his patron which shall, so far as may be, represent all sections of a region in which his patron wishes to place an advertisement.

It has been found that many persons who use newspapers have an interest only in certain classes of them, and this fact has led to the arrangement of the many other parts, where are separately catalogued papers devoted to Religion, Agriculture, The Trades, Medicine, Science, Amusements, The Law, Commerce and several other specialties, together with those printed wholly or in part in foreign languages, of which there are hundreds.

The value of THE DIRECTORY as a Gazetteer, if as well known to business men generally as it is to large advertisers and to publishers, would lead to a considerably increased sale of the book, for every town which is of sufficient importance to publish a newspaper is adequately described therein and the most conspicuous facts concerning its importance and industries are given. THE DIRECTORY is the only Gazetteer of the United States and Canada which is published regularly and subject to an annual revision.

No charge is made to any publisher of a newspaper for anything which appears in the alphabetically arranged catalogue or in any of the special parts of THE AMERICAN NEWSPAPER DIRECTORY, and no publisher knows in advance exactly what his report is to be. Each page is kept open for revision until the form in which it belongs actually goes to press, so as to permit of corrections being made up to the last possible moment.

For the statements made in the advertising pages of the book the publishers of THE DIRECTORY take no responsibility. The publisher of a newspaper says in his advertisement whatever he chooses, and the editor of THE DIRECTORY is not expected to read the advertisement, to be influenced by any statement which it contains, or even to know whether there is one to be inserted. Where advertisements are made up for the publisher in THE DIRECTORY office by special request, as is sometimes done, it may be possibly claimed that THE DIRECTORY is in some sense responsible for them, and it will generally be found that in such advertisements there are no statements inconsistent with the report of the paper that appears in the body of the book.

The "Newspaper Sketches" which appear in this issue of THE DIRECTORY are a new feature, and are in all cases prepared in the offices of the papers described, the editor of THE DIRECTORY in no instance having assumed to do this work, or to revise or criticise it.

Realizing how valueless success becomes without the merit to deserve it, it has been the endeavor of the publishers of THE DIRECTORY, in this as in all preceding editions, by the exercise of every effort which long experience has shown to be efficient, to place at the disposal of their patrons and the public generally an accurate and complete list of American Newspapers, described and rated in accordance with the most reliable information obtainable and arranged in the most concise and intelligible form for practical use.

STATE LISTS.

LIST OF SIXTY-SEVEN PAPERS IN ILLINOIS, IOWA, WISCONSIN, MINNESOTA AND DAKOTA.

This List of Papers is a Favorite One with Advertisers. The Papers comprising it have an Average Circulation of over 800 per paper. No other List can make such a showing. Comprising sixty-seven Country Papers of the best class within the States of Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Dakota, and have in the aggregate over Three Hundred Thousand weekly readers. They are made up of

FARMERS' PAPERS.

AND ARE EDITED WITH A SPECIAL VIEW TO THE INTERESTS AND NECESSITIES OF THE FARMER.

THE AGRICULTURAL AND HOME DEPARTMENTS OF EACH PAPER ARE FULL AND COMPLETE. AND IT IS A FACT THAT THESE COUNTRY PAPERS HAVE COME TO TAKE THE PLACE LARGELY OF THE PURELY AGRICULTURAL WEEKLIES. IN THESE PAPERS THE HUSBANDMAN AND THE HOUSEWIFE FIND THEIR WORK AND THEIR GENERAL INTERESTS QUITE AS INTELLIGENTLY DISCUSSED AS IN THE MORE PRETENTIOUS JOURNALS.

The papers embrace a combination of Lists, and go into over 60,000 homes in the Great West each week, and are read by over 300,000 people.

Our plan varies considerably from that of other Auxiliary Publishers. We cater exclusively to the publishers of the State in which the publication office is located, giving such reading matter and news as are of particular interest to the people of that State. The plan commends itself to publishers, and is deservedly popular. It has aided materially in bringing to us the patronage of the largest and best weekly papers of each State.

The West is the place for the enterprising man to advertise, and the E. E. PETTENGILL NEWSPAPER COMPANY STATE LIST the medium.

SPECIAL RATES GIVEN ON LARGE ADVERTISEMENTS AND LONG-TIME CONTRACTS.

Twenty-five per cent. extra for Reading Matter or Position. All estimates are based on Agate measure: Fourteen lines of Agate type one inch; Ten lines of Minion type one inch; Eight lines of Bourgeois type one inch. Estimate one line as two lines; two lines as three lines; three lines as four.

CUTS OR ELECTROTYPES must be made on solid metal, and not over 2 1/8 inches in width (13 ems pica).

OUR REFERENCES are our advertisers, and they comprise the leading advertising houses in the United States.

LIBERAL DISCOUNTS ON LARGE CONTRACTS. WRITE FOR ESTIMATES.

Address all communications concerning advertising in the above lists to

PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY.

SUBSCRIPTION: $5.00 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE; SINGLE COPIES. 10 CENTS.

FOR SALE BY ALL NEWS DEALERS. - ADVERTISING RATES ON APPLICATION.

ANNOUNCEMENT FOR 1886.

BEGINNING with this year, BUILDING was changed from a monthly to a weekly Journal of Architecture, and is issued every Saturday morning, containing the news of the week up to Friday. Each number contains twelve pages of reading matter, and four full-page lithographic plates. The paper is under the editorial management of WM. PAUL GERHARD, C. E., a well-known writer on Sanitary subjects. Among contributions which now appear or which will soon be published in BUILDING, we name the following:

- "HOUSE PLANNING," a series of illustrated articles, by Prof. C. FRANCIS OSBORNE, of Cornell University.
- "SUBURBAN HOMES OF NEW YORK," a series of illustrated articles, by Mr. F. A. WRIGHT, Architect.
- "ARCHITECTURAL STYLES," a series of illustrated articles, by Prof. N. CLIFFORD RICKER, of the University of Illinois.
- "HOSPITAL PLANNING AND CONSTRUCTION," a series of illustrated papers, by Mr. CARL PFEIFFER, Architect.
- "IMPROVED PLUMBING APPLIANCES," a series of illustrated papers, by Mr. J. PICKERING PUTNAM, Architect.
- "SLOWBURNING CONSTRUCTION," a series of illustrated papers, by W. H. DABNEY, JR.
- "THE PLANNING AND CONSTRUCTION OF SCHOOL HOUSES," a series of papers by WARREN R. BRIGGS, Architect.
- "FOUNDATIONS," a series of illustrated papers, by J. F. LYMAN, Architect.
- "THE CITY RESIDENCE: ITS DESIGN AND CONSTRUCTION," a series of illustrated articles, by W. B. TUTHILL, Architect.
- "NOTES ON PLUMBING AND HOUSE DRAINAGE," a series of articles by WM. PAUL GERHARD, Consulting Engineer for Sanitary Works.
- "INTERIOR DECORATIONS," a series of fully illustrated articles, by Messrs. BRUNNER & TRYON, Architects.
- "STEAM HEATING," papers prepared by ALFRED R. WOLFF, Consulting Mechanical Engineer.
- "FLOOR CONSTRUCTION," a series of illustrated articles, by D. W. KING, Architect.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS on matters of current interest will appear in each issue. Reports of the transactions of Architectural and Engineering Societies will be published from time to time. Matters of interest to architects, draughtsmen, artists, engineers, builders and contractors will be published as promptly as possible. Items on interior and exterior building construction will be discussed.

We shall endeavor to maintain the highest standard attainable in the matter of ARCHITECTURAL DESIGNS, and reproduce only those of sterling merit. The selections of Drawings to be reproduced is made under competent professional advice. We shall also publish, from time to time, a Selection of Illustrations from the best Foreign Architectural and Art Journals.

THE PRICE CURRENT OF BUILDING MATERIALS is quoted every week up to the time of going to press. Each weekly issue contains a full Report of the Transactions of the Real Estate Market, prepared by a competent special contributor.

A special and exceedingly valuable feature of BUILDING is the WEEKLY FOUR-PAGE BUILDING NEWS SUPPLEMENT, containing building news, permits for new buildings, items relating to buildings contemplated to be erected, from all parts of the country, those of New York and Brooklyn being included up to Friday morning of each week. The Publisher of BUILDING has secured, at considerable expense, a large number of contributors for these news columns in all the States of the Union, and it is proposed to make this feature of the journal as complete as possible.

Each weekly issue also contains an illustrated Trade Supplement, with descriptions of new materials, or appliances of interest to architects and builders. Each issue also contains a description of patents granted, relating to the building trades.

A WORD TO WISE MEN.

DEAR SIR OR SIRS:—Every successful business man in this busy age, understands the necessity, as well as the value, of judicious advertising as an aid to success, and there is no question that the best of all advertising mediums are those that circulate in the homes of the people. All trade that solicits patronage must get it from the people, and he succeeds best who most wisely and persistently keeps before consumers the merits of his goods. A single insertion or a short time "ad" does not bring returns as great in proportion to cost, as when run continuously. "Advertising is the steam that keeps business moving," and one might as well expect to run a locomotive one hundred miles by a full head of steam for an occasional mile and shut it off at intervals, as to expect to succeed permanently in business, by spasmodic advertising. Neither one will "get there," unless running on the down grade, when in either case the usual effect of putting on "steam" at intervals, only hastens the journey to the bottom. As building up a successful business and keeping it so, is up grade work in this age of sharp competition, the necessity of a full head of "steam" all the time in the shape of judicious advertising, becomes obvious. So much for the merits of advertising.

HEALTH AND HOME is a family journal that goes into the best class of homes in all parts of the Union, and for the general advertiser who seeks the patronage of the best class of consumers everywhere, it constitutes a first-class advertising medium. Its subscribers are not confined to any particular class, but are found among the most intelligent of all classes in city, town and country; in fact, it goes into the homes of the best class of patrons for the general advertiser.

The circulation is increasing very rapidly, over 5,000 having been added to the paid subscription list in less than two months, last past. The circulation continues to increase from 2,000 to 3,000 or more a month. Your advertisement is respectfully solicited for one or more insertions, at following rates, based on present circulation.

ADVERTISING RATES IN MONTHLY:

Two dollars an inch each insertion; less than one inch 15 cents a line agate. Reading notices 25 cents a line each insertion. These rates include FOUR INSERTIONS IN WEEKLY EDITION for each one in monthly. Terms cash with order, unless the advertiser has good rating in commercial agency reports or gives satisfactory references.

MAKE NO MISTAKE. This is not the HEALTH AND HOME published at various points during the past three years and claiming immense circulation. This paper has always been published at Toledo, Ohio.

Copy for ads. should reach us by the 15th of the month to insure insertion in next issue.

Champion of Freedom and Right

OFFICIAL ORGAN OF THE BEER, WINE AND SPIRIT TRADE OF THE UNITED STATES.

PAUL SCHUSTER, EDITOR AND PUBLISHER.

45 LA SALLE STREET, - - CHICAGO, ILL.

This is a weekly newspaper, published since 1878, under the name of "JOURNAL OF FREEDOM AND RIGHT," since changed to "THE CHAMPION OF FREEDOM AND RIGHT." Its circulation extends to nearly eight hundred cities and towns, chiefly in the States of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Wisconsin, Iowa, Minnesota and Dakota, and to twenty-one other Southern and Western States. As an advertising medium for the Liquor Dealers and Manufacturers, and for all those branches of commerce and industry which are connected with the liquor traffic, it has no superior in the United States.

THE CHAMPION

advocates personal, civil and constitutional liberty, antagonizes the widespread fanatical movement aiming at the legal prohibition of the manufacture and sale of beer, wine and spirituous liquors, and demands for the persons engaged therein the same protection and privileges which are accorded to every other branch of our national industries.

THE PEOPLE'S TABERNACLE.

244 ERIE STREET, - - - - - CLEVELAND, OHIO.
 E. C. BOWMAN, Proprietor. W. E. BOWMAN, Manager.

A first-class Religious and Temperance Family Newspaper. A choice medium for reliable advertisers. THE PEOPLE'S TABERNACLE has a larger circulation than any other paper of the kind in Cleveland. It is the official organ of the great Tabernacle and Music Hall, having a seating capacity of 5,000 people. The bulk of the circulation is purchased by the Tabernacle, and is used for their services. The balance is sent by mail to subscribers. It is essentially a home paper; is taken to the home and read carefully—not glanced over and then thrown away, but is preserved on account of the International Sunday School Lessons and Hymns. Great care is taken to exclude improper advertisements, and therefore commands itself to the favorable attention of advertisers. Rates low for a paper of its high character and large circulation. Rates made known on application.

SAVANNAH, - - - - GEORGIA.

EVERY DAY (INCLUDING SUNDAY) AND WEEKLY.

---

---

Savannah is the centre of a large and increasing trade; her railroads extend to the farthest settlements of South Florida, and through every part of Georgia, and into the adjoining States of Alabama and South Carolina. Savannah is the second American Cotton and Rice port, and the first Naval Stores (rosin and turpentine) port in the world. In addition to this, Savannah does a large lumber exporting trade, and her merchants virtually control the entire lumber and timber business of the great pine belt of Georgia.

---

The people of the immense area tributary to Savannah naturally look to its newspaper for information concerning its markets. The constituency of

therefore, comprise a class of buyers who have many wants, and the means with which to supply them. This fact makes the paper

The Humane Journal.

242 WABASH AVENUE, - - - CHICAGO, ILL.

Established by the Illinois Humane Society in 1873.

THE HUMANE JOURNAL

Speaks in behalf of animals—the faithful and often abused servants of man. Cruelty suffers men to be brutal; seeing it or permitting it hardens the heart and makes people less considerate of each other. Teach the children to be kind. Furnish them reading that will encourage their natural tenderness of heart. THE HUMANE JOURNAL is devoted to this work. Though especially the organ of the Illinois Humane Society, it gives reports from Societies for the Prevention of Cruelty all over the world. Send four cents in stamps for specimen copy. Price, $1.00 a year; four copies, 75c.; twenty copies or more, 50c. each.

J. THOMPSON GILL, - - - - Manager.

INCREASE YOUR BUSINESS IN NEW FIELDS, WHERE COMPETITION IS LESS AND PROFITS GREATER.

During the year 1885 the circulation of the CONFECTIONER AND BAKER has been much extended throughout the great territories of the North and Southwest, where the population is rapidly increasing—composed of the best manhood of the land—who buy liberally and at fair prices. This trade is principally in the control of a few sharp-sighted merchants. There is no reason you should not make your-elf known to these people, and secure a share of their custom. A limited space for advertising purposes is for sale in the CONFECTIONER AND BAKER, and subject to your order at reasonable rates. A large export trade with Australia and New Zealand can also be reached through the pages of this journal.

Fra alle Lande.

CEDAR RAPIDS. - - - - - IOWA.

A SEMI-MONTHLY ILLUSTRATED JOURNAL, DEVOTED TO THE INTERESTS OF THE SCANDINAVIANS IN AMERICA.

N. FR. HANSEN, EDITOR AND PUBLISHER.

Office: UNDER POST OFFICE.

Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

From the Chicago Inter-Ocean, Oct. 17, 1885.

One of the features of enterprising journalism is the Scandinavian publication called FRA ALLE LANDE. This is a monthly literary family journal, exclusively devoted to prose and poetry, and is non-political, non-partisan and non-sectarian. It has a circulation of 3,000 copies monthly, and goes into the families residing in thirty-two States and Territories. N. Fr. Hansen is the enterprising editor and publisher.

From the Cedar Rapids Daily Republican, Oct. 20, 1885.

The first number of that growing young family journal, the FRA ALLE LANDE, of this city, in its new semi-monthly form, is before us. It has greatly increased its subscription list within the last months, and now goes into thirty-two States and Territories. The FRA ALLE LANDE, which Mr. Hansen has made one of the representative Scandinavian journals of the country, is devoted to poetry and miscellaneous literature, and it finds its field wherever native Scandinavians have their home. Its non-political, non-sectarian principles make it welcome at every fireside, and accounts for its wide influence and general popularity. It has a well-defined field of usefulness, which it seems to be adequately filling, and will doubtless soon become one of the strongest journals of the kind in the country.

From the Cedar Rapids society paper, the Saturday Evening Chat, Oct. 24, 1885.

Among the business enterprises of the city that have shown remarkable growth is one that has prosecuted its work so quietly that many in Cedar Rapids will learn of its success with surprise. It is a semi-monthly paper, FRA ALLE LANDE, a family journal for Scandinavians in America. Its editor is Mr. N. Fr. Hansen. It was started Jan. 1st as a monthly. It is now a semi-monthly of sixteen pages. The growth of its subscription list has been something phenomenal. It circulates in nearly 300 towns in thirty-two States and Territories. The reason for this is easy to understand. There are about seventy Scandinavian papers in this country, but they are devoted to church work, politics, news, or some local interests that limit their field. FRA ALLE LANDE has no speciality, but is a literary and family paper. Its pages are filled with poetry, stories, biographical sketches, a farm and a household department. It is the only Scandinavian paper of the kind in the United States, and from its character it will be seen that its contents are equally interesting to residents of Maine and California. FRA ALLE LANDE presents a handsome typographical appearance, and I am confident, from the character of its editor, that its literary merit is of a high order. I am proud of it as a Cedar Rapids publication, as it will spread a knowledge of this city far and wide, where it might not otherwise penetrate.

COAL CENTER, - - - PENNSYLVANIA.

W. H. MINEHART, - - - Editor and Publisher.

PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY.

Coal Center is sixty miles south of Pittsburgh, and joins the town of California, both towns having a combined population of 2,800. The surrounding country is one of the richest in wealth, soil and minerals in the State.

THE MESSENGER, while having a wide circulation in both towns, also circulates throughout Washington and adjoining counties, and goes into almost every miner's household in the Valley. Its rapidly-growing and extensive circulation makes THE MESSENGER of inestimable value to advertisers.

PUBLISHED EVERY FRIDAY MORNING, AT

LONACONING, - - - MARYLAND.

AVERAGE WEEKLY CIRCULATION FOR 1885, 1,817 COPIES. PRICE, $1.50 PER YEAR.

Situated in the centre of the famous George's Creek Coal Region, of Maryland.

THE WEEKLY REVIEW has grown from a small country paper to a large four-page, thirty-six column, influential paper, printed by steam power, enjoying a circulation of nearly 2,000 copies, and rapidly increasing. It is not an organ or mouthpiece for any party, ring or clique, but is "independent in all things." Being ever ready to advance the interests of its patrons and the public in general, a staunch advocate of the rights of workmen, it endeavors to secure for them more of the rights and privileges that are rightfully theirs; is opposed to paying or receiving starvation wages for labor performed; an enemy to all forms of cant, deceit, hypocrisy and fraud, until now it has gained the reputation throughout Western Maryland as the recognized people's paper. Cheap advertising rates and good advertising medium.

It is a noticeable fact that there is no journal at present, in any part of the world, devoted exclusively to this subject. This publication consequently will occupy an entirely new field, and in that respect may claim for itself the notice of members of the legal and medical professions in every country. It hopes to do even more than this, and by presenting the subjects and topics which properly come within its scope, in a clear and attractive manner to command the attention of the general reader and enlist his support.

This journal will publish the leading papers of the Medico-Legal Society, and a resume of its transactions, with portraits of distinguished men of both the Legal and Medical professions. Its columns will at the same time be open to contributions from all sources and from all parts of the world, on appropriate subjects and questions. It will endeavor to chronicle interesting facts and scientific deductions within its domain, and keep a record of current events, especially in the trial of cases in the courts which involve Medico-Legal questions.

The price of THE MEDICO-LEGAL JOURNAL has been fixed at $3.00 per annum or 75 cents per copy, in the hope and with the expectation of its receiving a generous support from all classes of intelligent readers. Every branch and department of Medico-Legal Science will be carefully represented, and assurances have been received from the ablest professional names in Law and Medicine of efficient aid and support by way of contributions to these columns. While closely connected with the Medico-Legal Society, that institution assumes no responsibility for what appears in these pages. Authors whose articles appear with their names, are solely responsible therefor. The circulation has increased fourfold since the first issue and is constantly increasing. Copies of this number will be sent to some believed to be interested in the science, in the hope of obtaining their subscriptions and support. As will be seen, THE JOURNAL has become a valuable advertising medium, as it reaches both professions and the great libraries. This JOURNAL started in June, 1883, with an edition of only 500. Its success has been such that 2,000 copies were issued of December Number, 1884, and its circulation is constantly increasing.

Subscriptions are solicited, which may be made to THE JOURNAL, to any officer of the Medico-Legal Society, to CLARK BELL, Esq., 128 Broadway, N. Y., of whom specimen copies can be obtained on application, at a cost of 40 cents each.

The New-York Times

NEW YORK CITY, - - - NEW YORK.

AN INDEPENDENT REPUBLICAN NEWSPAPER.

THE NEW-YORK TIMES is the best American Newspaper. It prints all the news that is worth printing, and by a liberal use of money and brains secures variety and interest for its columns without sensation or humbug.

The news is the bone and sinew of a newspaper; but while laying before its readers

THE NEWS OF THE WORLD BY TELEGRAPH

every morning, THE TIMES provides also, for their further pleasure and profit, of a less transitory value. It watches carefully and faithfully records the drift of discussion upon topics that engage the attention of thinking men, and notes in science, theology, education, legislation, literature, art, invention, and discovery.

CORRESPONDENCE, STORIES, AND LITERARY MISCELLANY

Its political news is notably full and accurate, and no voter, Republican or Democrat, who takes an intelligent interest in public affairs can afford to be without it. THE TIMES is an earnest advocate of civil service reform, and in estimating the worth of candidates for public office it places personal fitness above party zeal. As an

it has a growing constituency and an increasing satisfaction in its work.

The WEEKLY and SEMI-WEEKLY editions of THE TIMES contain all the current news condensed from the dispatches and reports of the daily edition, besides literary matter, discussions upon agricultural topics by practical farmers, full and accurate market reports of prices for farm produce, livestock, &c., and a carefully prepared

WEEKLY WOOL MARKET.

No other New-York Newspaper so completely meets the wants of country readers.

TOPEKA, - - - - - KANSAS.

THE LARGEST AND BEST WEEKLY NEWSPAPER PUBLISHED AT TOPEKA.

[ESTABLISHED 1852.]

TOPEKA, Kan., Nov. 6, 1885.

We have been convinced for some months that the MAIL has the largest circulation in and around Topeka of any paper published here. We might have made a sworn affidavit to the number of our subscribers; but even an affidavit is open to doubt. Consequently, we adopted the plan of getting the certificates of the postmasters at the post offices of Topeka and surrounding towns. These can not be doubted. They speak for themselves.

COLLIER & LAYTON.

At present there are as many as a dozen regular subscribers, but we hope to get one or two more by Spring. There are several better advertising mediums in the State, yet, to save setting type, we would take a few more "ads.," but they must be "all wool, a yard wide, and warranted not to rip, tear, or run down at the heel," and must be cast on metal bases. Please burn this.

THE ONLY PAPER IN NEW YORK CITY PUBLISHING HOTEL ARRIVALS—
BEST MEDIUM IN THE UNITED STATES FOR PERSONS CATERING FOR HOTEL TRADE—OFFICIAL ORGAN OF THE NEW YORK POST OFFICE FOR THE PUBLICATION OF LIST OF UNCLAIMED LETTERS.

THE DAILY HOTEL REPORTER is kept on file in nearly every wholesale house in New York City.

Our method for reporting arrivals is unequalled for its simplicity. We place the name of the town from whence the arrival hails, first, in alphabetical order; this is followed by his name; and, last of all, we give the name of the hotel at which he is stopping. By this simple method all arrivals from any one given town are properly classified, and can be traced with the same facility with which a name is found in the Directory. We report, at present, the arrivals at sixty-five hotels, which include all worthy of the name. Our arrival lists average about two thousand per diem.

THE REPORTER is on file at prominent hotels in every section of the country.

THE DAILY HOTEL REPORTER is the leading representative of hotel journalism in the United States. Specimen copies cheerfully furnished free on application.

PUBLISHED ON THE 15TH OF EVERY MONTH, CONTAINING ALL THE OBTAIN-ABLE BUILDING NEWS, CONTRACTS OPEN, ETC.

GIVES MORE USEFUL INFORMATION FOR LESS MONEY THAN ANY OTHER BUILDING PUBLICATION IN THE UNITED STATES, AND WILL CONTINUE TO IMPROVE IN THE FUTURE AS IT HAS IN THE PAST.

NOT SEVERELY TECHNICAL, BUT ALL-EMBRACING AND GENERAL, CONFINED TO NO NARROW TRADE PRINCIPLES, BUT IN THE COMMON INTEREST OF ALL.

THEREFORE OF SPECIAL VALUE TO

ARCHITECTS, BUILDERS, CONTRACTORS, PLUMBERS, PAINTERS, PLANING-MILL MEN, LUMBER DEALERS, BUILDING MECHANICS, and SUPPLY MEN GENERALLY,

Who have in this publication a COMMON EXCHANGE for the presentation of their individual opinions on subjects affecting other than members of their particular profession or trade, with the assurance that those most interested will be reached.

The editorials of the BUILDING TRADES JOURNAL are fearless and independent, and facts and practical business subjects are dealt with in their true relation to the interests of all concerned.

Because you already take a trade paper, there is no reason why you should not also subscribe to the JOURNAL, and thus get other sides to questions on which you should be well informed.

SUBSCRIPTION $1.00 PER YEAR,

TO ADVERTISERS,

Although the BUILDING TRADES JOURNAL is only in the third year of publication, it has made progress in popularity, and consequently in circulation, to a most satisfactory degree, attesting to the value and fertility of its field of operations.

The paper now reaches nearly every city and town in the United States, and every branch of art, trade or business connected with building is well represented on the subscription books. To prove the truth of this assertion, we have printed an abstract of the subscription list, with affidavit as to its truth, showing the scope of its circulation and the character of its subscribers, nearly all of whom are either architects, builders, supply men, or master mechanics connected with building.

The Nautical Gazette.

A JOURNAL OF NAVIGATION. ESTABLISHED IN 1871.

31 CITY HALL SQUARE. - NEW YORK CITY.

We herewith submit for your perusal a statement of the advantages of THE NAUTICAL GAZETTE as an advertising medium, to reach a class of customers especially interested in shipping and navigation generally. We claim to reach more persons interested in this branch of industry than any other publication on this continent. Several of our regular subscribers' and advertisers' annual purchases foot up over $2,000,000, while very many run up into the hundreds of thousands of dollars each year. THE NAUTICAL GAZETTE is a paper that is most thoroughly read by a well-to-do class of merchants and men in all departments of trade, and we can name and refer to many of our customers who will frankly admit that their advertisements in this journal have repaid them an hundred fold annually.

We claim a very choice class of readers, both at home and abroad, and a very superior area of circulation for advertisers, such as is possessed by no other paper of its class. Our files bear ample testimony to the high character of our advertising patronage.

It is the oldest newspaper of its class in the United States. It has the largest circulation of any nautical newspaper ever published in this country. It is subscribed for and carefully read by Ship Owners, Ship Builders, Ship Masters, Mates, Pilots, Engineers, Seamen, Firemen, Stewards, Naval Officers, Naval Engineers, Marine Corps Officers, Medical Officers, Revenue Marine Officers and men of all grades in that service; Steamboatmen, Yachtsmen, Steamship Agents at home and abroad, Marine Engineers, Boiler Makers, Pump Makers, Anchor Forgemen, Cable Chain Makers, Boat Builders, Windlass and Capstan Manufacturers, Life Preserver Makers, Lamp Makers, Nautical Instrument Makers, Plumbers and Brass Fitters, Silverware Manufacturers, Electric Light Companies, Paintmen and Painters, Glassware Dealers, Lumber Dealers, Stevedores, Scientists, Flag Makers, Spar Makers, Riggers, Laundermen, Naval Architects, Hose Makers, Rope Manufacturers, Wire Rigging Manufacturers, Upholsterers, Crockery Men, Compass Makers, Boiler Covering Manufacturers, Bakers, Light House Keepers, Clergymen, Ship Chandlers, Sail Makers, Caulkers, Watchmen, Hotel Keepers, Dry Dockmen, Hardwaremen, Chart and Book Sellers, Canvas Makers, Furniture Makers, Gas and Steam Fitters, Shipwrights, Engineers' Tool Makers, Mathematical Instrument Makers, Crews of Life Saving Stations, Signal Service Officers and Observers, Drug Men, Carpet Dealers, Butchers, Doctors, Marketmen, Draughtsmen, &c., &c.

It is on file at the principal Chambers of Commerce, Boards of Trade, Library, Reading Rooms and Hotels in this country and many abroad. Is mailed regularly to the leading U. S. Consulates in all the principal seaports of the world. Is subscribed for by nearly all the Naval Departments of Europe. Has a large circulation in Europe, East Indies, South America, West Indies, Australia, the islands of the Pacific, &c. Thousands of copies are annually distributed all over the world in ships leaving the port. It is the most thoroughly read of any newspaper printed for the general shipping public. As an advertising medium to reach the classes named above, THE NAUTICAL GAZETTE is without a peer in the list of American newspapers. Its rates of advertising are fixed, with positively no deviation, either for time or space. Transient Advertising, 25 cents per line, each insertion. Term Advertising, $5 per inch (12 nonpareil lines) a month, or $60 an inch a year. Special Notices, Wants, &c., as per agreement. Subscription Price: One year, $4; six months, $2; three months, $1, payable invariably in advance. Address,

THE STAR AND NEWS is a consolidation of two strong and influential papers; it is, moreover, the largest of the sixteen papers published in the county, outside of Lancaster City. The subscription price is only $1.00, which, with its other special features and advantages, gives it a very large circulation. Its advertising rates are very low, considering its circulation, the rates of which will be furnished on application.

The Leavenworth Times.

LEAVENWORTH. - - - KANSAS.

D. R. ANTHONY. - - - Editor and Proprietor.

DAILY. "THE TIMES" HAS 5,240 CIRCULATION, AND WEEKLY 13,680, AND IS PRINTED IN THE METROPOLIS OF KANSAS.

It is the only Leavenworth paper receiving the morning Western Associated Press reports, and has been published without interruption for twenty-five years. It has subscribers in every Post Office, and is read by the people of every city, village and hamlet in the State of Kansas.

It never inserts an advertisement for a man who is not financially responsible, hence you are not thrown into competition with humbugs and frauds. While it is recognized as an outspoken journal, fearless and bold in the expression of its convictions, it is an advocate of the Republican principles in a State that gives 50,000 Republican majority.

Kansas this year has produced the greatest crops of any State in the Union. It has more cattle, more hogs, more wheat, more corn, more oats, and more general prosperity than any other State, and its people are out of debt, growing rich, and will buy and pay for more goods than any other Western State during the coming year.

SAMPLE NOTICES FROM THE PRESS OF THE COAST.

STAR OF THE EVENING PRESS.
 The San Francisco Post is the star of the evening press of this city. Its new dress and make-up are perfect. Long may the Post be a pillar of California journalism.—S. F. Alta.

INCREASING POPULARITY.
 The San Francisco Post has recently adopted a new style heading and donned a new dress entirely—true evidence of prosperity. The Post is one of the best and most influential newspapers on the Coast. The Post is rapidly increasing in popularity throughout the entire Coast, and is reaping a reward it richly deserves. May it continue in its present course.—Sutter Farmer.

THE BEST ON THE COAST.
 The San Francisco DAILY POST is, without a doubt, the best evening daily paper on the Coast. Neatly printed, edited with great ability, and containing all the latest dispatches of the world up to the hour of going to press, besides the attention it pays to local and miscellaneous matters, combine to make it a paper so full of valuable information that it should find its way into every store, workshop or family in the State.—Livermore Review.

A REMARKABLE INCREASE.
 The San Francisco Post made a "spread" Saturday night on its own business and a very satisfactory showing is the result. It has gained nearly 5,000 new subscribers in the last few months.—Vallejo Chronicle.

STAR PAPER OF THE COAST.
 The San Francisco Post is justly entitled to rank as the star evening paper of the Pacific Coast. Having gained nearly 5,000 new subscribers during the past nine months is conclusive evidence that the paper is sought after, read and appreciated. The new management of the Post has been a successful one, and the paper has become a great favorite of the people.—Galt Gazette.

IT WORKS FOR THE COAST.
 On Saturday last the San Francisco Post entered upon its fifteenth year of life. From a small and humble beginning it has become one of the largest and best papers published west of the Rocky Mountains. It is always on the alert with its hearty support for any movement tending toward the advancement of the interests not only of California but of the entire Coast. For this reason its circulation is large and general.—Eureka (Nev.) Sentinel.

FULL ASSOCIATED PRESS DISPATCHES RECEIVED DAILY.

The Post is the only Evening Paper on the Pacific Coast which is printed on a Perfecting Press, and which by its large circulation is compelled to stereotype.
 The WEEKLY POST has a circulation all over the Coast.

BEST MEDIUM IN STEUBEN COUNTY, and a good medium for returns to its patrons, large or small. Used by prominent advertisers everywhere.

"THE ADVERTISER" IS AN INDEPENDENT LOCAL JOURNAL, and circulates throughout the United States and other parts of the world. Its circulation has been extended with great pains, so as to render it valuable as an advertising medium. It is especially devoted to the interests of its patrons, to whose advertisements and notices—no matter from whom they come—it pays strict attention. Small orders given the same care as large ones.

AS A MEDIUM FOR ADVERTISERS,

No matter what their goods and wares are, to reach an unlimited people, it is unequalled, As to merit, we can, if necessary, refer to prominent advertisers who have been its patrons.

TERMS FOR ADVERTISING ARE:

One hundred dollars per column, cash, and our space is worth all charged for it. Transient advertising to unknown parties must be cash. Specimens and particulars gratis.

Our circulation is marked in plain, honest figures in all reliable directories, but that our special issues give patrons nearly three times the circulation given in any directory. Thus a great advantage is gained over other journals of its size. Send for special circular and be convinced of the value of our medium under this advantageous arrangement. Advertisers get better returns for the money invested in space than in any other journal in this section. Specimens sent to any person sending their address to this office.

WILL S. REYNOLDS, Editor.

PROSPECTUS.

The eighth year of its publication opens a new and bright epoch in the history of THE SUNDAY ADVERTISER. From time to time, as the support of the public seemed to justify, the paper has been enlarged and many interesting features added. These will be continued, with other attractive novelties. It is the aim of its conductors to make this already popular Weekly a necessity in the home circle. Stories and poems by favorite authors will appear in each issue; and vigorous editorials, independent in tone and fearless in expression, will stamp originality and merit upon the inside pages.

While it is not, and will not be a political paper, it will watch the development of all questions of government and legislation. It will not permit itself to be the organ of any party or faction, but will in all matters be the champion of equal rights under the laws, the determined foe of jobbery and corruption, of monopoly and spoliation.

Advertisers will find their interests well protected and advantageously served in the columns of THE SUNDAY ADVERTISER. Largely circulated in Harlem and the annexed district of the American metropolis, this paper occupies a field of rapid and important growth. THE SUNDAY ADVERTISER goes directly to the best families in the upper section of New York. Our rates are liberal, and will compete with those offered by any established journal in the country. Sample copies mailed free, and proposals for advertising space promptly attended to. All communications, business or otherwise, must be addressed to

D., Richmond, Va., formerly Professor of Surgery, Medical College of Virginia. CLAUDIUS H. MASTIN, M. D., LL. D. (University of Pennsylvania), Mobile, Ala.

This JOURNAL contains, each month, 120 large quarto pages of reading matter, and the following is a list of its various departments: Original Articles, Original Translations, Selections, Resume of Original Articles in other Journals, Lectures, Abstracts, Proceedings of Societies, Hospital Notes, Sanitary Department, Microscopy and Pathology, Pharmacy and Therapeutics, Biography, Original Correspondence, Reviews, Miscellaneous, Medical News, and Editorials.

Among the papers contributed to its original department since the opening of the year 1885 may be mentioned: "The Treatment of Pulmonary Phthisis," by Prof. Austin Flint, of New York; "Fungous Vegetations of the Lining Membrane of the Uterus," by Dr. William Goodell, of Philadelphia, Professor of Gynecology in the University of Pennsylvania; "Two Cases of Successful Ligation of the Jugular Vein During Operations for the Removal of Tumors from the Neck," by Dr. Wm. A. Byrd, M. D., of Quincy, Ill., President of the Illinois State Board of Health; "Pelvic Spina Bifida," by Prof. T. Gaillard Thomas, of New York; "The Etiology of Acne," by Dr. L. Duncan Bulkley, the distinguished New York Dermatologist; "Circumcision a Cause of Reflex Irritation of the Genito-Urinary Organs," by Dr. Claudius H. Mastin, the noted Alabama Surgeon; "The Treatment of Ex-ophthalmic Goitre," by Dr. A. D. Rockwell, of New York, the leading authority on Electro-Therapeutics in this country; "Esculapia as Revealed by Inscriptions," by Prof. A. C. Merriam, of Columbia College, recast by him especially for the JOURNAL, from a learned lecture delivered by invitation, before the New York Academy of Medicine; "The Clamp Suture and the Range of its Applicability, Considered in Relation to the Cure of the Injuries Incident to Parturition, with Statistics," by Dr. Nathan Bozeman, Surgeon to the New York State Woman's Hospital; "The Treatment of Urethral Stricture by Combining Internal and External Urethrotomy," by Reginald Harrison, F. R. C. S., Surgeon to the Liverpool Royal Infirmary and Lecturer on Clinical Surgery in Victoria University, England; "Some Points in the Surgery of the Hypertrophied Prostate," by Dr. W. J. S. Gouley, Surgeon to Bellevue Hospital, New York; "Excision of the Knee Joint for Chronic Disease," by Dr. Joseph D. Bryant, Professor of Anatomy and Clinical Surgery in Bellevue Hospital Medical College; "Recent Progress in Etiology," by Dr. E. G. Janeway, Professor of Pathological Anatomy and Clinical Medicine in Bellevue Hospital Medical College; "Obscure Impediments in the Intestinal Canal," by Prof. J. McF. Gaston, of Atlanta, Ga.; "The Treatment of Lateral Curvature of the Spine," by Prof. Lewis A. Sayre, of New York, and "Some Points in Surgical Anatomy and Surgical Practice," by Prof. Wm. H. Pancoast, of Philadelphia. No medical journal, either at home or abroad, has ever had a more brilliant corps of contributors.

Important features of the JOURNAL will be, as heretofore, the translations of elaborate articles upon topics of special interest from the principal French periodicals, by Dr. H. McS. Gamble, of West Virginia, one of which will appear in each issue, and the valuable letters from Paris of the celebrated Dr. Edward Warren (Bey).

It will be the endeavor of the managers to render it of the greatest practical utility possible to the practitioner engaged in active professional work; and while its readers will be kept well informed upon the leading topics of the scientific medical thought of the day, more attention will be paid to matters which will be of practical service to them at the bedside of their patients than to abstruse points of merely theoretical interest.

IMPORTANT.

This JOURNAL has always been a staunch and earnest supporter of the National Code of Medical Ethics, and is at present the only one in the city of New York which is an outspoken advocate of its principles. For this reason, if for no other, it deserves the heartiest encouragement from all who have the best interests and permanent standing of the great American profession at heart. The defection of a large portion of the medical men of New York State has rendered necessary the organization of separate State and County Associations, composed of those who retain inviolate their allegiance to the American Medical Association. Both these youthful societies have already accomplished an amount of brilliant scientific work which is entirely unparalleled in the history of any other similar bodies in the same space of time; and of their achievements in the future, as in the past, the JOURNAL will be the faithful chronicler, the position of the editor as Secretary of one of these Associations affording peculiar facilities for the prosecution of its work in this direction.

Drake's Travellers' Magazine

FOR 1886.

---

JOHN N. DRAKE, Publisher.

MERCANTILE BUILDING, - - - NEW YORK.

One Dollar per Year. Ten Cents a Copy.

This monthly periodical enters upon its fifth year of publication under bright auspices, and with a determination on the part of the publisher to leave nothing undone which can possibly add to its usefulness and attractiveness. The magazine will in the future as in the past, supply its friends and patrons with reliable information concerning railroads, steamboats and steamship routes, time tables with distance and fares, guide to important cities, and other facts of interest to the traveling public. Its literary department will be kept at the same high standard which has given the publication a national reputation and made it so popular with readers in every part of the country. Stories, sketches, poems, bright jokes and witty paragraphs, emanating from many of the brightest writers of the day will find a place in its pages, and each number will overflow with quaintness, originality and refined humor. It is one of the best advertising mediums in the country for the reason that each number is preserved and is constantly used as a reference book for accurate information.

FACTS FOR ADVERTISERS.

Mirror and Farmer.

MANCHESTER, - - - NEW HAMPSHIRE.

SWORN CIRCULATION, 25,440.

The MIRROR AND FARMER, published at Manchester, N. H., established 1850, has a larger New England circulation than any other weekly agricultural and family paper published. Since its enlargement in 1882 it has gained more than 12,000, and its circulation is now 25,440, and is steadily increasing, so that it will probably reach from 27,000 to 30,000 before the close of the year 1886. It circulates on its merits. Every person who subscribes for it does so because he or she wants it, and pays for it in advance—a fact which makes it an exception to every other of its class in the Eastern States. It circulates chiefly in the four northern States of New England, but reaches patrons in every other Northern and Western State clear to the Pacific coast. Its readers number more than a hundred and fifty thousand. They read it carefully and thoroughly, and believe in it. They include not only the intelligent, progressive, well-to-do farmers, but the most prosperous and enterprising tradesmen, who have many wants, and the money to pay for what they need. They buy freely and pay promptly.

The Advertising Rates of the MIRROR AND FARMER are, in proportion to its circulation and influence, lower than those of any other agricultural paper in the country, being but 38 cents each agate line, $2.52 an inch for each insertion, with liberal discounts for large orders. If you have anything to sell for money, tell the readers of the MIRROR about it; it will pay.

December 30, 1884, I published my sworn statement that the average circulation of the MIRROR AND FARMER for the thirteen weeks ending with that date had been 22,996; February 17, 1885, that the circulation for the preceding four months had averaged 23,718 each week; September 29, 1885, that the circulation was 24,240 copies weekly; October 27, 1885, that the circulation had reached 24,480 copies; and it has since increased weekly, till now, November 24, 1885, the circulation of the MIRROR AND FARMER is 25,440 copies, and cannot and will not be less than that during the present year, nor for the year 1886.

Personally appeared John B. Clarke, and made oath that the above statement by him subscribed is true. Before me, HENRY M. PUTNEY, Justice of the Peace.

THE MANCHESTER*DAILY MIRROR AND AMERICAN,

A paper which was established in 1850 and has grown up with the city, is the leading paper in it, and is taken by all the people who have money to spend in this thriving place of thirty-eight thousand inhabitants, whose cotton mills produce two hundred and forty-five miles of cloth every day, and whose mechanics build fifteen locomotives each month, and fifty steam fire engines a year, and an endless variety of other products of skill and industry. The manufacturing corporations employ eleven thousand operatives, and pay over $400,000 in monthly wages.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF INYO COUNTY, CALIFORNIA.

C. MULHOLLAND,

Editor

Inyo County has an area of 12,000 square miles. Independence, the County seat, is situated at the middle of Owens Valley, and close to the highest peaks and grandest scenery of the famous Sierra Nevada Mountains. The valley is over one hundred miles long; average width about twelve miles. The Carson and Colorado Railroad runs through nearly the whole length of it. The climate is delightful, the soil very fertile. Vegetables and grain of all kinds and of the best quality, fruits, including everything from figs to Siberian crabs, are produced in perfection. Thousands of acres of first-class Government land open for settlement. The country is new; railroad built only a year ago. Mountains contain gold, silver lead and copper.

Paper published every Saturday, gives full information on all matters pertaining to the country.

LE FRANCAIS.*117 FRANKLIN ST., BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS.

LE FRANCAIS, the French literary magazine, offers you the advantage of a circulation that is made up of subscribers belonging to the educated, refined and money-spending classes. The good taste of its typography, as well as the character of its articles, insure it from destruction when read, so that it is invariably bound and preserved for future reference. It is read by the wealthy and cultured in all the large cities of the United States. It has been found by experienced advertisers that all literary and society periodicals are better vehicles for their announcements than daily newspapers, which are hurriedly glanced over for the news and then thrown away. Should you desire to contract for three months, six months, or longer, we shall be happy to send you an estimate.

The American Bookseller.

10 SPRUCE STREET, - - NEW YORK CITY.

PUBLISHED 1ST AND 15TH OF EACH MONTH.

Subscription, $2.00 Per Annum.

THE AMERICAN BOOKSELLER is now in its seventeenth year, the first number having been issued in 1868. It is the OLDEST AND LARGEST OF THE JOURNALS DEVOTED TO THE Book and Stationery Trades, and has by far the widest circulation in this country. It reaches not only the members of the book and stationery trades, but also a large number of teachers, librarians and literary institutions throughout the world.

It aims to bring into close connection the producers and purchasers of books, and, by giving regular and accurate accounts of all matters of interest, to serve as a guide to the literature of the day.

EACH NUMBER CONTAINS A RELIABLE LIST OF NEW PUBLICATIONS, INCLUDING ADDITIONS TO THE LIBRARIES AND NEW MUSIC, AND ANNOUNCEMENTS OF FORTHCOMING WORKS.

Under the caption of Contributions to Trade History each issue of THE AMERICAN BOOKSELLER contains a history of a noted firm, together with portraits; special numbers are given to the Spring and Fall Announcements; the issue of July 15th, each year, contains a complete list of all educational publications, while the Christmas Number, devoted to Holiday Books, is a remarkable exhibition of the progress of wood-cutting, comprising as it does the best specimens of the art of engraver and printer which appear in the chief illustrated books during the year.

The literary department contains editorials on trade and literary topics, and Literary Notes and News. A valuable series of correspondence from Boston, Philadelphia and London gives succinct accounts of the literary movements and trade activity at those centres.

Our Stationery Department gives notes and news, and all information useful to the dealer. Subscription, $2.00 per annum. To be had through all News Companies and Agents. Sample copies free on application. Address,

BABYHOOD.

A MONTHLY MAGAZINE FOR MOTHERS.

5 BEEKMAN STREET, - - - - -

NEW YORK.

Edited by LEROY M. YALE, M.D., and MARION HARLAND.

Advertisers should not confound this with "juvenile" magazines. It is devoted to the care and training of infants and young children, with a corps of medical and other contributors, and is the only periodical of its kind. It is edited in the belief that the baby's affairs are entitled to the best efforts of the best writers and thinkers; and the conservative enthusiasm it has displayed in its work has gained it the position of an unquestioned authority.

Advertisers may judge of its constituency by its contents. Examine any copy. Rates, 25 cents per agate line, $40 per page (200 lines). No doubtful advertisements admitted.

Glasgow Journal.

GLASGOW,

HOWARD CO., MO.

The Glasgow JOURNAL was established in 1868, and is the oldest paper in the town.

Glasgow is the largest town in the County, and is the wealthiest town of its size in the State. It is located in the corner of Howard County, adjoining the wealthy and populous counties of Chariton and Saline. Thus situated, THE JOURNAL commands in these three counties a list of readers who cannot possibly be reached through any other medium.

The policy of THE JOURNAL in these hard times has been, and is, to improve its quality as a newspaper instead of cutting down its prices. Outside of its local staff, which is the largest in the County, THE JOURNAL spends more money in working up the County news than all the other papers in the county combined. Its circulation is therefore increasing steadily, albeit gradually—a sure and permanent growth.

ADVERTISING RATES FURNISHED UPON APPLICATION.

TERMS: CASH WITH ORDER. TRADE PROPOSITIONS NOT CONSIDERED OR ANSWERED. REFERENCES NOT WANTED.

Advertising contracts with THE JOURNAL can be made as cheaply through GEO. P. ROWELL & Co., Agents, 10 Spruce St., New York, as with THE JOURNAL directly.

NAPOLEON said: "A journalist! A grumbler, a censorer, a giver of advice, a regent of sovereigns, a tutor of nations!"
"Four hostile newspapers are more to be dreaded than a hundred thousand bayonets"

The world's a printing house;
Our words, our thoughts,
Our deeds, are characters of Several sizes;

Each soul is a compositor,
Of whose faults
The Levites are correctors
Heaven revises:

Death is the common press
From whence being driven,
We're gathered sheet by sheet
And bound for Heaven.

C. F. BUSSING, Business Manager.

THE ADVOCATE is the recognized trade paper of the Retail Grocers of New York State.

It is the official organ of the New York and Brooklyn Retail Grocers' Association composed of some two thousand members. THE ADVOCATE claims to be read by more Retail Grocers in New York and Brooklyn than any and all other trade journals combined. Many of its advertisers have testified that their advertising investment in THE RETAIL GROCERS' ADVOCATE has been more profitable to them than any other medium they have ever used. During the year 1884 the paper has doubled in size and almost quadrupled in advertising and subscription patronage. It is owned by 2,000 retail grocers, and managed by them through a Board of Directors representing the New York and Brooklyn Retail Grocers' organizations. It claims to be thus absolutely the RETAILERS' ADVOCATE. It has a large circulation, throughout not only New York State but throughout every section of the country. Retail Grocers throughout the United States correspond with it.

Subscription Rates: One year, payable in advance, $2.00; Single Copy, 5 cents.

THE DAILY AND SUNDAY LEADER.

No. 133 FIFTH AVENUE, - - - - - PITTSBURG, PA.

WILFRED H. NEVIN, PRESIDENT. JOSEPH T. NEVIN, SEC'Y AND TREAS.

We wish to present the following PLAN OF ADVERTISING to you, viz.: If you contract with us for a one square, or one-half inch card, in the EVENING LEADER for three, six, or twelve months, for the sum of $25, $50, or $100 respectively, such card to appear in every issue, we will allow you to publish such other advertisements that you may send us at pro rata rates, during the continuance of your card. And also in the SUNDAY LEADER, a one-half inch card for three, six, or twelve months, for $9.10, $18.20, or $36.40, allowing pro rata as above; both of these offers being subject to our card of rates relating to cuts, display type, rule and figure work, and to the other rules of display advertising on last page of rate card.

This plan will enable Advertising Agents, Banks, Insurance Companies, and others, to have their business cards always before the readers of this journal, and to have all their extra transient or short-time advertisements inserted at the low rates of 33 cents per square inch in the DAILY LEADER, and 70 cents per square inch in the SUNDAY LEADER, each time.

Our rates for Cuts, Large Type, &c., are now reduced to only 25 per cent. for the space occupied.

Hoping for a favorable response, we remain,

Yours respectfully,

A NEW, BUT NEWSY PAPER, BRIGHT AS THE SUN, AND A FAVORITE EVERYWHERE.

PUBLISHED EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR.

TWELVE PAGES ON SUNDAY.

Only 10 cents per Week, or $5.00 a Year. Mailed to any Address.

THE CHICAGO SUN is an independent paper, its mission being to work for the best interests of the people. Grinding monopolies and corrupt administrations will find their dark deeds exposed by the light of the SUN, so that the people may be cognizant of their actions. No time, labor, nor money will be spared to make the SUN the most popular daily in the great country it serves.

Although comparatively young, it has met with a success unparalleled in the history of journalism in the United States, and the vantage ground thus gained it proposes to hold.

GIVE OUR PAPER A TRIAL. THIS IS ALL WE ASK.

If you are an Advertiser, and desire a first-class medium, try the SUN. If you wish to know its value in this direction, ask the small army of leading Chicago merchants, whose continued and liberal patronage shows the estimate they place upon its worth. These merchant princes are not in the habit of wasting their money on worthless advertising. No paper in Chicago is more liberally patronized than the SUN, and none affords them better returns upon the investment made.

Daily and Weekly Star.

T. H. TODD, Publisher.

41 BORDEN AVENUE, - LONG ISLAND CITY, N. Y.

THE WEEKLY STAR was established in 1865. It has a large circulation through Hunter's Point, Ravenswood, Astoria, Blissville, Dutch Kills, Woodside, Winfield, Newtown, Maspeth, East Williamsburgh, and various quarters of Long Island. THE DAILY STAR, established in 1876, is steadily advancing in popularity and influence, and as it is printed at the county seat of Queen's County, is a valuable medium for judicious advertisers.

Greenpoint Daily Star.

THE STAR is issued daily, except Sunday, in Greenpoint, Seventeenth Ward of the City of Brooklyn, where there is a population of about 40,000. It is a four-page paper, and was established in 1876. It is universally taken throughout the Ward, and is acknowledged to be the only popular and successful journal of the section in which it is printed. It has a fine circulation and an excellent advertising patronage. It is lively as a local journal, and just the place to put advertisements to reach the people of Greenpoint. Give it a trial.

American Music Journal.

64 EAST FOURTH STREET, - NEW YORK CITY.

J. TRAVIS QUIGG, Editor.

AN EIGHT-PAGE WEEKLY PAPER, PUBLISHED BY THE NEW YORK MUSICAL MUTUAL PROTECTIVE UNION,
 THE LARGEST ORGANIZED BODY OF INSTRUMENTAL MUSICIANS IN THE WORLD, CONSISTING OF NEARLY 2,500 ACTIVE MEMBERS.

It is the official journal of this great body of musicians, and DEVOTED EXCLUSIVELY to the interests of the Professional Instrumental Musicians of America, who are invited to make use of its columns freely as the national medium of inter-communication, by means of which they can unite in any concerted national action deemed necessary for the welfare or protection of the craft.

During the year 1886 the weekly editions will be increased from time to time in size, and handsomely illustrated with portraits of celebrated bandmasters and orchestral conductors, similar in size and artistic excellence to those already published by the AMERICAN MUSIC JOURNAL of the distinguished New York conductors, ANTON SEIDL and FRANK VAN DER STUCKEN, Bandmasters CAPPÀ and GILMORE, of the N. Y. Seventh and Twenty-second Regiments, with autograph signatures, printed on plate paper, 10½x14 inches each, suitable for framing, sample copies of which will be sent on receipt of 12 cents in stamps, to cover cost of paper, printing, tubing and postage.

THE SUBSCRIPTION PRICE OF THE "AMERICAN MUSIC JOURNAL" IS ONLY $2.00 A YEAR,

Including Postage and Special Illustrated Editions; but a LIBERAL REDUCTION will be made to Organized Military Bands, Orchestras, Clubs and Musical Unions which subscribe for ten or more copies, the object of the New York Union being not to make a profit out of the paper, but to place it within the means of every professional instrumental performer in the country, and make it

THE NATIONAL ORGAN OF THE ENTIRE PROFESSION.

A Liberal Commission will also be paid to all persons who will send subscriptions or advertisements.

THE CHAMPION is the oldest paper in Kansas, and has a circulation exceeding that of any other journal in the State. It is published in a city of 18,500 inhabitants, the centre of nine different railroads. Atchison is the most important commercial and manufacturing city in Kansas, and the "Railroad Centre" of the State. It has four large grain elevators, with a capacity of 2,500,000 bushels; five immense steam flouring mills; a foundry employing over 350 workmen; the machine shops of the Central Branch U. P. Railroad Co., employing 530 men; a canning factory; a linseed-oil mill; a furniture factory, employing 75 workmen; eleven churches, a college, six public school buildings and two seminaries, the largest Union Depot in Kansas, and seven hotels, one of them the largest and finest in the State. The city is lighted by gas, has water works and street-car lines, and the largest and finest Opera House in Kansas. Fifty-two passenger trains arrive at and depart from the city every day. Atchison is the location of the Soldiers' Orphan Home, an institution supported by the State. The Missouri Pacific Railroad Co. are now building machine shops and foundries in Atchison, which will give employment to over 2,000 men.
